3 NEW ENGLAND SENATORS SPLIT OVER ARMS SALE

One for Repeal on Religious Grounds.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—Three senators from New England debated the Roosevelt administration's neutrality repealer in the senate today, one of them supporting the measure on religious grounds and the other two denouncing it as an indefensible act of intervention in the European war.

Senator Francis T. Maloney [D., Conn.] argued that the European war involves a threat to religion; that "the successful march of the pagan doctrine of certain world leaders would soon destroy our civilization." He did not mention Adolf Hitler by name, but said he wanted Great Britain and France to be "saved from defeat because their leaders profess and practice a way of life more clearly in keeping with the Divine teachings."

Two Speak Against Repeal.

Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the naval affairs committee, and Senator John A. Danaher [R., Conn.] spoke in opposition to the arms embargo repealer. Senator Walsh said it would be "criminal to plunge a free people into war by incidents and situations which result from efforts made to sell implements of war."

Senator Scott Lucas [D., Ill.] interrupted Senator Danaher to complain that the arms embargo permits the sale of munitions to communist Russia but prohibits their sale to Canada, a good neighbor of the United States. Senator Rush D. Holt [D., W. Va.] replied that this situation is possible solely because President Roosevelt did not invoke the law with respect to Russia when the Red armies invaded Poland.

When Lucas protested that Russia did not declare war on Poland, Holt replied that there was no declaration of war when Italy invaded Ethiopia, yet Mr. Roosevelt did invoke the arms embargo at that time. The President, he said has not applied the arms embargo against Russia because Great Britain does not want it done.

Second Religious Argument.

Senator Maloney was the second supporter of the arms embargo repealer to raise the religious issue. The other was Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.] who appealed to the sentiments of both the Catholics and the Jews by denouncing persecutions in Germany.

Altho frankly acknowledging his purpose to help Great Britain and France resist Germany, Maloney insisted that the arms embargo repealists should not be called "interventionists." He listed 39 senators supporting the arms embargo repealer who, he said, had sons of military age or were themselves, subject to call.

"The senior senator from Illinois, Mr. Lucas, is now a colonel in the Illinois National Guard and served in the last war," Maloney said.

"The junior senator from Illinois, Mr. Slattery, has one son who is a lieutenant in the Illinois National Guard, and four sons of military age."

Maloney said his list should be sufficient "to let the people of the country know that the majority of the senators of the United States do not feel that the passage of this bill would be a step toward war."

Walsh Defines Issue.

The issue before the senate, said Senator Walsh, is "whether or not we shall nullify our views and decisions made for our peace, in time of peace, and become an economic base of war supplies for one of the European belligerents.

"Candor compels me to state that I can think of nothing, now that war has swept over Europe, that threatens more certainly to involve us in the present holocaust than deliberately to reverse our present policy of positive refusal to sell war weapons to any or all belligerents, and by solemn enactment offer the output of our munition factories for sale, knowing that only one group of belligerents can be our customer.

"No living being contends that we are morally bound to sell implements of war to any nation at any time. We are free to sell or not to sell. Our

Dr. Gore Quits Jail to Testify at Trial of Son

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Benton, Ill., Oct. 17.—Dr. George W. Gore, Benton surgical specialist, wept on the witness stand today as he told of the fatal shooting on July 23 of his second wife, Nancy Threlkeld Gore. Dr. Gore was the first witness called in the trial of his son, George W. Gore Jr., charged with her murder.

Dr. George W. Gore.

The doctor, described by State's Attorney Rea Jones as a reluctant witness, was brought from the nearby Franklin county jail to appear in the courtroom of Judge W. Joe Hill. Dr. Gore is being held on a charge of murdering Carl Choisser, an attorney who was a first cousin of the younger Gore.

Wrangle Over Confession.

The jury was excluded in the late afternoon while counsel wrangled over admission of a confession of guilt said to have been made by young Gore. Frank Figueria, R. T. Piper, and Sam Malone, agents of the state department of criminal investigation; Police Chief James Mundell of Benton, and several deputies declared Gore, without compulsion, told them on Aug. 1 that he had killed his stepmother. Judge Hill will rule on admissibility of the confession tomorrow.

Dr. Gore's testimony was regarded by spectators as damaging to the cause of the son, who is alleged to have slipped up to the physician's home before dawn and shot Mrs. Gore through a sleeping porch window.

Reviews Quarrels with Son.

The witness admitted he had many quarrels with his son as a result of his second marriage. One of the most serious squabbles, he said, occurred five days before the killing.

Dr. Gore told graphically of his actions at the time of the shooting.

"I was awakened by Mrs. Gore's screams," he said. "Then there were shots—three or four. I saw a flashlight gleaming outside the sleeping porch door, which was partly glass. I rolled off my side of the bed, which was farthest from the door, until the shots ceased."

Dr. Gore added that he turned on a light for an instant, saw that his wife had been wounded, and then crawled inside to telephone police.

In questioning leading up to the crime, he told how his first wife; mother of the younger George, who is 32 years old, died in 1935. He married his second wife, who had been his stenographer and office assistant, in September, 1937. His emotional collapse came after he had been asked if he knew who the killer was, and had responded: "I do not know."

Marion M. Hart, former state's attorney, who is assisting in the prosecution, made the opening statement for the state. He said he expected to prove that young Gore bought a pistol in Chicago and a used car in St. Louis for use in the murder of Mrs. Gore. He demanded the death penalty.

Neighbors Take Stand.

Following Dr. Gore, a number of Dr. Gore's neighbors told of hearing the shots and the screams of the dying woman.

Defense counsel, headed by Robert E. Smith, made much of the fact that Dr. Gore was fully dressed, except for a shirt, when police arrived at his home.

Of the women jurors, six are housewives. One, Mrs. Maude Boner, is a divorcée. The others are Mrs. Mildred Alverson, Mrs. Nancy Crouch, Mrs. Helen Bawlin, Mrs. Edith Sanders, Mrs. Lena Cook, and Mrs. Alta Cochrun. The male jurors are Louis Thompson, Allen M. Flowers, Paul Eldridge, Gilbert Moore, and Joseph Hamilton.

MOVIE EXTRAS TO GET 3 MILLIONS IN 1939; AVERAGE ONLY $321

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17 [Special].—Having earned half a million dollars more in the first nine months of this year than they earned in all of 1938, Hollywood motion picture extras probably will get 3 million dollars for the 12 months, the Screen Actors guild estimated today.

However, the 3 million dollar total is no indication that any individual earned a large salary. In fact, only three Hollywood extras averaged $50 a week or $2,600 in 1938; 74 earned $2,000, and only 1,750 reached $500. Individual earnings for this year will be about the same, according to the Central Casting bureau.

In 1938, 8,875 persons worked as extras in pictures. Their average earnings were only $321, according to the bureau.

Blame Tipplers for 25% of All Traffic Deaths

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 17 [Special].—Alcoholic drink is responsible for twenty-five per cent of America's automobile toll. This is the conclusion of a three year study by a committee of the National Safety council. The committee, headed by Judge Harry H. Porter, chief justice of the Municipal court of Evanston, Ill., reported its findings this afternoon to the 28th annual congress of the safety council.

Drinking drivers, according to the judge's report, account for 20 per cent of the motor fatalities. Drinking pedestrians account for 15 per cent of fatal accidents involving walkers, he said.

Night Death Toll Heavy.

Drunks, and those respectable folks who have had only one or two cocktails or highballs, are the chief causes of night deaths. Three fourths of the fatal accidents involving a pedestrian or a driver who has imbibed occur between sundown and sunrise.

These estimates are much higher than any heretofore published on the part that liquor plays in causing automobile accidents. Judge Porter's committee said that police statistics from various parts of the country are unreliable.

A recommendation from this study by the National Safety council is that all states should adopt laws permitting chemical tests to determine whether a person is under the influence of alcohol. These tests, of urine, breath, blood, or saliva have been standardized by the American Medical association.

Test Evidence Legalized.

Indiana and Maine are the two states of the country which have legalized such evidence. A bill, copying the new Indiana law, was introduced in the legislature at Springfield, Ill., this year and failed to pass.

"The main hazard," said Taylor Soper, executive secretary of the Illinois Road Builders' association, "is not the souse. There are not many of them. The main hazard is fellows like my friends and yours who think they can drive as well with just a few drinks as they can with no drinks. They are numerous."

Turkey Says 'No' to Demands of Russia

ASSERTS TERMS WOULD MENACE LIFE OF NATION

Will Sign Agreement with Britain.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Oct. 17 (AP).—Prime Minister Refik Saydam announced tonight the three weeks' negotiations in Moscow had proved fruitless because soviet Russia's demands were contrary to Turkish policy and security.

The prime minister's report to a parliamentary group of the Republican People's party was made public in an official communique as Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu left Moscow without signing a pact for closer relations with the soviet.

Sukru Saracoglu, Foreign Minister of Turkey.

The prime minister said a treaty was impossible now because Russia's demands were incompatible with Turkish policy regarding the Dardanelles, did not compensate Turkey for the obligations she was asked to assume, and were incompatible with Turkey's agreements with France and England. He emphasized, however, that relations between Turkey and Russia remained friendly.

Warship Ban Reported Sought.

Altho demands of the soviet pressing expansion of her influence in northeastern and southeastern Europe since the German invasion of Poland were not announced, it has been widely reported she sought an agreement to bar all foreign warships from passage through the Dardanelles except her own.

Turkey controls the Dardanelles, the only water passage from the Mediterranean to the Black sea and the backdoor to Rumania.

It was reported here Sunday that Foreign Minister Saracoglu had refused three other Russian proposals—recognition of the partition of Poland, formation of a neutral bloc in the Balkans under German-Russian influence, and Russian and Bulgarian territorial expansion at the expense of Rumania.

Other Treaties Involved.

Great interest was attached to the Moscow negotiations because Britain and France have given pledges to defend the independence of Rumania. The Dardanelles, the most effective route for their aiding Rumania, would have been closed to them had Turkey consented to the reported soviet proposals.

The French and British also have agreements with Turkey, announced May 12, to fight together in event of war in the Mediterranean.

The agreement with France was signed June 23, but the agreement with London never was signed formally. However, a Turkish military mission has been in London awaiting outcome of the Moscow talks. It was reliably reported the British pact would be signed this week, probably Thursday or Friday.

King Host to General.

LONDON, Oct. 17 (AP).—King George VI. of England today entertained Gen. Kiazim Orbay of the visiting Turkish military mission. Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax had a talk with Giuseppe Bastianini, the new Italian ambassador.

Minister Leaves Moscow.

MOSCOW, Oct. 18, Wednesday (AP).—Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu of Turkey left for home early today to the blaring of bands and well wishes of high soviet officials, who turned to a series of diplomatic consultations with Germany.

The Moscow government opened negotiations with Germany on repatriation of German minorities in the Baltic states and former Polish territory.

A German delegation headed by a foreign office official flew here from Berlin to begin the consultations on Adolf Hitler's broad plans to bring back all Germans living abroad. Hitler announced his repatriation program on Oct. 6 and negotiations with Baltic states are under way.

Germany now has two missions in Moscow. A second delegation has been here for several days conferring with soviet trade experts on problems in connection with the German-Russian trade and credit agreement which was announced on Aug. 20.

Picked Up at Sea 500 Miles West of France

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17 (AP)—The maritime commission received a message tonight from the master of the vessel Independence Hall saying it had picked up 300 survivors of the steamship City of Mandalay.

The Independence Hall, bound from Bordeaux, France, to New York, reported she was 500 miles west of France. No details of the rescue were given or what happened to the City of Mandalay.

The Independence Hall is owned by the maritime commission and operated by the America-France line.

The City of Mandalay is a British craft of 7,028 tons. It is listed in maritime registers as operated by the Ellerman Lines, Ltd., out of Glasgow, Scotland.

43 Saved from French Vessel.

LONDON, Oct. 17 (AP).—Forty-three survivors of the crew of the 5,186 ton French steamer Vermont were landed today at a port of southern England by a British warship which rescued them in the Atlantic.

Two seamen were lost in the sinking of the vessel and four of the survivors were injured. The survivors said a submarine sank their ship. One of the survivors said:

"We were told by the German captain that he was sorry he could not accommodate us in the submarine. He wished us good luck."

Captures Nazi Merchant Ship.

PARIS, Oct. 17 (AP).—A German merchant ship has been captured by France's Atlantic patrol, a French general staff communique reported today. The announcement gave no details.

Sunk with Cargo of Wood.

BERGEN, Norway, Oct. 17 (AP).—Its owners reported today the 1,918 ton Norwegian steamer, Lorentz W. Hansen, was torpedoed and sunk with a cargo of wood bound from Canada to England. The crew of 21 was saved by a tanker at a point two days out in the Atlantic.

[Oslo dispatches said the Norwegian steamer Kongsdal reported rescuing the crew. The Lorentz W. Hansen sailed from Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, for England by way of Chatham, N. B., on Sept. 28.]

Two Finnish Ships Detained.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 17 (AP).—Halting of two Finnish freighters, the Scandinavia and the Tarmo, which presumably now are being held in a German harbor was reported to their owners today. Both carried lumber.

Investigates Blasts.

KRISTIANSAND, Norway, Oct. 17 (AP).—Investigation of reports of a fire and explosion at sea today led observers to attribute the incident to "overwrought nerves" after a coast guard ship failed to find any evidence of a stricken ship or survivors.

Confirms Loss of Ship.

New York, Oct. 17 (AP).—The maritime register said today it had confirmed unofficial reports of a month ago that the 1,594 ton British freighter Bramden had been destroyed, possibly by a torpedo, off the English coast with a loss of three lives. Thirteen survivors of the sinking on Sept. 16 reached England, the register said.

Capt. Raymond Hodge of the American freighter Black Hawk reported by radio today that his ship rescued the crew of the French tanker Miguet, which burned at sea. He said the French crew rowed for 31 hours in a lifeboat before being picked up.

Capt. Hodge said his ship located the 39 desperate sailors at 2 a. m. last Saturday as they struggled in the darkness to keep the lifeboat on a course directed toward the English channel, some 300 miles away.

Capt. Hodge said one man was slightly wounded. He said he expected to dock at Boston on Sunday.

GERMAN PLANES MAKE FIVE RAIDS ON SCAPA FLOW

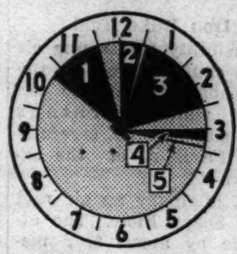
Iron Duke Bombed at British Navy Base.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Maps on back page.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Germany's vaunted air and undersea power is making Scapa Flow, landlocked harbor in the midst of the Orkney Islands, the target of its concentrated vengeance, it was disclosed tonight.



Black segments indicate hour and length of time of each of five raids on Scapa Flow.

Nazi airplanes struck at the lair of Great Britain's fleet five times, according to published reports in London. The attacks lasted five hours and ten minutes.

The first raid occurred at 10:15 a. m. and ended at 11:30. Four bombers participated in the attack, hitting and damaging the training ship Iron Duke. The British announced one of the raiders was shot down and another one was damaged. No British casualties were reported.

[The Iron Duke is a former battleship which was demilitarized under the London naval treaty of 1931-'32 and converted into a training ship. With a displacement of 21,250 tons, it carries six 13.5 inch guns and twelve 6 inch guns. Its complement is 589, exclusive of boys under training. The Iron Duke was Admiral Jellicoe's flagship at the battle of Jutland. The surrendered German imperial fleet was scuttled by its crews at Scapa Flow in 1919.]

Ten Planes in One Raid.

The second attack came at noon and lasted 30 minutes. The third began at 12:30 p. m. and ended two hours later. This raid was carried out by two Nazi formations of six and four bombers.

"No damage was done and there were no casualties," the admiralty said. "One German aircraft was reported destroyed."

The fourth raid lasted from 3 until 3:15 p. m. and the fifth from 3:23 until 3:25 p. m. Details of these attacks were not disclosed.

The Royal Mail steamer St. Ola, which plies between Scapa Flow and Thurso, port in North Scotland, was attacked by German planes this morning. The ship reported bombs fell around the vessel, but she was not hit. One Nazi plane was reported to have been brought down by antiaircraft fire from shore.

Two Planes Shot Down.

The air ministry announced that two German planes observed off the northeast coast of Britain were shot down by royal air force flyers and fell into the sea. The announcement said the crew of one of the German planes was rescued.

"Our aircraft returned safely," it added.

[D. N. B., official German news agency, admitted the loss of but one plane. It was said this plane was shot down in the Scapa Flow raid in which a "British battleship" was bombed. The Germans said they had shot down a British pursuit plane.]

German planes also were reported to have dropped bombs near a Belgian trawler between the mainland of Scotland and the Orkneys. The trawler was not hit, the reports said.

The air ministry announced that a number of British planes made successful daylight reconnaissance flights over western and northwestern Germany yesterday and that one aircraft had not returned.

Raider Spreads Consternation.

The German aerial offensive followed yesterday's raid on the Edinburgh and Firth of Forth area. In that raid three British naval vessels were slightly damaged, 16 sailors and officers killed and 45 wounded.

A Nazi raider flew over the Firth of Forth again this morning and spread consternation there and all along the east coast of England.

The German attacks came as Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, revealed in parliament that a lone German submarine had penetrated the defense of the Scapa Flow harbor early Saturday and had sunk the battleship Royal Oak with more than 800 officers and men lost.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the house of commons that bombs dropped in the Firth of Forth had not caused any great material damage to any of the three warships hit—the cruisers Southampton and Edinburgh and the destroyer Mohawk. He said all three were ready for the sea.

Following is the text of Chamberlain's statement:

"The house will wish to have an account of the series of air raids which took place in the Firth of Forth area yesterday afternoon in the light of the information now available.

"The air raid was carried out by 12 or possibly more aircraft in waves of two or three at a time. Two civilians were slightly injured by shell fragments. Damage to civilian property was negligible. Naval casualties were caused on H. M. S. Southampton, Edinburgh, and Mohawk.

"I regret to say that altogether three officers and 13 ratings [enlisted men] were killed or died of wounds, that two officers were slightly injured, that 11 ratings were seriously injured and 31 slightly injured.

Damage to Ship Slight.

"The damage to H. M. S. Southampton and H. M. S. Edinburgh was slight and both vessels are ready for sea. The damage to H. M. S. Mohawk is superficial. The enemy were at once engaged by our fighter squadrons and by antiaircraft fire. Four enemy bombers were brought down, of which one was shot down by gunfire. In addition a number of other enemy aircraft were heavily engaged and some of these may not have been able to reach home.

"As the attack was local and appeared to be developing only on a small scale and as our defenses were fully ready, it was not considered appropriate in this particular instance to issue an air raid warning which would have caused dislocation and inconvenience over a wide area.

Raid on Iron Duke Told.

"The responsibility for issuing air raid warnings must be left to the competent authorities, but the circumstances in which warnings should be issued will be carefully reviewed in the light of the experience gained.

"At 10:30 a. m. today an air raid took place on Scapa Flow. The attack was made by about four machines. Two bombs fell very near H. M. S. Iron Duke and ship sustained certain damages. No casualties occurred.

"H. M. S. Iron Duke is an old battleship which it will be recollected was demilitarized under a London naval treaty of 1930 and had all her armor removed. She has since been used for depot and training purposes.

"One aircraft was shot down in flames by the fire of either ship or shore guns and another probably damaged."

ENGLAND ADMITS LONE SUBMARINE SANK BATTLESHIP

Churchill Calls Attack Remarkable Feat.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 17. — Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, astounded the house of commons today by disclosing that a lone German submarine had slipped into the Scapa Flow harbor last Saturday and had sunk the battleship Royal Oak. He said more than 800 officers and men had lost their lives. The Royal Oak was one of England's fifteen capital ships.

Churchill announced that a special committee was investigating how the U-boat had penetrated the defense of the naval base on the southern edge of the Orkney Islands, about 100 miles north of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The admiralty in its original announcement of the sinking of the Royal Oak did not tell when or where it occurred. It said the vessel was believed to have been sunk by a submarine.

Sunk at Anchorage.

"The battleship Royal Oak was sunk at anchor by a U-boat in Scapa Flow approximately at 1:30 a. m. on the 14th instant," Churchill told the house of commons. "It still is a matter of conjecture how the U-boat penetrated the defenses of the harbor.

"When we consider that during the whole course of the last war this anchorage was found to be immune from such attacks, on account of the obstacles imposed by the currents and the net barrages, this entry of a U-boat must be considered as a remarkable exploit of professional skill and daring.

Fires Salvo of Torpedoes.

"A board of inquiry is now sitting at Scapa Flow to report upon all that occurred and anything that I say must be subject to revision in the light of their conclusions. It appears probable that the U-boat fired a salvo of torpedoes at the Royal Oak, of which only one hit the bow. This muffled explosion was, at the time, attributed to internal causes, and what is called the inflammable store, where the kerosene and other such materials are kept, was flooded.

"Twenty minutes later the U-boat fired three or four torpedoes, and these, striking in quick succession, caused the ship to capsize and sink. She was lying at the extreme end of the harbor and therefore many officers and men were drowned before a rescue could be organized from other vessels. The lists of survivors have already been made public, and I deeply regret to inform the house that upwards of 800 officers and men have lost their lives.

Navy Searches Anchorage.

"The admiralty immediately announced the loss of this fine ship.

"Serious as this loss is it does not affect the margin of security in heavy vessels, which remains ample.

"Meanwhile, an intensive search of the anchorage has not yet yielded any results. It is clear, however, that after a certain time the harbor can be pronounced clear as any U-boat would have to rise to the surface for air or perish.

"All necessary measures are being taken to increase the precautions which, in the late war, proved effectual.

"For the rest I must await the report of the board which is now examining the events in full technical detail.

"Towards the end of last week the U-boat warfare, which had for a fortnight been mainly directed upon neutrals, became again intensified.

Reports Four Ships Sunk.

"Four ships, including two French ships, were sunk upon the western approaches during Saturday and Sunday, and three others were attacked but made their escape.

"The British ships sunk aggregated 13,000 tons. On the other hand, it should not be supposed that all the losses are upon one side.

"The admiralty has hitherto refrained from giving the figures of the slaughter of U-boats which has been proceeding and is still proceeding with increasing severity.

"On Friday last, for instance, four U-boats were certainly destroyed, including two of the largest and latest ocean-going U-boats in the German navy.

Claims 13 Subs Destroyed.

"Nothing like this rate of destruction was attained at any moment in the last war. During the last week for which I can give figures, that is to say, to the end of the sixth week of the war, seven U-boats were sunk. If we look back over the whole period of six weeks since the war began, we may estimate that thirteen U-boats have been sunk, that five have been seriously damaged and possibly sunk, and several others damaged.

"These figures are probably an understatement. Besides this, two-thirds of the U-boats which have been out raiding, have suffered attack from depth charges. The French navy, which is powerful and in the highest state of efficiency, has also been active and has certainly taken its toll, but it is not for me to give figures upon this subject. We believe therefore that out of about 60 U-boats ready for action at the beginning of the war, about one-third have already been sunk or seriously damaged and of the largest and latest oceangoing U-boats, the proportion is at least one-fifth.

Survivors Held as Prisoners.

"We actually hold survivors from the crews of three vessels of this highest class. We must thus take stock of the general position reached in the first six weeks of the U-boat war against British commerce. Something from a third to a quarter of the total U-boat fleet of Germany has been destroyed and the gaps made in the skilled officers and crews cannot be speedily replaced.

"On the other hand, the British mercantile marine of 21,000,000 tons has experienced a loss of 156,000 tons by U-boat action, to which may be added 18,000 tons through mines or accidents—total, 174,000 tons.

"During the same period we have captured from the enemy 29,000 tons and have been refreshed by the arrival of new ships amounting to 104,000 tons.

"It will be seen, therefore, that while our merchantile marine remains practically unaffected by the U-boat warfare, losses have been inflicted upon the enemy which, if continued, would certainly not be endured.

"I cannot close my examination of the first phase of this severe sea struggle without inviting the house to realize the intensity of the effort and devotion which has been required from all the ever-increasing hunting craft, and from those engaged upon convoy, not only in narrow waters but amid the storms of the ocean and the constancy of the merchant officers and seamen who face all the hazards with buoyant and confident determination."

Says British Control Sea.

After the report was delivered Sir Archibald Southby, Conservative, asked Churchill: "Was the German submarine actually sighted inside Scapa Flow?"

"I did not say the U-boat was sighted inside Scapa Flow, but I have given the information which is in our possession," the first lord of the admiralty said. "When the inquiry is completed I will answer other questions if they will add to the information of the house."

A. V. Alexander, Laborite, asked: "Can the first lord of the admiralty say that German claims that they command the North sea now are refuted by his statement today?"

"Yes, there is a most effective control of all contraband," Churchill replied. "Germany can derive no advantage from ocean going commerce."

In the course of questions in the house of lords it was disclosed that the British do not claim to have destroyed the submarine which sank the Royal Oak and that it probably escaped.

GERMANS ONCE SANK OWN FLEET AT SCAPA FLOW

72 Ships Scuttled Before Peace of 1919.

The British naval base at Scapa Flow, which was raided yesterday by German bombers, is a deep island-strewn harbor shaped like a squash and about 15 miles long. It is in the Orkney islands at the northern tip of Scotland and separated from it only by the seven mile wide Pentland firth.

During the world war and since this haven has been used by the British as a naval base and it was the scene of the famous scuttling of the interned German fleet of 72 ships in June, 1919, which has been called perhaps the most costly naval disaster in history.

Mystery Shrouds Deed.

The scuttling of the German fleet took place while the treaty of Versailles was being negotiated. About that deed there still hovers mystery and the scent of scandal.

At the time of the scuttling the German fleet was still manned by sailors under German officers. It was apparent from the anti-German trend of the peace discussions that the fleet would not be returned to Germany, as the Germans had hoped. Rear Admiral von Reuter, the German commander, at once scuttled his ships before the British actually took them in hand.

Ships Left Unguarded.

The British fleet had sailed out of the harbor, leaving the German ships largely unguarded at a time when, it has been claimed, the British had reason to suspect the Germans would sink them.

It was later revealed that the secret order to scuttle had been dispatched to all the 72 German vessels by a British fishing boat carrying officers charged with censoring all German mail and orders.

The Orkneys had a stormy history in the piratical days of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries but had settled down to a peaceful era as a center of the herring fisheries industry when the world war arrived.

SEIZED AS CHECK SWINDLER.

AIR AND SEA RAIDS TO BREAK BRITAIN, GERMANS BOAST

Vulnerability of Fleet Is Proven, Nazis Claim.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Nazi officials tonight expressed the conviction that Germany's air force and navy soon will force England to its knees.

They based their belief on the results of the air raids on Scapa Flow and the Firth of Forth yesterday and today, and the submarine attack on Scapa Flow Saturday. In the latter the 29,150 ton British battleship Royal Oak was sunk.

In today's raid on Scapa Flow the Germans said the former British battleship Iron Duke was struck by heavy and medium sized bombs and a British plane was shot down, while the Nazi raiders escaped from heavy fire with the loss of one plane. The Germans are confident that the Iron Duke, which is now a training ship, was damaged so badly that it will be laid up for a long time.

Call British Vulnerable.

Even the most conservative German military circles declared that the vulnerability of the British fleet when attacked by German dive bombers had been clearly revealed.

The Germans declared that they have photographic proof that the British cruisers Southampton and Edinburgh and the destroyer Mohawk were badly damaged by bombs in the Firth of Forth raid yesterday. They also declared that they had photographed the battle cruiser Hood being towed into a dock after being bombed by German aircraft.

The Germans said that heretofore only comparatively small air units had been employed against the British fleet. They were confident that England can be compelled to come to terms with Germany when the latter makes full use of its air force. This may not be long in coming, official German circles hinted darkly.

Pilots of heavy bombers speak with awe of the size of the "trunks" they will carry on their next flights. "Trunks" is the flyers' nickname for bombs. The flyers say the explosive power of these "trunks" is tremendous. Only a few were tried out in the Polish campaign, but their effectiveness was described as overwhelming.

British Taken by Surprise.

Details of the air raid on the Firth of Forth were given today. Starting from their German airports, Stukas, or dive bombers, were able to reach the Firth of Forth without a gun being fired at them, it was said.

The German report declared the British were taken so completely by surprise that only a few guns were fired at the first bombers diving down in waves of two and three machines at a time. Almost all the German raiders were able to drop their bombs on British ships. Only the last attacking machine was heavily fired on by British cruisers and destroyers, it was said.

The second attacking plane dropped an 1,100 pound bomb on a cruiser, from which, the German report said, a cloud of smoke shot up.

The report declared that on the way back the German planes flew over Edinburgh and along the Firth of Forth, "partly at such a low altitude that farmers waved their arms at them."

According to the Germans, two British Spitfire planes pursuing the Germans were shot down by the "very speedy, very mobile, and very strongly armed Stukas." The Germans admitted the loss of two dive bombers.

Lieutenant Commander Priem, commander of the U-boat which sank the Royal Oak and was reported to have torpedoed the British battle cruiser Repulse in Scapa Flow, returned to Wilhelmshaven today.

[Britain has denied that the Repulse was hit.]

Crew of U-Boat Decorated.

The commander and his entire crew were given a triumphant reception. They were awarded Iron Crosses of the first and second classes. Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, German naval commander in chief, was present to congratulate the men. It is expected that the crew will be received by Fuehrer Hitler.

Commodore Doenitz, commander of the U-boat fleet, was raised to the rank of rear admiral for the exploits of his submarines.

Lieutenant Commander Priem in his report on the Scapa Flow attack said he torpedoed the British ships at night and expressed wonderment that his slim undersea craft was able to pass British submarine traps unmolested.

He asserted that he was already outside the mine fields, his work done, when the British started throwing spotlights around the bay to find him.

Revenge for 1919.

He said his first thought when he had penetrated Scapa Flow was "to do something in honor of Admiral Reuter, who ordered the German world war fleet scuttled in Scapa Flow on June 21, 1919, when he learned that the vessels were to be turned over to Great Britain.

German newspapers tonight emphasized that only twice in the world war did German U-boats succeed in reaching Scapa Flow—once in 1914, when the U-18 was sunk immediately after entering the bay and again in 1918, when the U-116 was sunk by an electrically exploded mine at the mouth of the bay.

News of the German air and naval victories completely overshadowed news from the western front. The German war communique reported laconically that the French army had evacuated the greater part of the German territory it had occupied in the six weeks elapsed since the outbreak of the war.

Ridicule French Report.

The Germans ridiculed the French report of a heavy German attack in the Saarbruecken sector. The Nazis declared that all that had happened was that the French evacuated a narrow strip of German land that they had occupied and that the Germans thereupon followed the retreating French until they reached the French-German border.

The communique also reported that three French and two British planes were shot down yesterday over German territory.

Anti-British feeling is being fanned by the German radio stations, which, after every naval news item, play the German world war song, "We Are Sailing to England." This tune has replaced the song, "The March of Germans Into Poland," which was played by the German radio stations until the Polish campaign ended. Last year, during the Czecho-Slovakian crisis, German stations fanned popular feeling by playing the Sudeten anthem after every news broadcast.

RUMOR MONGERS TO BE PUNISHED, GERMANY WARNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—"Every German firm and every German store today is a political cell," Robert Ley, Nazi labor leader, told the convention of German tradesmen here today.

In an effort to counteract complaints of customers against their local shop—keepers under the rationing system, and at the same time to warn the customers, Ley added:

"Wherever the individual appears to be displaying ignorance of the situation with nonsensical rumors, the German shopkeepers will know how to take action against such rumor spreaders. Here the shopkeeper can do educational work, which is one of the most beautiful tasks of the present day. The excellent machine built up by German trade will prove to be an extended arm of the party."

AIR RAID ALARMS KEEP BRITISH IN TURMOIL 5 HOURS

Trade Paralyzed; Traffic Comes to Standstill.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Not since John Paul Jones raided the east coast of England during the American revolution has there been such conservation as was caused by air raid alarms all along the coast today.

They extended from Rosyth, in Scotland [on the Firth of Forth], to Grimsby, at the mouth of the River Humber on the northeast coast of England, and Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and down to Chatham, 25 miles southeast of London on the south end of the island.

Public on Tenterhooks.

From 11 a. m. until 4 p. m. sirens wailed intermittently on the east coast towns. For five hours the public was kept on tenterhooks, scuttling in and out of shelters. Shops were closed and trafic came to a standstill. The house of lords, sitting in parliament in London, suspended its session and took to the basement.

Today's flood of warnings appeared largely precautionary and was contrasted in the press tonight with the fact that no alarm was signaled yesterday, when German planes bombed British warships in the Firth of Forth.

Apart from the raid on Scapa Flow and reports of a lone raider being seen over Scotland and of two German planes being shot down off northeast Britain, no German planes appear to have crossed the British coasts in daylight today.

Admit Activity Off Coast.

In a statement tonight, however, the air ministry announced that observer corps reported German aircraft activity of the east coast in the morning and afternoon. Action was taken by British fighters and anti-aircraft defenses. One of the German aircraft was intercepted on the Yorkshire coast and chased out to sea, the statement added. The German activity appeared to have been for reconnaisance purposes. No bombs were dropped.

The alarms, nevertheless, claimed at least two victims. At Bridlington a woman suffered a heart attack in a shelter while from Grimsby it was reported that a middle aged man collapsed and died.

Sirens blared out in Hull, center of the fishing industry, at 11:05 a. m. One minute later they were heard at Driffield, 15 miles southeast of Bridlington on Bridlington bay, in Yorkshire. Between 10 and 11:20 a. m. alarms were sounded in at least another half dozen towns, including Bridlington, Grimsby, Cleethorpes, Dunfermline, the Rosyth dockyard, and Inverkeithing on the banks of the Firth of Forth.

People Kept Cooped Up.

All clear signals were given generally before midday, but the populations of Grimsby and Cleethorpes had to stay cooped up until 12:45 p. m. before being released.

In the afternoon the alarm epidemic was revived. Rosyth got its second warning of the day at 1:45 p. m. All clear was sounded at 2:15 p. m.

Newcastle and the surrounding district along the River Tyne had its first warning since the war started, at 2 p. m. The population had to wait two hours before being notified that all was clear. It was the longest delay of the day.

Chatham naval center at the mouth of the Thames had a double alarm in quick succession. The first alarm sounded at 1:48 p. m., followed by all clear five minutes later. The second lasted from 2:30 until 3:05 p. m.

Sirens sounded also at Gillingham, Rochester, Dover, Harwich, Ipswich, Southend, Berwick-on-Tweed, and as far inland as the southeast suburbs of London.

YANK AMPLIFIES CHARGES ATHENIA HAD GUNS ABOARD

Hints Mine or Time Bomb May Have Sunk Her.

Gus Anderson, Evanston survivor of the sinking of the Athenia, in a newspaper interview yesterday amplified his charge made to the state department that the British liner was carrying arms. Last night he told part of his story in a radio broadcast over W-G-N.

Points not disclosed by Washington dispatches were outlined by Anderson as follows:

1. Altho he was on deck within two minutes after the explosion, he saw no submarine conning tower, nor any second torpedo, which others reported.
2. Visibility was only 400 or 500 yards, in his judgment, while those reporting a submarine said it was 800 to 1,000 yards away.
3. Powder smoke was in interior corridors on the starboard [right] side, while others said a torpedo struck the port [left] side.
4. He and others in his lifeboat saw what they took to be a mine marker floating near the ship.

He Suspects a Time Bomb.

"I think the ship was struck by a torpedo because it was hit too hard to be any kind of normal explosion," Anderson said. "But I am not qualified to pass on that. Military experts should decide whether a torpedo would send gas, smoke, and force so far toward the interior of the boat. Perhaps it was a time bomb inside the ship."

Anderson also attached significance to the fact that lifeboat drill was held on the Clyde river before war was declared, and before the Athenia started for Canada.

He repeated his statement made in an affidavit to Washington officials that crew officers told him there were guns in the hold. These were to be used for coastal defense at Halifax and Quebec, and also to fit the Athenia as a raider, he said he was told. The ship had already been reinforced with heavy beams and braces for this purpose, he said.

Praises Crew of Ship.

"I had sailed on the Athenia 12 times," Anderson declared. "From captain to cabin boy, I knew the crew and they are the finest men of my acquaintance. I greatly admire Great Britain, too."

Anderson said he did not tell his whole story when he arrived in New York City on Sept. 14 after landing from the rescue ship, City of Flint, because of the controversy then raging between Great Britain and Germany over the Athenia. It sank Sept. 3, a few hours after Great Britain declared war on Germany.

Twenty-eight Americans were lost in the tragedy.

PARIS IS WARNED AIR RAID ALARM MAY NOT BE GIVEN

PARIS, Oct. 17 (AP).—Coincident with the German air raid on Scotland police warned Parisians today that antiaircraft batteries may start firing on enemy planes without advance notice. Since five uneventful raid alarms in the first month of the war, Parisians, instead of seeking bombproof shelters have slept thru night warnings and during the day have rushed into the street. The unpopularity of the alarms has resulted in successive relaxations of the alarm system. Warnings are given now only "in danger of imminent attack."

French Expect Germans to Renew Battle.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 17.—The double German offensive launched yesterday east of the Moselle river and along a front of more than 18 miles east of the Saar river came to a standstill this morning. Sharp infantry engagements were reported, however, at several points along the western front.

The Germans, after occupying the front lines on German soil evacuated by the French, came upon a second and stronger French line on or near the frontier. In the face of artillery barrages and intense machine gun fire, they made no serious effort to push ahead.

60,000 Nazis in Battles.

Tonight the French radio declared the French army is still fighting on German soil from the Rhine river to the Moselle. From the number of German troops engaged in yesterday's fighting, six divisions totaling 60,000 men or more, some military observers here assume the operations were the initial stage in a serious German assault on the Maginot line. It is expected the offensive will get under way again.

The sector along the Luxemburg border east of the Moselle, where the Germans attacked on a four mile front, including Apach, has politico-strategic interest.

Gain Possible at Small Cost.

The Maginot line in this sector curves to the northwest behind the Luxemburg border and well back of the German frontier. A serious attack in this area, if sucessful, would enable Chancellor Adolf Hitler to announce the penetration of several miles of French territory without an assault on the Maginot line. Positions seized yesterday by the German infantry, particularly the Schneeberg Heights, furnish basis for attack.

Two points at which the Germans smashed in their action on the 20 mile front east of the Saar river were the Blies salient and the lines around Zweibruecken. Aided by artillery, the French fought a rearguard action until they reached lines their general staff said had previously been designated.

German losses in the attacks yesterday are said to have been heavy. If one report circulated in Paris is true, some of the casualities were inflicted by electrically operated machine guns controled from a distance.

French Tell of Retreat

The French general staff communique reported this morning:

"Late yesterday afternoon the Germans launched a second attack, supported also by strong artillery, in the region east of the Saar on a front of about 30 kilometers [18.7 miles].

"Our light elements of observation fell back while fighting conforming to their mission. Our fire stopped the enemy at the line foreseen.

"In anticipation of this resumption of the offensive by the Germans, the French command decided more than 15 days ago to bring back to new positions the French divisions which had taken the offensive in German territory to relieve the Polish armies indirectly.

"All necessary movements were terminated Oct. 3. Since then we have left in contact only light elements of observation and some fractions of support."

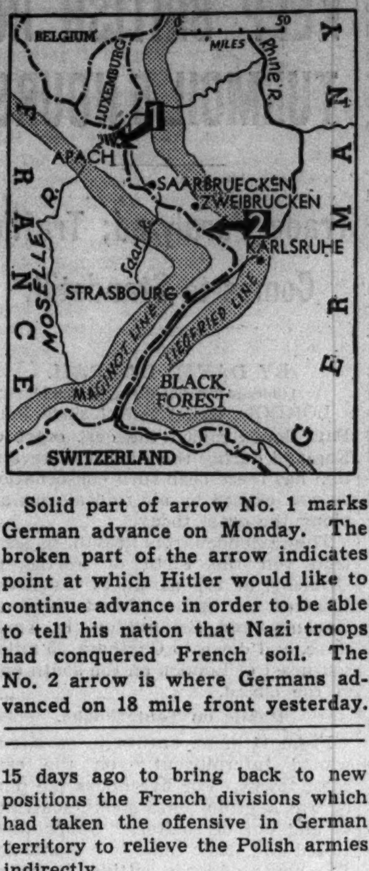
A communique issued tonight stated:

"Local activity on the whole front which since this morning remains stationary in spite of sharp infantry engagements at certain points. A German merchant ship has been captured by our Atlantic patrol."

[The German high command reported at 12:15 a. m. yesterday [5:15 a. m. Chicago time]: "In the course of the day French troops yesterday evacuated the greatest part of German territory they hitherto had occupied in front of our fortifications, and retreated to and across the border."]

Germans Advance

(Story in adjoining column.)



Solid part of arrow No. 1 marks German advance on Monday. The broken part of the arrow indicates point at which Hitler would like to continue advance in order to be able to tell his nation that Nazi troops had conquered French soil. The No. 2 arrow is where Germans advanced on 18 mile front yesterday.

Bermuda Hurricane Rips Up Trees, Halts Utilities

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 17 (AP).—The first hurricane here in 13 years late yesterday brought 100 mile an hour winds, ripped up trees, swamped small boats, smashed windows and interrupted public utilities. The full force of the storm which lasted four and a half hours, struck about 20 miles east of St. David's Head.

U.S. SHIP REPORTS MANY INJURED AT SEA; ASKS FOR AID

Cutter on Way to Liner Stricken in Storm.

New York, Oct. 18, Wednesday [Special].—A message from the American liner President Harding, far out in the Atlantic, saying many persons aboard had been injured in heavy weather and requesting medical aid, was received by the coast guard here late last night.

A subsequent message indicated the liner was hove to in a severe North Atlantic storm about 1,000 miles from New York and 300 miles south of St. Johns, Newfoundland. From the same area came an SOS call early today from the British freighter Blairbeg, a 3,509 ton ship. No details of the plight of the freighter were received, however.

Many Americans Aboard.

The President Harding had a large passenger list, including many Americans returning from Europe's war zone and thirty-six crew members rescued from the torpedoed British freighter Heronspool off Ireland. The liner was due in here Friday.

The injuries among passengers, crew, and the rescued seamen were described as including skull fractures, a number of cases of injuries to spines and legs, and one person seriously burned.

A storm warning covering the area in which the President Harding and the Blairbeg were in trouble, about 150 miles apart, had been issued earlier by the weather bureau.

Cutter Goes to Aid.

The coastguard cutter Hamilton, which was off Boston when the message was received, has been sent to the President Harding. The Hamilton carried a doctor and medical supplies.

The President Harding, a vessel of 13,869 tons, was built in 1921 by the New York Shipbuilding corporation at Camden, N. J.

After a zigzagging voyage across the Atlantic, during which the only sign of a possible convoy was the smoke of an occasional steamer on the distant horizon, the Cunard White Star liner Samaria docked here yesterday with 1,095 passengers, including 259 Americans.

The ship, from Liverpool, was the third passenger vessel of a belligerent nation to arrive within 24 hours. The British Cameronia and the French De Grasse reached New York yesterday.

BRITISH GENERAL DRINKS A TOAST TO ROOSEVELT

Says England Fights for 'Right Minded.'

BY JOHN O'DONNELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Oct. 15 [Delayed] [Passed by Field Censor].—Holding high a glass of full bodied Burgundy, Gen. Lord Gort, commander in chief of the British forces in France, toasted the health of President Roosevelt and told American reporters at the battle front to send back word to America:

General Wears Medals.

Nine American correspondents, with uniforms the same as those of British officers except that the correspondents wear press brassards, were Gort's guests with a score of British reporters in a hotel which was reduced to ruins in the world war.

The commander in chief, wearing a battle tunic bearing ribbons charting his heroism—the Victoria Cross and emblems showing he was wounded four times in the world war—rapped the table for attention and proposed:

"To the neutral nation whose representatives we are glad to receive, coupled with the name of President Roosevelt!"

Also Toasts British King.

His toast followed directly on the heels of toasts drunk first to the British king and next "to our allies, coupled with the name of the president of the republic of France."

The general said that he regarded reporters from the United States as "coöperators and collaborators."

DIES OF GAS FROM TWO AUTOS.

Henry Galli, 41 years old, was found dead of carbon monoxide gas last night in the locked garage behind his home at 631 North Central Park avenue. The motors of his automobile and the bakery truck he drove were both running.

CIGARETS SWING A DEAL FOR TAXI AT PROFIT OF $27

Tribune Writer Speeded on Polish Journey.

(This is another of a series of dispatches by Alex Small who was The Tribune's correspondent in Poland. In previous dispatches he told of the flight of Polish refugees from the German invasion and now tells of their return ahead of the Russians occupying eastern Poland.)

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, Oct. 17.—Our position at Ratno the evening of Sept. 23 presented a neat problem of refugeeing. Our anxiety was caused by the fact that the villages to the north had been attacked by bands of peasantry out for loot and which were reported on their way to Ratno.

It was so cold that spending the night in the fields was almost unthinkable, besides the fields provided little security. Finally, our Polish friends [a man named Ordna and his family] found refuge in a doctor's home. The house was opposite the side of the village from which attack was expected and was convenient to fields all around.

We were just installed when there was a great commotion in the center of the village. Investigating, we found that a force of 500 national police had just arrived and had told the newly formed local soviet to mind its own business, at least until the Russians came. They announced they intended passing the night in Ratno.

Police Fear Execution.

That relieved us of our greatest anxiety. The poorly organized local bolsheviks never would dare to attack so strong a force of police. A new fear was raised, however, when the police said they were leaving at daylight because the Russians were on their heels. The national police were firmly convinced that the bolsheviks would execute them summarily.

Our host produced some turkey which had been boiled. I drew a tough piece of the leg and fell asleep while trying to get my teeth through it. Some members of our party slept in the house. Eltar and I got a shed where horses were stabled. [Eltar was a minor official of the Polish foreign office.] Chinks between the boards were inches wide. So we shivered all night, while the horses tried to kick the shed to pieces.

The next morning, Sept. 24, we found Ratno in feverish expectation. The police had cycled out of town at dawn and the local soviet once more was in control. The chief had said, however, that he would not try to prevent any refugees from leaving town. The Russians, I was told, were expected at any moment.

Friend Chooses Bolsheviks.

Here our party broke up. My friend Eltar, who had accompanied us through the vicissitudes of bombing, scanty rations, and forced marches, told us [another American and me] that he had finally made up his mind to await the bolsheviks. For him the decisive factor was that his wife and child were on a farm near Vilna.

Eltar thought that if he once got into the German part of Poland he would never again be able to pass into the Russian part. He was willing to take the chance that the bolsheviks would be relatively easy with him and let him rejoin his family, after which they would try to cross into Latvia or Lithuania. His future was hardly a pleasant prospect.

The only occupation he knew was being a government official, a job he had filled with intelligence. He knew the bolsheviks would have no use for him. With luck they would let him live on the little farm which his mother-in-law possessed near Vilna. But because there were two cows or more on that farm, he feared his family would be dispossessed as kulaks and capitalists.

How to Get 65 Miles Farther?

We two Americans were left with the problem of keeping ahead of the bolsheviks while traveling the 65 miles to Wlodawa. It was the nearest large town on the west bank of the Bug river. We presumed it was outside the Russian zone of occupation. If compelled to go farther on our already sore feet, we would have to count on using nearly three days and spend nights in fields or woods, because it would be folly now to take chances with the local soviets in the villages.

We looked around despairingly for a farm cart, but none was available. Then a miracle occurred—one of the few gifts from heaven we had in Poland. In the courtyard of a schoolhouse stood a number of abandoned motor vehicles, mostly buses. These were filled with refugees who were sleeping there and waiting for a dubious start to any destination whatever. One driver offered to take me if I would buy the gas, which the soldiers were selling. They refused to accept zlotys [Polish money] and wanted to sell the gas at a price of $5 a liter [1.05 quarts] and the bus needed 50 liters.

A Taxi with Gasoline.

The discussion was getting nowhere when another man interrupted. He was a taxi driver, and the real surprise was that he had his taxi with him. A still greater wonder was that it was loaded with gasoline and ready to go.

But zlotys were ruled out. This tough taxi driver wanted dollars and a lot of them. He said ordinarily he got one zloty [20 cents] per kilometer [.621 miles] for long hauls. Now he wanted $1 per kilometer. The last official rate of exchange was five zlotys to the dollar, so he thought he was reasonable in multiplying the price only five times.

We made a deal finally. I was to give him two packages of my now sadly crushed imitation American cigarets. This knocked $27 off the price—in short it was one war profiteer dickering with another.

Over Good Paved Road.

We were finally running off in the convoy again with other cars and over a good paved road. All was well until we reached a crossroads where more than 50 cars were halted. Women were standing around in tears.

All of these people were on the road to Brest-Litovsk but they had got word that the Germans, who had been occupying that city had moved out the night before and the bolsheviks had moved in. These bolsheviks were the same column which occupied Pinsk and then went on straight west over a good road.

The nearer we got to the river the more abandoned cars we saw. The countryside was a motor car cemetery.

The drivers had abandoned them when they ran out of gas. Local peasants had removed most of the detachable parts, especially the tires which were prized for making soles for those foot wrappings of rags, tree bark and string which the poorer peasants use instead of boots.

At times our driver stopped dead on the brink of deep ditches where the little bridges had been burned or blown up. Then he had to get the car off the road, turn into fields and gulleys and take improvised plank and log crossings over the brooks while we stood wondering if he would ever be able to make the grade up the bank on the other side and back on the road again.

Over Railroad Bridge.

At the Bug river we found that the big bridge was down. We had to go a mile and a half up the stream to the railway bridge. Between the tracks sheets of corrugated sheet iron had been laid over the ties. In that way the Polish army was taking heavy trucks across the river.

As we turned again toward Wlodawa—with immense relief, thinking that at last we were safe from the bolsheviks—I saw a case of the Germans' thoro and indiscriminate bombing. Whole rows of little peasant houses had been burned out by incendiary bombs. It was the same sort of work I had seen at Berezne. Where the houses got thicker, the bombers had varied by using high explosives in shattering a whole clump at once. Wlodawa itself had been heavily bombed, especially in the center.

BIDDLE REVEALED AS PART OWNER OF PAPER FIGHTING POWER LINE

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 17 [Special].—A statement of ownership issued for October by the Chattanooga News listed Francis Biddle of Philadelphia as one of the owners of the newspaper.

The News, a pro-New Deal paper and in favor of public ownership of utilities, is an afternoon competitor of the Chattanooga Free Press. The latter paper favors private ownership of utilities.

Francis Biddle, recently appointed a judge of the United States Court of Appeals, was an attorney for a TVA congressional investigating committee which in August, 1938, centered an attack on the Free Press. In the investigation Biddle presented evidence to the committee of propaganda in behalf of the Tennessee Electric Power company and sought to show that the Free Press was controled by the power company.

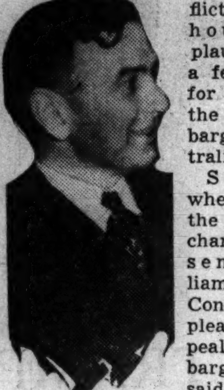
LEGLESS WORLD WAR VET BACKS ARMS SALE BAN

Congressman Makes Plea from Wheel Chair.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



Representative Miller.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—A war veteran who lost both legs in the last world conflict stirred the house to applause today with a fervent appeal for retention of the arms embargo in the neutrality act.

Seated in a wheel chair in the well of the chamber, Representative William Miller [R., Conn.] made his plea against repeal of the embargo, which, he said, would undoubtedly constitute a first step toward involving the nation in the European war.

Lost Legs in Plane Crash.

Miller, a war time lieutenant, lost his legs in a plane crash. Last June, while the house was debating neutrality legislation, he made a similar plea for the arms embargo which was deemed to have had considerable weight in influencing the house to vote in favor of the embargo by a 41 vote margin.

Miller declared the neutrality bill fight was becoming hysterical and criticized the administration for fostering this hysteria. The actions of President Roosevelt and government department heads have created the impression, he said, that the United States was on the brink of a declaration of war. He mentioned as an example the transfer of the Panama canal administration from civil to military rule. The Panama canal act, he remarked, specifies that this action should be taken only in case of war or when war is imminent.

Tells of Mail Appeal.

Miller said he had received 3,212 letters and cards from his constituents and that only 373 were in favor of repealing the arms embargo. Of these 373, 126 were duplicate printed postcards, indicating that they were part of an organized attack upon the embargo. He offered this fact in refutation of the administration's claims that the embargo's proponents have organized a mail onslaught upon congress.

"The cards stated that it was the duty of congress to uphold the President of the United States and vote for repeal of the arms embargo," Miller told the house. "It is an effort to convince the people that the issue concerns the President. That certainly is not the fact.

"The arms embargo is a symbol of honest neutrality. I am afraid that if we repeal it we will start a chain of events we cannot stop—events which will repeat what happened between 1914 and 1917."

2 Swiss Army Pilots Die as Planes Collide in Fog

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 17 (AP).—The pilots of two Swiss military planes on patrol duty were killed today when the planes collided in a fog over Gurtendorf mountain.

Senators Debate Arms Embargo

Senator Maloney (D., Conn.) at left declared in debate on the arms embargo yesterday that the law should be repealed on the ground that the war involves a threat to religion. Senators Walsh (D., Mass.), in center, and Danaher (R., Conn.), at right, spoke in opposition to the repeal.

When Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), at left, pointed out that the embargo prevented sale of munitions to Canada, but allowed sale to Russia, Senator Holt (D., W. Va.), at right, replied that this was possible because President Roosevelt did not invoke the law with respect to Russia when Red armies invaded Poland.

UNARMED BRITISH PILOTS FLY RIGHT INTO NAZIS' RAID

LONDON, Oct. 17 (AP).—The air ministry today related that among the most surprised men in the Nazi air raid on the Firth of Forth Monday were two British officers flying a small unarmed civil type plane.

The British officers saw a large plane diving near them and thought the pilot was being playful. So they dived, too. Suddenly they recognized the identity of the bigger plane. A burst of fire from the raiders sent the British airmen back home. The ministry said the German flyers disappeared into a cloud.

Wartime Scrap Iron Price Fattens Evanston's Purse

The city of Evanston benefited $3,875 yesterday because scrap iron prices have soared as a result of the war in Europe. Five hundred tons of rails torn up when buses replaced street cars in the suburb were sold for $16.75 a ton. Two years ago the offer was $9 a ton. The purchaser was Bernard J. Fallon, co-receiver for the Chicago Rapid Transit company.

Quake Rocks Chilean City; Inhabitants Flee in Panic

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 17 (AP).—A violent earthquake at Concepcion at 2:40 p. m. today caused a panic. People fled their homes, fearing a repetition of last January's disaster in which thousands of persons died.

SENATOR WILEY, ON RADIO, AVOIDS ARMS BAN STAND

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17 [Special.]—In a radio address tonight, Senator Alexander Wiley [R., Wis.] recited the arguments of both sides on the arms embargo question but did not state his own position. Throughout the senate debate on this question, which began on Oct. 2, Mr. Wiley has clung tenaciously to the fence.

"I want to state emphatically, that there is no need for telling the people that a law passed by congress will insure America against war," Wiley said. "Many partisans, in this debate have gone beyond reason in their statement or conclusion, indicating that only if congress follows their course can we avoid war, only by following what they say can America be secure.

"We had an embargo in 1812 and we got into the war. We didn't have one in 1917 and we got into the war. In fact from 1812 to 1935 we didn't have an embargo and we kept out of all the European conflicts with the exception of the world war. In my opinion the repeal or the failure to repeal the embargo is not of primary importance as far as war or peace is concerned."

NEED ADEQUATE DEFENSE FLEET, SAYS PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17 [Special].—The nation's naval problems cannot be solved by slogans or catch phrases, President Roosevelt declared today in stating that the real need of the United States is for a completely adequate defense fleet.

His dissertation was set off at the White House press conference when a reporter asked if the President believed in a two ocean navy.

The President said that the Lord alone knows if we had a two ocean navy whether we would have one navy in the Atlantic and another in the Pacific or whether we would concentrate both navies in one ocean.

Turning to Joseph M. Patterson, publisher of the New York Daily News, which has been reiterating the phrase "two ships for one" in its editorials, the President said with a laugh that such phrases are pious ideals, but the naval problem is not so simple. The News for years has advocated two American warships for every one built by Japan.

3 NEW ENGLAND SENATORS SPLIT OVER ARMS SALE

One Is for Repeal on Religious Grounds.

declared policy, the present federal law, now forbids sales.

"I am not unmindful of the claim that by opening our airplane and munition factories to belligerents, we will thereby help one side to a quick and perhaps total defeat of its enemy. If this purpose is consummated, the repeal will constitute a direct violation of America's obligation as a neutral.

"This is easily demonstrated to any unprejudiced mind. The present neutrality law was in existence before the war started. It is at this moment in force. To weaken this law now for the purpose of helping one side is a participation in war, one of degree to be sure, but in what degree no one can estimate in advance.

"It does not require any extended argument or the recital of precedents to demonstrate that when changes in the neutrality laws are made during war, the purpose of the change is all important. Where the purpose is solely and obviously to preserve our neutrality, such as some of the proposed changes in the cash and carry of commodities, no claim of intervention can be made.

"How long would any of the small countries adjoining the war area of Europe remain at peace, if it declared in advance of war that it would not sell instruments of war, and following the outbreak of the present war, turned its munition plants over to supply death bombs to one group of belligerents?

Become Partners of Empires.

"When we make the United States a base of supplies for Britain and France—when we undertake to provide them with munitions and all other needful war materials—we become to all intents and purposes, and behind a smoke screen of professed neutrality, an undeclared partner with them in the war upon Germany and such nations as are or may become allied with her.

"We delude ourselves with the thought it will not be necessary to send troops—we shall not have to sacrifice American lives. Our partners will make the sacrifice in lives. All we have to do is to supply the munitions and the food stuffs; the airplanes but not the pilots; wheat, corn and cotton, but not cannon fodder.

"But once we become accustomed to the idea that we are partners on the side of Britain and France, the next step follows very naturally—the notion that as a nation we cannot afford to have Britain and France fail. If United States munitions and supplies are not enough, we must lend our fleet and finally our soldiers.

"To my mind, the repeal of the arms embargo at this time is a direct assault upon one group of belligerents and is in fact deliberately so intended. It will cause resentment—resentment that has not heretofore been manifest.

"If the central powers come to despise and hate us for this unneutral position, is there any power on earth that will stay their fury and desperation to suppress these shipments at the source?"

Recalls Earlier Embargo.

Senator Danaher called the senate's attention to a statute enacted 17 years ago which authorizes an arms embargo with respect to a conflict anywhere in the western hemisphere.

"But when there is a European war which might involve our very livelihood and our very continued existence we are asked to repeal that principle," he said.

Senator Tom Connally [D., Tex.], one of the drafters of the administration repealer, said the act referred to "was passed not in the interest of war but in the interest of peace and stability and friendship and neighborliness in the western hemisphere."

"By imposing an embargo?" asked Danaher.

"If necessary, yes," said Connally. "The arms embargo now sought to be repealed, however, has made the United States an ally of Hitler and Stalin," Connally argued.

"Oh, then the senator takes the position that the real purpose of our being here is to get rid of Hitler," said Danaher.

ARMY ANTIAIRCRAFT DIVISION IS FORMED TO PROTECT CANAL

PANAMA CITY, Panama, Oct. 17.—Organization of the first permanent antiaircraft division of the United States army was announced today by Maj. Gen. David L. Stone, commanding the Panama canal department. The move is in line with a general tightening of canal defenses, including organization of the department on a wartime basis.

Into one unit designed to meet any attack on the canal from the air, Gen. Stone said, will be welded all antiaircraft and artillery installations, troops and materials.

Brig. Gen. Sanderford Jarmans has been placed in command of the division.

The defenses will eventually be supplied with all the latest types of antiaircraft equipment, including 800-million candle power searchlights and high velocity guns.

LADY ASTOR HITS ALLOWANCES FOR 'UNWED WIVES'

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Lady Astor protested in the house commons today against granting unmarried women who had been living with soldiers the same allowances as wives.

She asked War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha whether it was true that a woman who had lived with a soldier for six months before his enlistment was eligible for the allowance. Hore-Belisha replied that it was.

"Does the minister think this is conducting a decent married life?" Lady Astor persisted.

"I think it is conductive to decent treatment of the soldier in the circumstances," retorted Hore-Belisha, amid cheers.

Lady Astor hit back: "Doesn't he think it is very difficult for some of these young men, if they know that by living with a woman for six months they can get the same marriage allowance——" The rest of her remarks were drowned out by interruptions and the speaker intervened to close the incident.

PRESIDENT ASKS ACTION TO HELP WAR REFUGEES

May Total 20 Millions, He Warns Parley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—Opening a two day conference of the executive committee of the Intergovernmental Committee of Political Refugees, President Roosevelt today dedicated the body to the problem of resettling 10 or 20 million men, women, and children who may become refugees before the European war ends.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke before representatives of six of the 32 nations coöperating in the move to find homes for refugees. These representatives are to draft recommendations for submission to the next plenary session of all member nations.

President Asks Action.

"The problem involves no one race group—no one religious faith," Mr. Roosevelt said. "It is the problem of all groups and all faiths. It is not enough to indulge in horrified humanitarianism, empty resolutions, golden rhetoric and pious words.

"We must face it actively if the democratic principle based on respect and human dignity is to survive—if world order, which rests on security of the individual, is to be restored."

Mr. Roosevelt recalled that he took the initiative in asking the member governments to coöperate with the United States of America in seeking a long range solution of the refugee problem. He added that since that time the character of the problem has been changed by the war.

Finds Two-Way Problem.

The problem, he insisted, now falls into two categories: First, that of caring for current refugees, which is comparatively small; and, second, the major problem of resettling those millions whose roots will be torn up by the war.

"All we can do," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "is estimate on the reasonable doctrine of chances, that when this ghastly war ends there may be not one million but 10 million or 20 million men, women, and children belonging to many races and many religions, living in many countries and possibly on several continents, who will enter into the wide picture—the problem of human refugees."

The current problem of refugees, according to the President, involves not more than 200,000 or 300,000 persons. He said he was happy to announce that steps have been taken, as a result of the attitude of the Dominican and Philippine governments, to begin actual resettlement of refugees.

The members of the executive committee who met at the White House were: Lord Winterton, committee chairman, and Sir Herbert Emerson, secretary, both Britons; and diplomatic representatives of France, Argentina, Brazil, and The Netherlands.

DEMANDS COSTA RICA PUNISH PAPER FOR CARTOONING HITLER

SAN JOSÉ, Costa Rica, Oct. 17.—Richard Von Heynitz, German chargé d'affaires, has asked the government to punish Semana Comica, a humorous weekly, for publishing a caricature of Adolf Hitler.

This was described as the second attempt of the Nazis to invade Costa Rica's freedom of the press. The first came from the local Nazi colony's boycott of the newspaper Diario de Costa Rica because it would not submit to their control of its news columns.

Heynitz, in a letter to the foreign secretary, demanded punishment by the courts of the director of the weekly for publishing a caricature of Hitler in convict garb. The title of the picture read: "Capture this bandit and dangerous assassin whose capture has been impossible."

Heynitz charged that such publications can disturb friendly relations between Germany and Costa Rica and might be serious and dangerous. The government has referred the matter to the federal prosecutor. Costa Rica's "guardian law" provides penalties for the publication of anything derogatory to the head of a friendly foreign government.

SOVIET ASSURES ROOSEVELT THAT FINLAND IS SAFE

Independence Recognized, Kalinin Replies.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17 (AP).—President M. Kalinin of soviet Russia has informed President Roosevelt that present negotiations between the soviet and Finnish governments are being conducted in conformity with principles which recognize the state independence of Finland.

The White House made public a dispatch to President Roosevelt from the soviet president, replying to a note in which the American chief executive on last Wednesday called attention to the "long-standing and deep friendship which exists between the United States and Finland."

Expresses Hope for Peace.

Mr. Roosevelt, in his message had expressed "the earnest hope that the Soviet Union will make no demands on Finland which are inconsistent with the maintenance and development of amicable and peaceful relations."

In reply, Kalinin asserted that he considered it appropriate to remind Mr. Roosevelt that the "state independence of the Finnish republic was recognized by the free will of the soviet government on Dec. 31, 1916, and that the sovereignty of Finland was guaranteed to it by the peace treaty of Oct. 14, 1920, between the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic and Finland."

Says Principles Upheld.

The soviet president added:

"By the above mentioned acts of the soviet government the basic principles of the reciprocal relations between the Soviet Union and Finland were defined. The present negotiations between the soviet governmnt and the government of Finland are also being conducted in conformity with these principles."

The sole aim of negotiations between the two nations, Kalinin asserted, is the consolidation of their reciprocal relations and "a strengthening of friendly coöperation between both countries in the cause of guaranteeing the security of the Soviet Union and Finland."

WE ARE CUSTOMERS, TOO (3)

By CALEB

MANY "human angles", always interesting and not infrequently surprising, enliven the outsider's visit to our resident buying offices in New York City.

Oldest salesman still punctually calling at this Eastern purchasing headquarters, for example, is the dapper, brisk little gentleman I met there recently, whose business card reads: M. Park Parker, 19 W. 34th St., New York. His specialty is cotton goods; and since 1884 he has, as he puts it, "Always made Field's my first port of call." Eighty-five years young, with a crisp speech, and eyes belligerently bright behind the glasses on his determined nose, he boasts of his more than two hundred Atlantic crossings, and the vivid personal memories he still carries of Marshall Field and many an early-day Field executive.

Another sales representative whose presence was regularly welcomed by our New York staff for upward of a half-century, closed her career last Spring. In November she would have reached her hundred-and-third birthday—and mention of Miss Annie Emery instantly elicits from our Eastern buyers a dramatic story of "The Woman Wins" that has few equals. For Annie Emery entered business at 57, distinguished herself as a designer and creator of infants' wear with a prominent New York store; and was long a saleswoman of spirited ability when most members of her sex would have been invalided, retired, or non-existent.

As for the stability of our own personnel in the New York resident buying office, its record speaks volumes—both for esprit de corps, and for the individual service longevity of many who have been veterans on the staff for thirty, thirty-five and forty years.

It is this length-of-service factor—coupled with intimate personal acquaintance with every maker, seller or importer of goods of whatever character in the entire labyrinth of New York's metropolitan market—that, in our experience contributes invaluably to the final competence of Field service rendered to the Field customer . . .

Being customers ourselves—buying, needless to say, with a degree of skill, discrimination, and knowledge of materials and values no layman could possibly possess—we thus qualify in thorough understanding of our own customership. More than anything else, such experience enables us to invest every transaction with factors as necessary to mutual satisfaction as are right design, material and price.

Finns' Plight to Be Topic at Stockholm Parley.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 17 (AP).—The heads of four northern states whose neutrality has been menaced by swift developments and complications in the European conflict will meet here tomorrow and talk things over.

Emphasizing the importance of this meeting between Kings Haakon VII. of Norway, Christian X. of Denmark, Gustav V. of Sweden, and President Kyosti Kallio of Finland was the situation in Finland, where residents were leaving cities and troops were held in readiness in the face of soviet Russian demands, as yet unpublished.

Despite the urgency of Finland's plight, however, official quarters here were discouraging the idea that tomorrow's meeting had any military significance. It asserted that the heads of the four northern countries and their foreign ministers were gathering to discuss neutrality problems arising from the war, but that the deliberations would be dominated by "the lodestar of neutrality."

Urges Peace Gesture.

On the eve of the conference the Swedish National League of Youth submitted to King Gustav a petition urging him to invite the heads of the great powers to "take the initiative" which would bring those at war to a conference table.

The League of Youth is one of the smallest political parties in Sweden, but lately has been increasing in strength. It is ultraconservative.

Emphasizing the character of tomorrow's conference, there was complete lack of military pomp and display in the welcoming ceremony planned for the visitors.

King Gustav will go to the airport early tomorrow to meet President Kallio, then to the railway station to meet Kings Christian and Haakon. In the evening the three kings and President Kallio will attend a special service in the Storkyran—royal church—and at 9:45 p. m. massed choirs will march to the festively illuminated palace for the city's welcome in song.

Although there will be no military parade, the thought of the war's menace to all northern countries—not only to Finland—was constantly in the background.

Discount Hedin's Visit.

Precautionary preparations were announced for an exodus of Stockholm's children. The plans were purely precautionary, similar to those already announced for Copenhagen.

Reports from Berlin that the Swedish explorer, Sven Hedin, had conferred with Adolf Hitler were described of no official significance. Hedin was a frequent visitor to Germany, it was said, but his relations with German leaders were purely personal. A suggestion that his visit was sponsored by King Gustav was emphatically rejected, as were suggestions that the northern countries' conference might pave the way for a peace appeal to belligerent powers.

Unofficially, however, such suggestions were voiced by the newspapers Aftonbladet in Stockholm and Aftenposten in Oslo.

In the absence of any definite description of Moscow's demands on Finland, responsible commentators here were venturing no predictions as to what Sweden would do in case Finland had to fight. Many persons remembered, however, that during Finland's fight for independence in 1918, when Sweden was officially neutral, many Swedes went to Finland to help fight against the bolsheviks.

Kings to Meet

CUSTOMER SHOT WHEN POLICEMAN BATTLES BANDIT

One customer was shot and six others escaped injury by dropping to the floor shortly after midnight today in a gun battle between a police detective and a bandit in a liquor store at 3212 Harrison street. The bandit escaped with $4. The detective's right ear was cut by glass splinters from shattered wine and whisky bottles.

The detective, Arthur March of the Fillmore street station, was off duty and on his way home. He had purchased half a gallon of beer from the proprietor, Antonio Torretta, when the holdup man entered.

The bandit was herding the group into a rear room when March drew his revolver and opened fire. The bandit replied with 12 shots from two guns. March fired five shots. Joachim Catalano, 64 years old, 3211 Harrison street, came in as the exchange began and was shot in the right arm and right hand.

The bandit fled after emptying his guns. Catalano was taken to Garfield Park hospital. Among the bottles broken by bullets was that containing March's beer.

LITHUANIA JAILS HUNDREDS; WARS ON 'TROTZKYISTS'

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 17.—The Lithuanian government has taken strong action against persons seeking to promote demonstrations against annexation of that portion of Vilna [Wilno] province assigned to Lithuania by Russia. Vilna, historic Lithuanian capital seized by Poland years ago, was occupied by the soviets in their recent invasion of Poland.

Among several hundred persons arrested in the last 24 hours were a number of communists, 26 of whom today were sentenced to serve 12 months at hard labor in a concentration camp. In order not to offend her new ally, Russia, the Lithuanian press described the prisoners as Trotzkyists, a term which covers a wide variety of offenses in Russia.

Latvian police are dealing equally severely with those attempting to utilize the changed status of the Baltic for political propaganda. Here the agitators will be charged with political hooliganism.

Two Armies March Today.

Tomorrow two armies will begin to move in the Baltic states. Lithuanian troops will advance into Vilna to occupy territory evacuated by the Russians.

In Estonia, soviet troops will cross the frontier at two points, Narwa [Ivangorod] and Isborsk, near Pskov. Arrangements have been made to quarter the troops in government buildings during their march toward the bases which the red army has obtained from the Estonians.

The inhabitants, on the suggestion of Moscow, have been requested to keep 100 yards away from roads which the Russians will use. Fraternizing with the soldiers is forbidden.

The Lithuanian government has made an energetic request to the Russian government for the return of three important settlements in the Vilna district. They are Swieciany, Sajny, and Punsk.

Collect $250,000,000 Fund.

Representatives of the American joint distribution committee, which has been promoting Jewish emigration from Europe to America and organizing relief among needy Jews in Europe, arrived in Kaunas to investigate means of providing relief for 250,000 Jews who have come under Lithuanian sovereignty.

The representatives said they have collected more than $250,000,000 during the last 10 years to save Jews from the results of spreading anti-Semitism in Europe and to assist, where possible, their migration.

Lithuania, with a population of only 2,500,000, suddenly has been presented by Russia with a relief problem of such dimensions that the government is working day and night on plans to feed and house an additional 500,000 population. Of that number less than 100,000 are Luthanians.

CENSORS CREATE HOTBEDS OF SPIES IN BALTIC STATES

British Seek to Rule All News at Riga.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERGEN, Norway, Oct. 17.—The pressure of censorship applied by England, France, Germany, and Russia today is making the Baltic states hotbeds of espionage and provocations.

Riga, Kaunas, Tallinn, and Helsingfors, capitals of Europe's four northern republics, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, and Finland, respectively, are the centers of this pressure.

In Riga, where the introduction of wartime censorship has been held up by President Karlis Ulmanis, British agents are making every attempt to monopolize and censor all mail and news reports sent to America. It has been reported that at least one British official there had received so much money to spend for this purpose that he has not yet determined how to distribute it.

Pictures Barred to Newsreels.

Efforts are being made to bottle up correspondents, and newsreel correspondents have found it virtually impossible to get the pictures they want. An indication of this was the refusal of permission to talk to or photograph the thousands of Polish refugees who streamed across the frontier into Lithuania during the German operations in Poland.

Germany, France, and Britain have sent espionage workers into all the Baltic states, it is reported, to pose as correspondents. Their chief job, however, it is said, is to spy upon and influence the inhabitants.

As a result of the British activities, some Baltic diplomats today call England an enemy of the Scandinavian and Baltic countries. The blockade of Germany has cut off their supplies of cotton and these countries face serious labor trouble. They fear, consequently, increased activities by bolshevik agitators. The British course is looked upon as an attempt to cause difficulties.

Mail Delayed a Month.

British censorship also has been active in the case of mail from England for the northern nations. It is reported that some letters have been held up for a month or more, apparently in the hope that any military information they might contain would be useless when they arrived.

This, together with other British activities, has created the impression that the Baltic states favor a German victory in the present war. It is felt that should England win, the countries of northern Europe would be betrayed to bolshevism.

France Frees Two Classes of Older Mobilized Men

PARIS, Oct. 17.—To assist reorganization of the nation's economic life, Premier Edouard Daladier today released two classes of older men who were mobilized. Men and noncommissioned officers of the classes of 1909 and 1910 will be the first to benefit. They will return to their homes beginning Oct. 20. Many reserve officers whose services are not necessary at present, will be released.

A TRIBUNE story said Martin Strba, who died in Mount Sinai hospital, had been struck by an automobile driven by Alvin Goldberg when Goldberg's car swerved after colliding with one driven by Abe Brown. Testimony at the inquest showed that it was Brown's automobile which hit Strba. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death, exonerating both drivers. Goldberg's address was given in the story as 2431 Mango avenue. He lives at 57 North Lotus avenue. The original story was written from police records.

A YOUNG CITIZEN ADVISES HORNER ON THANKSGIVING

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 17 (AP).—Gov. Henry Horner was chuckling today about a letter from a boy, 11 years old, who disagreed with President Roosevelt about the Nov. 23 Thanksgiving date.

The boy—Gov. Horner didn't disclose his name—wrote that his birthday was Nov. 30 and recalled that Nov. 30 also is the governor's birthday.

"Let's stick together on that date, governor, and celebrate Thanksgiving on our birthdays," the boy wrote.

"I was sorry I couldn't go along with him," remarked the governor, who has announced he would proclaim Illinois' Thanksgiving on the date specified by the President.

NAVAL SHAKEUP BILL DRAWN TO END BLUNDERING

Errors in Ship Building Waste Millions.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—The proposed reorganization of the navy department to end the recurrent scandals of ineffiency involving defects in the construction of warships is the most sweeping in the history of the government.

This was disclosed today when THE TRIBUNE correspondent obtained a copy of the confidential committee print of the measure drafted by Congressman Carl Vinson [D., Ga.], chairman of the house committee on naval affairs, and Representative Melvin J. Maas [R., Minn.], ranking minority member.

The bill proposes to junk the existing organization in the department and replace it with a new one designed to simplify administration, concentrate authority and definitely fix responsibility.

Plan Four Divisions.

The activities of the department would be grouped under the four following offices, all responsible to the secretary of the navy:

1. The office of the secretary, having advisory, judicatory, coordinating and inspectional functions.
2. The office of naval operations, having jurisdiction of the organization, maintenance and operation of the naval forces afloat, the air forces, naval districts and operating bases.
3. The office of naval material, having jurisdiction of the design and construction of warships, aircraft, ordnance, and other equipment.
4. The office of the United States marine corps, responsible for the recruiting, training, equipment and employment of the marines.

Seeks to End Chaos.

The bill lays down the principles to be followed in the reorganization which are intended to end the chaotic conditions in the department responsible for engineering and other construction blunders that are causing serious delays in the completion of warcraft and costing the taxpayers millions of dollars.

Conditions to which are attributed the latest scandal involving construction mistakes resulting in the production of topheavy destroyers would be obviated by the reorganization proposal to bring all activities pertaining to the building of warcraft under the office of naval material. At present these activities are distributed among the bureaus of construction and repair, of engineering, and of ordnance.

The designs for the Anderson class of destroyers, now found to be topheavy, were turned out under the supervision of the engineering bureau. The construction of the ships was conducted by the bureau of construction and repair, which also has a designing division independent of the engineering bureau.

Asks Quiz Into Errors.

When the first two of the Anderson destroyers launched were found to be top-heavy, Rear Admiral William G. Dubose, chief of the bureau of construction and repair, wrote a letter to Acting Secretary Charles Edison, asking an inquiry to determine the responsibility for the defect and how to obviate recurrence of such errors. The construction of the ships had been begun prior to the Dubose administration of the bureau.

It already had been established the defect was due to a disregard of the design. From 80 to 100 tons had been added to the weight of each ship, thus raising the center of gravity of the vessel 1 foot above that provided by the design.

Acting Secretary Edison's reply to the admiral's letter dealt entirely with plans to prevent the recurrence of such blunders.

Two Admirals Transferred.

Admiral Dubose was transferred to command of the model basin at Carderock, Md., and Rear Admiral Harold G. Bowen, who was chief of bureau of engineering, was transferred to command of the naval research laboratory, both less important positions than they had held before.

The personnel provisions of the reorganization bill are designed to weed out inefficient officers.

Representative Ralph E. Church [R., Ill.], member of the house naval affairs committee, made public today the text of the letter he addressed yesterday to Chairman Vinson urging immediate action on the reorganization bill.

"It has long been recognized by those familiar with naval matters," wrote Church, "that the cumbersome nature of the department's organization, the lack of proper coördination, with resulting divided authority and red tape, as well as the absence of active civilian authority, have led to innumerable and costly mistakes.

Reorganization Delayed.

"As far back as 1932, at the instigation of Admiral William D. Pratt, then chief of naval operations, and several members of congress, the then secretary of the navy appointed a board to report to him on reorganization, with a view to recommending corrective legislation to the congress. The need was then recognized, but, unfortunately, nothing was done to correct the condition."

Recalling newspaper exposure of "costly delays in our ship construction because of a lack of proper organization coördination in the navy department," the Illinois congressman continued:

"Two battleships, the Washington and North Carolina, are behind schedule in construction. Changes had to be made in the 28 destroyers of the Mahan class because of engineering mistakes."

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

Do you think the St. Charles School for Boys should be walled?

Where Answered.

In the loop.

The Answers.

Miss Adele Jenks, 656 Gordon terrace, secretary—Walls won't solve the problem. There should be more discipline in the school itself. If the officials really wanted to help the boys, they would be less lax in carrying out their duties. Putting up a wall would make the boys more bitter.

Miss Joyce Crawford, 6165 Winthrop avenue, cashier—I think the situation at St. Charles is extremely dangerous. If they put up a wall there would not be so many escapes. The people near the school would feel safer, too. A wall would make the boys realize they must reform.

W. F. Willard, 3749 Kildare avenue, salesman—Yes. A wall—a very high one — ought to be placed around St. Charles. The escapes have been disgraceful. Not only should they get a wall up, but there ought to be a housecleaning of officials, it seems to me.

Louis van der Bathen, 1822 School street, display artist — No, I don't think a wall should be erected around the school. Most of the boys are there for minor offenses, and a wall would give them the feeling they were hardened criminals. To reform them we must treat them like boys.

Miss Wanda Nestman, 7151 Constance avenue, dancer — There has been an appalling number of escapes from St. Charles, but I don't believe a wall would solve things. Actually, I believe a wall would arouse a greater urge to escape. The school is primarily a house of correction, not a real jail.

CALLS MERCHANT MARINE HAVEN OF ALIEN AGITATORS

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 17 (AP).—Capt. Edward C. Holden Jr., New York manager of the United States Protective Insurance agency's safety department, asserted before the national safety congress today that the American merchant marine is infested with "human derelicts, habitual drunkards, alien-minded agitators and sea-lawyers."

"These unhealthy conditions," asserted Capt. Holden, who is chairman of the council's marine section, "are keeping good American boys out of the American merchant marine.

"It also drives patronage away from our vessels during normal times. It is an unsafe situation and should be rectified at once by the government. The American merchant marine should be a credit to the United States and not something for which we have to apologize."

Crew of German Steamship Mutinies in Colombian Port

BOGOTA, Colombia, Oct. 17.—The German crew of the steamer Heligoland, anchored at Puerto Colombia, mutinied yesterday when ordered by the German admiralty to sail for Hamburg. The crew members are reported to fear being sunk by English or French warships. The master of the Heligoland requested the aid of Colombian authorities, who decided the crew could not land in Colombia and would have to sail with ship. It is reported that a German destroyer will accompany the Heligoland through Colombian territorial waters and convoy it to Hamburg.

LABOR DEFENSE BODY DESCRIBED AS COMMUNISTIC

Congressman Chairman Denies Red Rule.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—The house committee on un-American activities today heard evidence termed conclusive by Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.], that the International Labor Defense, an organization headed by Representative Vito Marcantonio, congressman from New York City, is under the control of the communist party.

Representative Marcantonio, member of the American Labor party, appeared before the committee and admitted that many members of the communist party were officials and members of the governing board of the organization which, he said, furnishes legal counsel for "persons deprived of their civil rights."

Marcantonio disclaimed responsibility for acts of the I. L. D. before he became chairman in 1937 and asserted that it did not take orders from Moscow at present.

Denies Being Communist.

The little New York radical said he was not a communist. He engaged in sharp exchanges with Chairman Dies and other members of the committe. He was not a communist himself, he testified, and after much bickering committed himself to the statement that he was against "all dictatorships, including that of Stalin."

Marcantonio was followed on the stand by Ben Gitlow, former executive secretary of the communist party of America and one of the founders of the I. L. D.

"The I. L. D. is the legal defense organization of the communist party," he stated flatly. "It takes orders from the comintern. It serves also as a political propaganda agency for the communists."

Gitlow then named three of the four main officials of the organization and 17 of the 58 members of the governing board as well known and admitted communists. Other board members may be members under aliases, he declared.

Names Known Communists.

Gitlow said that William L. Patterson, vice president; Robert W. Dunn, treasurer, and Anna Damon, executive secretary, were members of the communist party. These three are also members of the governing board.

Gitlow named 14 additional board members as communists. They were William Albertson, Rose Baron, Ben Davis Jr., Jessie Lloyd O'Connor, Leo Gallagher, Jessica Henderson, Angelo Herndon, Rockwell Kent, Robert Minor, Bruce Minton, Harvey O'Connor, Joseph Pass, Lawrence Simpson, and Mrs. Ada Wright.

"Marcantonio is not a communist, so far as I know," Gitlow told the committee.

This is a COLA NUT

MILLIONS of bottles of cola beverages are consumed in America every day. More than 200 different brands of cola drinks are sold throughout the U. S. A. And yet, there are many people who have never seen a cola nut, the extract of which is a flavor-ingredient of cola beverages.

This nut, about the size and shape of a Brazil nut, is so valuable a commodity in the parts of Africa where it is grown that it is even used as a medium of exchange. According to Robert L. Ripley, thirty of them will buy a very handsome wife.

The cultivation, and importation of the extract of this nut is, in itself, an important industry. But the manufacturing and bottling of cola beverages is a greater industry by far.

When you choose a cola drink from the more than 200 brands on the market, you should let your taste decide. We were so sure that Royal Crown had a finer flavor that we tested it against the leaders in the field of cola drinks. Test after test was made in city after city. They were certified tests, sworn to before notaries. And in 9 tests out of 10, Royal Crown was voted tops for taste.

• To the many who say "Royal Crown" whenever they want a cola drink, we record our thanks. To those who have not as yet tasted Royal Crown, we urge a trial. And to those who as yet cannot get Royal Crown in their own communities, we offer the hope that they soon can.

GOERING UNABLE TO HALT HITLER, EX-ENVOY SAYS

Briton Asserts Fuehrer Relied on Ribbentrop.

LONDON, Oct. 17 (AP).—Sir Nevile Henderson's final report on his ambassadorship to Berlin, which was made public tonight in an official white paper, said that he believed Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering "would have preferred a peaceful solution," but that "it was Hitler's decision which alone counted."

Sir Nevile added he believed Joachim von Ribbentrop, foreign minister and former ambassador to London, was regarded by Hitler as "a second Bismarck, a conviction which Ribbentrop probably shared to the full."

Supplementing the extensive blue book which was issued on Sept. 21, tonight's white paper gave Sir Nevile's impressions of the influences which he said led Hitler to war.

War Was Attractive.

On this point Sir Nevile wrote:

"Of the two alternatives the most attractive from the point of view of his growing personal ambitions and those of the clique nearest to him was war.

"It is scarcely credible that he would have acted as he did if bloody war, rather than a bloodless victory, had not seemed a fairer prospect for him. He had always meant to teach the Poles a lesson for what he regarded as their base ingratitude in refusing the general demands which he had made to them in March."

"One of Hitler's greatest drawbacks," said Sir Nevile, "is that, except for two official visits to Italy, he has never travelled abroad. For his knowledge of British mentality he consequently relied on Ribbentrop. . . . If report be true, Ribbentrop gave him consistently false counsels in regard to England.

"Even the most absolute dictator is susceptible to the influence of his surroundings," Sir Nevile continued. "Nevertheless Hitler's decisions, his calculations and his opportunisms were his own.

Respects Military Advisers.

"As Goering once said to me, 'When a decision has to be taken none of us count more than the stones on which we are standing; it is the Fuehrer alone who decides.'

"If anything did count it was the opinion of his military advisers. . . . The army grudged him even a week between Aug. 25 and Sept. 1, which his last attempt to secure British neutrality or at least goodwill had cost it. Yet even so the advice of his soldiers was probably merely cover for the prosecution of Hitler's own plans. His impatience and precipitate action on that last day of August can scarcely have been other than premeditated.

"The Russian pact appeared to give him the advantage which he was seeking and thereafter there was no time to lose if mud were not to be added to Poland's allies.

FALSE TEETH WEARERS
OFTEN WORST BREATH OFFENDERS
Don't let Denture Breath and stains shout "False Teeth"

DENTISTS SAY···USE POLIDENT

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them. This scum holds germs and decay bacteria. It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, a powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor.

Polident makes breath sweeter—plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene.

Long-lasting can only 30¢, any drug store. Money back if not delighted. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere. Hudson Products, Inc., New York, N. Y.

POLIDENT
Cleans, Purifies Without Brushing!
Do this daily: Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes. Rinse—and it's ready to use.

CAVALRY LEARNS WAR IS TRICKY; FOE ELUDES TRAP

Troopers End Second Day of Texas Maneuvers.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Balmorhea, Tex., Oct. 17.—Outnumbered two to one, and virtually surrounded and trapped when the 1st cavalry division's combat problem was halted late yesterday, a White force, represented by the 8th engineer squadron, made a surprise move during the night and escaped.

The White force occupied a hill 12 miles north of Toyahvale thruout yesterday's battle, which was the first problem of a regular army training maneuver which will last two weeks. This force was counted as captured when it was unable to withstand a frontal attack by the 2d brigade of the Blue 1st cavalry division and two regiments of Blue field artillery while the division's 1st brigade executed a flanking movement.

When the division and attached units were bivouacked for the night, only a narrow valley exit was left unguarded. Maj. Henry Hutchins Jr., the White commander, marched his squadron out thru this valley and retired to the northeast to await his time to return to the combat.

Defensive Position Chosen.

Shortly after breakfast this morning aerial observers of the 22d observation squadron, which is attached to the division for the maneuver, reported the approach of a strong White force from the northwest. This force was purely hypothetical, but served to present the problem of the day.

Brig. Gen. Kenyon A. Joyce, commander of the 1st cavalry division, and his staff studied their maps, noted the terrain and chose a hill eight miles west of the bivouac for a defensive position.

While camp was being broken and horses saddled, Gen. Joyce sent out Troop A, 1st reconnaissance squadron, a mechanized unit equipped with scout and combat cars, to make contact with the enemy and delay his advance until the four regiments of cavalry and two of field artillery could get into defensive position on the hill.

Troops Find Rough Terrain.

Extremely rough terrain was encountered in the march to the new position, but the cavalry and artillery covered the distance in an hour and a half. Arriving on the hill, the troops started to entrench immediately under protection of two squadrons which were sent 2 miles farther northwest.

The armored cars then were ordered to circle the hill to the east and take up a position as division reserve troops.

At 9:40 a. m. Maj. Hutchins' engineer squadron returned to the combat in an attack on the covering squadrons. The umpires assumed, for purposes of the problem, that he had two additional full regiments of cavalry under his command, and he was credited with having driven off the covering force. This permitted him to engage the main force of the entrenched Blues.

Commander Orders Withdrawal.

After two hours of firing the umpires decided the attackers were unable to dislodge the Blues. Ordinarily the problem for the day would have been ended at this point, but Gen. Joyce took advantage of the opposing forces' position and ordered the Blue forces to attempt a withdrawal. This is considered a difficult task in the daytime, especially with horse cavalry.

Leaving two squadrons on the firing line atop the hill, the two brigades formed their columns and started to the rear. Communications functioned especially well, and the Blue forces returned to the position they had occupied last night. The day's problem was completed at 1:30 p. m.

Long night marches were ordered for both brigades tonight. The 1st brigade was sent 30 miles southward from Toyahvale and the 2d was ordered to move 30 miles to the north. The troops will remain in bivouac all day tomorrow in preparation for the next problem, which will require two days and two nights of hard, rough going over country and roads covered with three inches of dust. The problem will be completed Friday night, and the troops will rest on Saturday.

HURT BY SUBURBAN TRAIN.

WISCONSIN GUARD RETIRES MEDICAL OFFICERS OF 50

Orders Enlistment of Young Doctors.

BY FRED GRAFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 17.—The retirement of all medical officers over 50 years of age in the Wisconsin National Guard was announced by Adjt. Gen. Ralph H. Immell today. The order was issued following a conference with Gov. Julius P. Heil and Col. William F. Lorenz, chief surgeon.

The action was decided upon after consultations with Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area.

Gen. Immell also announced that immediate steps are being taken to commission a number of young medical and dental officers for service in the 135th medical regiment, the 64th infantry brigade, the 57th field artillery brigade, the 53d cavalry brigade, and the 107th quarter master regiment of the Wisconsin National Guard.

Changes Called Routine.

Gen. Immell emphasized that the promotions, changes and retirements are "entirely routine and not predicated upon any expected call to service." He said action similar to this is being planned in the infantry and other branches of the service.

"It is proposed shortly, except in unusual cases and until further announcement, to limit officers of the rank of colonel in the medical corps to 50 years of age, lieutenant colonels to 47 years, majors to 43 years, and captains to 35 years. This will mean the induction of a number of medical officers in the rank of lieutenant, whose ages will be limited to between 26 and 33 years, inclusive," the order stated.

Openings for Young Doctors.

As a result of the changes, which will be made systematically over a period of several months, all doctors and dentists, under 31 years of age, living in Wisconsin, and residing in communities in which units having vacancies exist, will have an opportunity for commissions.

MAJ. GEN. KEEHN SURPRISED.

Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, commander of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard, expressed surprise last night at the retirement of Wisconsin guard medical officers more than 50 years old. No orders have been received here for similar action, he said, nor has he any intimation of such instructions.

GENERAL CALLS PRESENT ARMY PLAN ADEQUATE

Explains Recruiting and New Divisions.

The United States for the first time in its history will have an army adequate for its position in the family of nations if recommendations for increasing its strength are granted by congress, said Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford yesterday. Gen. Ford, who commands the Second army and the Sixth Corps area, addressed the Medinah Shrine Luncheon club at the Hotel Sherman.

The present recruiting campaign, he said, was in no way connected with war, but was undertaken to bring the army nearer the strength authorized by the national defense act of 1920. This act provides for a regular army of 280,000 and a national guard of 423,000, regarded as a force sufficient to meet initial requirements in an emergency.

Start Recruiting Here.

Already, Gen. Ford said, congress has provided funds for an increase of the regular army to 227,000 men and of the National Guard to 235,000. Enlistment is now taking place. Five parties are scheduled to leave Fort Sheridan this morning to recruit for ten days in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin. Three thousand young men are wanted by the army in Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, said Gen. Ford.

New appropriations expected to be urged in the next session of congress will provide for an increase of the regular army to the full 280,000, as well as for a national guard of 335,000.

Describes New Division.

Gen. Ford described the new streamlined divisions of the army, five of which will be formed and fully equipped, he said, by the end of the year.

The latest description of the streamlined division gives it a combat force of 3 infantry regiments of 1,739 men each, and 2 artillery regiments—one comprising nine batteries of 77 mm. guns [4 guns to a battery], and the other comprising four batteries of 155 mm. howitzers [4 guns to a battery]. Each infantry regiment will be armed with 500 of the new Garand automatic rifles, 757 45-caliber Colt automatic pistols, 48 30-caliber machine guns, 6 50-caliber machine guns, 27 60-mm. mortars, 6 81-mm. mortars, and 6 37-mm. antitank guns.

ELECTRICIAN DIES IN HOME.

George C. Carnright, an electrician, died of a heart attack yesterday in his home at 1109 Monroe street, Evanston. He was 69 years old.

German diplomats have signed an agreement with the Estonian government for repatriation of German minorities in that country. The pact is in accordance with Hitler's plan to return people of German extraction to the reich. Estonian Germans will be given three months in which to leave Estonia, and will be permitted to take with them household goods, automobiles, jewelry, tools necessary for their trade, and 50 Estonian kroons [about $12.50]. Cash in excess of this sum will be deposited to their credit. It is estimated that about 15,000 persons of German blood live in Estonia.

Suicide squads of French machine gunners on heights overlooking the Moselle river gave their lives to retard the smashing advance of German troops. The machine gunners, most of them peasants or workers in their late twenties, had been waiting for days in small outposts to play their tragic rôles. When the German advance began the poilus remained at their guns, delaying the drive until they were completely surrounded and wiped out.

Thruout the Nazi air raid on British warships in the Firth of Forth, passenger trains continued to cross the high bridge between Rosyth, a leading naval base, and the south bank of the firth. Passengers saw a chilling closeup of war as bombs from the enemy planes exploded in huge waterspouts near the bridge.

HUEY LONG'S OLD VOTE MACHINE IS HIT ON 4 FRONTS

Court Reverses Followed by Third Suicide.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Oct. 17.—Blows rained upon the Louisiana political machine today. The developments:

1. A federal grand jury in New Orleans indicted former Gov. Richard W. Leche on charges of mail fraud, also naming W. G. Rankin, ousted state conservation commissioner; Abraham Shushan, former president of the levee board, and three other politicians.

2. A federal grand jury at Monroe, La., indicted Lorris M. Wimberly, speaker of the Louisiana house of representatives, and five other political figures on charges of mail fraud.

3. A criminal court investigation into acts of District Attorney Charles A. Byrne of Orleans parish uncovered evidence that members of a grand jury investigating political corruption had been intimidated.

4. Judge Harold A. Moise in the Civil District court denied Byrne's appeal from a recent order naming a special prosecutor to institute impeachment proceedings against him.

Tax Expert Kills Himself.

In addition, Lawrence A. Merrigan, tax expert and prominent in political circles, shot himself to death in the early afternoon in his suite at a downtown hotel.

Merrigan's suicide was the third since the Louisiana scandals became public. The first was George Heidelberg, director of the Youth administration program at Louisiana State university. The second was Dr. J. A. Shaw, director of the minerals division of the department of conservation, who shot and killed himself in his home here after appearing before a federal judge in Dallas, Tex., in connection with the removal hearing of Freeman W. Burford, indicted previously with former Gov. Leche and Seymour Weiss in a "hot oil" deal.

An income tax lien was filed this morning in federal court against Merrigan for an alleged deficiency on his 1938 income tax return.

Newspapers Set Off Quiz.

Set off by newspaper investigations, the exposé of dishonesty in public office broke in the face of Louisiana's taxpayers on June 25 when Leche resigned the governorship, under pressure, and Dr. James Monroe Smith, oft indicted president of L. S. U., fled to Canada.

Next day Gov. Earl K. Long took office and attempted to carry the shattered parts of the administration machine thru the inquisitorial fire of a dozen parish [county] and two federal grand juries.

Today's indictment against Leche is the second on which he must face a United States court.

Government officials, under O. John Rogge, assistant United States attorney general, indicated that the present case is stronger than the hot oil case developed during the summer against the former governor.

$12,000 Yacht Involved.

Today's indictment is based upon the gift to Leche of a $12,000 yacht, paid for by state conservation department funds. The mails were used in the purchase.

Leche and Rankin are said to have ordered employés of the department of conservation to operate the governor's boat while these employés were on the pay roll of the department of conservation.

Indicted with the former governor on four counts was George Caldwell, former superintendent of construction at Louisiana State university, and two associates, Carl R. Deen and H. J. Albert.

The government's case against Caldwell, Deen, and Albert charges diversion of WPA employés and materials and kickbacks from contractors.

Alleged Conspiracy Told.

It alleges that Caldwell was construction superintendent at the university and that Deen and Albert were engaged in the plastering business in Baton Rouge; that the three conspired so that Albert and Deen obtained the contracts for all plastering work on L. S. U. construction jobs; that Caldwell would supply WPA labor and materials, and that Albert and Deen would kick back to Caldwell various sums of money.

The indictments against Shushan accuse him of mail fraud in connection with the $500,000 refunding operations of the levee board.

The federal indictments at Monroe named, in addition to Speaker Wimberly, his father, District Judge J. Rush Wimberly; a brother, J. Rush Wimberly Jr.; J. S. Williams, secretary of the Bienville parish board of police jurors [county commissioners]; State Senator M. E. Woodward, and Mayor R. L. William of Arcadia.

They are charged with using the mails to defraud in connection with a $40,000 purchase of road machinery.

The Criminal court investigation into the official acts of Byrne was overshadowed by other events of the day. It did bring out, however, that Hugh Quarles, a member of the parish grand jury, was threatened and advised not to look into dual pay rolls and other irregularities. The jurors have charged Byrne blocked their investigations.

At about the same time Byrne lost a round in his fight to escape impeachment. The ruling of Judge Moise means that action to remove him will go forward in the Civil District court, probably this week.

Face Charges

YOUNG SLAYER'S RETRIAL MOTION IS TURNED DOWN

Fort Morgan, Colo., Oct. 17 (AP).—District Judge Arlington Taylor denied today a second new trial motion for Ellsworth E. Medberry, 22 years old, Wisconsin hitch-hiker sentenced to life imprisonment for slaying a soap salesman.

The motion was based on Medberry's contention that John T. Gray, Colorado Springs salesman, was shot and killed when Medberry resisted improper advances which he attributed to Gray. Samuel Chutkow and T. E. Munson, trial attorneys for the Fond du Lac, Wis., defendant, offered no evidence of this nature in the trial at which Medberry was convicted of first degree murder last June 24 at Akron.

Attorney John E. O'Brien of Fond du Lac today offered an affidavit by Medberry asserting Gray several times made improper proposals to him after Gray had picked him up on a highway last March 10. In his ruling, Judge Taylor complimented Chutkow for rejecting the testimony because he questioned its veracity.

FIREMEN RESCUE FIVE TRAPPED IN BURNING FLATS

Five persons were rescued by firemen on ladders early today when they were trapped by flames and smoke in an apartment building at 2239½ Lincoln avenue. The fire started in the basement and ate its way up stairways to the third floor, filling the building with dense smoke.

Dr. J. W. Twente, 40 years old, and his wife, Emily, were rescued by Hook and Ladder No. 44. He had been overcome with smoke on the second floor and was unconscious when rescued. His wife suffered lacerations. Both were taken to Henrotin hospital. Hook and Ladder No. 10 carried Charles Loeland, his wife, Sadie, and son, Arthur, 16, uninjured from the third floor where they were cut off by smoke and flames. Chief Thomas Cody of the 3d battalion estimated the damage at $400. Six families were driven out by the fire.

TWO PAROLEES CAUGHT AS THEY RETURN TO CRIME

Seized in 10 Minutes by Radio Squad.

Two gunmen whom the state turned loose on parole held up a grocery at 345 East 75th street yesterday. They threatened Manager E. W. Pollock and Miss Bertha Koelikamp, a clerk, and took $34 from the till. But as the gunmen fled in a stolen car Pollock notified the police. One bandit had been on parole 11 months; the other only 3 months.

A radio alarm put Policemen Spencer Samuels and Norman Ade of New City station on the trail. They captured the robbers 10 minutes later.

Both in Joliet Prison.

One is Matt Norton, alias Martin Newton, who was a cook while he was in Joliet penitentiary. The other is William Stewart, who was a convict mechanic in the same prison.

Norton was sent to the penitentiary July 17, 1933, for 39 Chicago chain store holdups. The parole board granted him freedom last Nov. 29.

Stewart was indicted for five robberies, convicted, and sent to prison Sept. 20, 1932. Police said he had taken part in 50 robberies. The parole board freed him July 18.

The men, avowed prison pals, said they met yesterday in a North Clark street saloon. They went out to work at their old trade of robbery.

Riding in Stolen Car.

The car in which they rode had been stolen Oct. 5 from Thomas Calder of 4223 North Ashland avenue.

The parolees insisted that yesterday was the first time they had met since they left prison. But Detective James Dunn said they answered the description of two bandits who have been robbing chain groceries since July, the month Stewart was freed.

JURY RACKETEER GETS 4 MONTHS IN THEFT OF PEN

Harry Schoenfield, 54 years old, 676 North Clark street, who posed as a deputy sheriff to levy tribute on business men who wished to avoid a fake call to jury duty, was sentenced to four months in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Stephen Adamowski for the larceny of a fountain pen. He walked off with the pen during a call on Ray M. York, 111 W. Monroe street. Schoenfield's sister, Mrs. Bessie McShane, a policewoman, asked that he be sent to psychopathic hospital, saying he "does these crazy things every once in a while." Schoenfield's police record showed he had been doing them for 35 years.

Gets 390 Day Jail Sentence for Punch at a Policeman

One punch at a policeman equals 390 days in jail. Andrew Harris, 19 years old, 5031 Indianapolis boulevard, East Chicago, learned this bit of arithmetic before City Judge Thomas W. Callahan in East Chicago yesterday. Policeman Peter Baum wasn't downed by the punch, either, when he ejected Harris from a dance hall Saturday.

A Burglar Gets a Pair of Unpatched Trousers

A pair of pants without patches was all that a burglar sought in the Double L Laundry at 1525 Madison street, Gary. Anyway, that's all that was missing when Arthur Gould, the manager, surveyed the clothes-strewn premises yesterday morning. He found the burglar's old torn pants.

90 DEADLY HOURS OF WINTER

. . . wiped out by OIL-PLATING your engine now

It may be hard indeed to believe that a common thing like starting your engine in Winter can cripple it badly. All the ragged slow starting that sticks in your mind might still not loom large until you figure that it takes only 6 or 8 daily cold starts, averaging little more than 5 minutes each, to give your engine 90 hours of Winter's worst . . . Or else today give your engine OIL-PLATING!

When patented Conoco Germ Processed oil goes in to give your engine OIL-PLATING, the deadliest 90 hours of Winter are out!

How do you know? . . . Just take 90 moments to consider OIL-PLATING vs. oils that can only "flow fast." Such oils, whenever you stop the engine, go flowing down off the working parts. And OIL-PLATING does NOT. The action of the Germ Process fastens OIL-PLATING lastingly, all the way up to the cylinder head. OIL-PLATING fastens as firmly as the chrome-plating on the bumpers.

The bumpers don't lose their protective chrome-plating while you've parked at a Winter night's party or near your Winter day's work. Neither do the engine parts lose their protective OIL-PLATING. Before you're even tucking in your scarf your engine is ready-lubricated to roll right over and live! Then your battery lives, too. And talk about OIL-PLATING staying up lastingly; so does your oil-level. Change today to Your Mileage Merchant's for your correct Winter grade of Conoco Germ Processed oil. Continental Oil Company

POLICEMAN FORD BLAMES COMA IN TAVERN SLAYING

But Witness Tells Jury He Was 'Good and Drunk.'

Policeman Walter J. Ford, who is on trial for manslaughter before Judge John A. Sbarbaro of the Criminal court for the fatal shooting of Michael Wujs, a tavern owner, testified yesterday that he was suffering from a severe diabetic coma at the time of the slaying.

Ford took the witness stand in his own defense late in the afternoon to testify that he has suffered from diabetes all his seventeen years on the police force. He told the jury of eight men and four women that he remembers nothing that happened on the night of Aug. 1, when a bullet from his service revolver killed Wujs in the latter's tavern at 4148 Division street.

Called Drunk by Witness.

Earlier Ford heard himself described by a state witness as "good and drunk" the night of the slaying. The witness, David C. Goold, 70 years old, 1055 North Keeler avenue, was the first witness placed on the stand yesterday by Irwin Clorfene, assistant state's attorney.

Goold related how he walked into the tavern to find Ford struggling on the floor with James Goold, the witness' son. Goold said he pulled his son to his feet and separated him from the policeman.

"Ford had had plenty to drink," the elder Goold said. "My son told Ford, who was in uniform, to park his gun. The next thing we heard was a crash, like a gun being slammed on the bar, then a shot. Wujs dropped to the floor, dying."

Accident Defense Hit.

A flurry was caused in the courtroom a few minutes later after Joseph Wilimovsky, coroner's ballistic expert and a witness for the state, testified that Ford's revolver had a positive safety device and could not have been discharged accidentally by being dropped on the bar. The defense claims the shooting occurred accidentally. George M. Crane, counsel for Ford, filled the weapon with bullets and invited Wilimovsky to rap it against a small table near the witness stand. The latter demurred.

Ford testified that he suffered from diabetic seizures regularly. His wife, Mae, also told the jury he was subject to diabetic attacks.

Earlier six policemen testified that Ford was intoxicated for several hours after the shooting. Capt. Harry J. O'Connell of the North avenue station testified that Ford had been of good character and sobriety. Policeman Patrick A. Condon testified he found Ford in a diabetic coma once in 1932 and took him to county hospital.

IDENTIFY BANDIT AS TRIGGER MAN IN TAVERN KILLING

Victor Wnukowski, 24 years old, a former Bridewell inmate, was identified yesterday as the quick triggered gunman who shot and killed Peter Petersen, 64, last Thursday during the robbery of a tavern at 1859 North Washtenaw avenue. North avenue police, who seized Wnukowski Monday in his home at 1833 Milwaukee avenue, said he has confessed the killing.

In the presence of Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan and Capt. Harry J. O'Connell, Joseph Zamiszka pointed out Wnukowski as the killer. Zamiszka owns the tavern. Police said two other men accused of participating in the crime also have named Wnukowski as the man who fired the fatal shots. They are Henry Drewek, 22, of 848 North Winchester avenue, and Frank Michalowski, 25, of 1234 Bosworth avenue.

Wnukowski, Michalowski, and Drewek were also identified in 12 robberies of gasoline stations and taverns on the northwest side in recent months.

JOHN M. MINNEC SURRENDERS FOR FOUR YEAR TERM

John M. Minnec, Berwyn insurance man who was convicted on June 8 of using the mails in a fraudulent insurance scheme, surrendered yesterday to begin serving a four year prison sentence. His surrender came a few minutes before legal action was taken to forfeit the $10,000 bond under which he was at liberty.

John M. Minnec.

Minnec recently was denied a United States Supreme court review of his conviction, and he was ordered to surrender last Saturday at the United States marshal's office in the federal building. When he failed to appear, notice of the forfeiture action was served on Paul Salvo, whose two story brick building at 7041 Addison street was scheduled for Minnec's bond.

Yesterday Assistant United States Attorney Roy D. Keehn Jr. was waiting in the Circuit Court of Appeals to present the petition for a forefeiture when Minnec gave himself up.

GALLOGLY OPPOSES EXTRADITION IN PLEA BEFORE GOV. O'DANIEL

Austin, Tex., Oct. 17 (AP).—Richard Gray Gallogly was pictured as the victim of brutal treatment by guards in defense affidavits presented to Gov. Lee O'Daniel at an extradition hearing today, but Georgia officials countered with the contention he was given unusual privileges, including a visit to a night club. Gallogly, a former Oglethorpe college student convicted of murder eleven years ago, escaped from Georgia prison authorities recently and fled to Texas. Ellis Arnall, attorney general of Georgia, presented affidavits that the prisoner bragged of killings and often was intoxicated while in prison camp. Testimony was concluded and Gov. O'Daniel said he will give a decision tomorrow.

Mrs. Pauline Raab Wins a Divorce from Slayer

Mrs. Pauline Raab, 32 years old, was awarded a divorce yesterday on the ground that her husband, William F. Raab, has been convicted of a felony. Mrs. Raab lives at 625 Belmont avenue. She told Judge Oscar F. Nelson that Raab was sentenced last November to 21 years in prison for the murder of Mrs. Marie Lemont. Raab strangled Mrs. Lemont in his room at the Lorraine hotel, 411 South Wabash avenue.

BLAMES RELIEF CRISIS ON HOPKINS AND ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins, secretary of commerce and former head of the Work Projects administration, were criticized for existing relief conditions last night by Miss Edith Abbott, dean of the school of social service administration at the University of Chicago. Miss Abbott spoke in the Knickerbocker hotel at the opening of the 44th annual session of the Illinois Conference on Social Welfare, which she heads.

The President and Secretary Hopkins were assailed for "ending this business of relief" in 1935, when federal contributions to direct relief were withdrawn and the WPA established.

"The WPA was designed to care for all employable persons," said Miss Abbott, "leaving to the local governments only the problem of the unemployables. However, the WPA has not cared for all employables, and in addition local authorities have been expected to provide the nebulous sponsor's contribution to WPA.

"Unfortunately these local governments have provided this share at the expense of the most needy of all our people. They have taken the shoes off the feet and the coats off the backs of men not able to get help from these programs."

D. C. STEPHENSON, NEW TRIAL PLEA LOST, ASKS WRIT

Noblesville, Ind., Oct. 17 (AP).—D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana leader of the Ku Klux Klan, late today petitioned for release on a writ of habeas corpus after Circuit Judge Cassius M. Gentry denied his plea for a new trial in the death of Madge Oberholtzer in 1925.

The petition reiterated Stephenson's previous contention that the original judgment was void. It alleged that the Hamilton Circuit court in which he was convicted "did not have jurisdiction to render said judgment or to commit this petitioner to the Indiana state prison because said verdict, sentence and judgment were void."

Contending the constitution and statutes of Indiana had been violated by his conviction and 14 years' imprisonment, Stephenson petitioned the court "to ascertain whether or not said judgment is null and void as hereinbefore alleged. . . ."

The former Hoosier political power now is serving a life sentence.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike for another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other."—From the Farewell Address.

THE DRIVE TOWARD DICTATORSHIP.

The President has transferred to the national power committee, headed by Secretary Ickes, the development of a national power policy in the interest of national defense. That high sounding assignment is a sham. What the President has done has been to promise Ickes that he shall be the power commissar if we go to war.

In the first place, the electric power industry does not require radical expansion to drive a war industrial machine. It already has the reserve capacity to serve necessary expansion in the country's principal industrial areas. In the second place, if expansion were necessary, Secretary Ickes is not capable of guiding it. His contacts with the utility industry have been in the field of billingsgate, not technology.

It is no thanks to Secretary Ickes that the power industry is in its present efficient state. Quite the contrary. As a leading New Deal Janissary he has done his best to discourage the investment necessary to the expansion which he now is supposed to promote.

His position, however, is not as contradictory as it seems. Discouragement of private investment is a necessary preliminary. Then the utilities, presented with demands for unnecessary expansion, would have to turn to Commissar Ickes for federal funds. The collectivists would use war as a means of nationalizing the power business.

While Secretary Ickes needs a war to make him power commissar, Chairman Madden of the labor board is already at work to set himself up as the commissar of censorship. Frederick H. Wood, attorney for Henry Ford, again called attention the other day to Mr. Madden's opinion that an employer has no right to tell his employés that the union agent seeking to organize them is a communist, even if the agent is a communist.

"In the opinion of the National Labor Relations board," said Mr. Wood, "the right to collective bargaining is so superior to that of free speech that free speech must be subordinated. I believe that the right to free speech may be subordinated to no other right, if we expect democracy in America to go on."

Those who want democracy to persist in America will agree with Mr. Wood. The collectivists will not. They know that civil liberties can no more survive the surrender of economic liberty in this country than they have under Stalin and Hitler. The drive toward the communist state goes forward daily. It needs only a war to bring it to full flower.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS IN CHINA.

American military and civil officials in Tientsin have succeeded in settling the trouble caused by the wounding of a Japanese policeman by an American marine. Another Japanese policeman was struck on the head with a pistol. Two marines were guarding freight cars loaded with supplies when the policemen did something which started the fight.

The Japanese authorities have received an apology and the assurance that a court martial will sit on the case. The marines may not have been at fault and, likewise, the Japanese may have been innocent. The situation in which both the Japanese and the Americans were placed was one in which misunderstanding would be avoided with some difficulty. The Americans probably did not intend to be intimidated or interfered with and the Japanese are naturally resentful of alien authority exercised in districts where they have military possession and command.

Incidents of this sort are bound to occur in such circumstances. There have been a number of them and they probably will continue as long as the United States persists in keeping armed forces in China. This is an outgrowth of the policy established years ago on the theory that the Chinese government was either unable or unwilling to give protection to Americans in the treaty ports and in the capital at Pekin. The military guard was to keep bandits and mobs from attacking American property and residents.

China agreed to the foreign policing because it had to. The foreigners were strong enough to have their own way and for many years there was some justification for it. The Chinese war lords were experienced highjackers. Much of the population hated the foreign devils and the central government did not have much control. If foreigners were to do business in China, it would be said that their protection would have to be provided for them.

Conditions have changed, but the small American military forces are still maintained, although now they are in contact with the Japanese army of occupation and such Japanese civil authority as has been established. The Japanese are responsible for the maintenance of order and they can maintain it. The American government can look to the Japanese for the safeguarding of American property in Tientsin, Shanghai, and elsewhere as much as it can trust the same authority in Tokio and other Japanese cities. The presence of American troops in these occupied regions is resented by the Japanese. If Americans found Japanese troops, in similar circumstances, in Vera Cruz or Tampico, they would object quite as much. In fact, it strains our imagination to think of any Japanese troops on this continent where the United States was executing some policy which seemed good to it.

The American troops in China are not needed for the minor police duties they are supposed to fulfill. The Japanese police can attend to that. They are certainly not there to resist Japan. The American consular offices can do everything the soldiers are supposed to be doing and they can do it without causing unnecessary friction. If it is the purpose of the administration to keep the relations of the two countries in a state of exasperation, the military outfits may help to make trouble. It will not be the fault of the soldiers. They will be merely doing their duty. It has led to fighting and it may lead to more. The soldiers should be removed from Chinese soil before there is a clash which will have serious consequences.

THE EMPIRES.

A letter in the Voice of the People, writ sarcastic, asks why THE TRIBUNE refers to England and France as the empires instead of as the allies. The writer finds a subtle Hitlerism in the designation. The reply to the inquiry could be made by Finance Minister Paul Reynaud:

"The weight of the two most powerful empires in the world, England and ours, has been cast into the balance. We will conquer because we are the stronger."

The French finance minister was encouraging his people to have confidence in their strength and in the strength of their ally, the British empire. The empires are sources of pride to the people of Britain and France. They give the two nations the greatest prestige in the world. That prestige has been envied by nations which have not achieved it. The goal of the most powerful nations in Europe has been to create and rule such empires. Those who have it are not ashamed of it and those who have not make no concealment of their determination to get a share of the world—a share of the lands to be exploited and peoples to be ruled.

THE TRIBUNE uses the word "empires" because that is what they are, that is what they are proudly admitted to be, and that is what they will remain if the people of Britain and France, or at least the governments of Britain and France, can successfully defend them. Why, at this hour, should there be any objection to the truthful description of what these powerful European nations have acquired? What suddenly has become disturbing, disagreeable, or even disreputable about the term? The lands possessed not only in Asia and Africa but even over here in this hemisphere by the French and British constitute the two greatest aggregations of peoples and territory in the world today. Much of it has been acquired within the last 40 years, indeed much of it after the world war as the result of victory.

Is it possible that the objection now to the use of the word "empire" arises from the fact that it alone presents the true picture of conflict and therefore strikes some sympathies as a disturbing fact, preferably to be ignored? Americans have been asked by some of their most prudent men and women not to allow their sympathies and their antipathies, however natural and commendable these may be, to run away from their good, hard judgment, and prevent them from thinking of the welfare and the future of the United States with the wholehearted devotion that the people of the other countries use for themselves. If we have an enlightened self-interest we shall be able not only to do the best for ourselves but probably, in the long run, do the best for people who are now suffering from the misfortunes we are wisely trying to avoid.

SILVER IN STEEL.

Industry doesn't use stainless steel because it looks pretty. It uses it most frequently because its shiny surface is an indication of a resistance to corrosion that would weaken or destroy ordinary steel.

Even stainless steel is subject to some kinds of corrosion, including that of salt water under some circumstances. Engineers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, seeking to improve the corrosive resistance of the metal, found that some of their problems were solved by tossing 2 per cent or less of silver into the melting pot.

Stainless steel sells for 30 to 50 cents a pound. Silver costs $5.60 a pound in the world market, or $11.36 a pound under Senator Pittman's pork barrel act. At the world price, use of the silver increases the cost of the steel about 5 cents an ounce for each per cent of silver added.

That is not a prohibitive cost for special purposes. Nevertheless it will take a lot of stainless steel to use the 62,500 tons of silver that President Roosevelt has bought and buried at West Point.

Editorial of the Day

2 PER CENT CLUB.

[Indianapolis News.]

The Hoosier Democratic club, popularly known to its victims—state employés and taxpayers—as the 2 Per Cent club, has enhanced its notoriety by establishing its right to shake down state highway employés, even though part of their pay comes from the federal government.

Doubt about whether the club's officials and agents could take a cut from the highway department pay roll was raised by a provision of the Hatch act forbidding political activity among employés of the executive branch of the federal government. The Democrats have juggled the state corrupt practices act to legalize their pay roll raids, but it seems that they were afraid to take a chance on violating the federal act.

The public first learned of the highway department shakedown when a young man who was held up on road 40, east of Indianapolis, explained his possession of $238 by confessing that he was a collector for the 2 Per Cent club.

As far as is publicly known, the club has not asked the United States attorney general whether it has the legal right to use a public employé, part of whose pay is supplied by the federal government, as a collector.

FULL LENGTH "HAMLETS."

When Maurice Evans brings his full length production of "Hamlet" to Chicago [Nov. 6, Grand Opera house], graybeards will begin to wag in a furious argument about its "firstness." Young moderns, ga-ga over the idea that they are seeing "Hamlet" in all its uncut literary glory for the first time in Chicago's history, will be hooted down by veterans who will announce with pride that they saw Ben Greet's company do the same thing here in the cable car era.

If any bets are made on the subject, no decision can be made until the United States Supreme court hands down a decision after swallowing the Folger library. Our own opinion in the matter is that all bets should be declared off before they are on.

Here are the facts in the case:

On April 8 and 20, 1905, Ben Greet's company gave full length performances of "Hamlet" at the Studebaker theater. The curtain rose at 3 p. m., and again after a dinner intermission at 8:15. The text that Greet used is known as the Second Quarto, published in 1604, which carries a title page stating that the play is almost twice as long as an earlier, pirated edition [First Quarto, rediscovered in 1821].

But in 1623 the first official complete Shakespeare was published and is now known in the world of scholarship as the First Folio. The differences between the texts of the First and Second Quartos [single "Hamlets"] and of the First Folio [collection containing "Hamlet"] constitute, says the Encyclopedia Britannica, "one of the most difficult of Shakespearean problems."

The "Hamlet" which we read today in standard editions, and which Maurice Evans will act in full, is a composite of the texts of the Second Quarto and the First Folio, with a few touches from the First Quarto.

Now fight the matter out to suit yourselves.

HERITAGE OF THE SEA.

"Thou art a knight on Gloriana's quest . . ."
Proud heritage old England's seamen hold.
Drake sailed at great Elizabeth's behest,
While crimson watch fires flared, and wild bells tolled
Their brazen warning of the enemy
Invincible. Where Drake flung England's star,
The bright, imperial sign of victory,
It shines today; and we, who watch afar,
Pray that no clouds of everlasting night
May dim its splendor. As her cause is just,
Her banners fly supported by the might
Of righteousness—in this shall England trust.
Ay, though spent vessels find an ocean grave,
Great Gloriana's sons stand calm and brave!

Traffic Violation in Two Languages.

In railroad man's talk:

I was wheelin' north on the main stem and was really throwin' 'em out the stack when a target went rosy just ahead. There was nothin' waitin' at the crossover so I widened on her. Old John Law breezed up and put me in the hole. I admitted the brownies were due and promised the Law to be a good hoghead, so he gave me a clear board. We busted Rule G a few times in a nearby gin mill and parted pals.

In English:

I was driving north on a four lane highway and was going quite fast when a crossing light went red just ahead. As there was no one near the crossing, I sped on through. A policeman came up and waved me to the roadside. I admitted I was in error, promised the officer I'd never do it again, and he let me go. We had a few drinks in a nearby tavern and parted friends. Footnote to George Porter Lewis' verses, "Football Fantasy" [Oct. 13]:

Amherst college has a team of pronounceable names from end to end and from back field to substitutes. It recently lost a game to Brown university and the unpronounceables, Occhiello, Kaczowka, Savignano, and Stepcyk.

SCENES OF CHILDHOOD.

One recent Sunday I returned again
To boyhood scenes of thirty years ago;
To house and barn and twisted quince tree row
I knew when but a spindly lad of ten.
The house and barn which seemed so spacious then
Are shrunken now from what I used to know;
And where a silver spruce tree squatted low,
A towering silver giant dwarfs all men.
I could have towered like the little tree,
For Opportunity has beckoned oft;
Those thirty years have offered much to me
That I might, on their ladder, climb aloft.
Instead, I've shrunken like the house and barn—
In short, I've not amounted to a darn.

Design for an Ivory Tower.

Your Grand Vizier presents herewith a design for the Linemaster's new library, with book arcade along Michigan avenue for perusal and browsing; escalators to the main reading rooms above; 28 tiers of book stacks with everything in its place and a place for everything, immediately accessible; other reading rooms in the clouds; weather bureau on top; sufficient office space in the shaft to make the entire project self-liquidating; the whole mass rising out of the present Chicago Public library, remodeled as a base.

A Refrain from the Underworld.

"The condemned man's last words were: 'I got a bum rap.'" [TRIBUNE, Oct. 13.]

This word "rap," as noun or verb, is the convicted criminal's chronic complaint of injustice. But if you think it has any association with "knock," in the slang sense, you are wrong. "To rap," in old English and Scottish thieves' argot, means "to swear falsely." See Scott's "The Heart of Midlothian."

The Old Col.'s publicity has jumped about 500 per cent since it lost to Harvard, 61 to 0. If we can lose the Michigan game, 100 to 0, we'll be world famous. Now for the old college try!

THE FORWARD MARCH OF SCIENCE.

ONCE in a while we should pause in our busy routine to pay homage to those scientists who have helped to make life safer and more enjoyable. We are grateful to Edison and Marconi, the Wright brothers, and the scores of others—those mechanical and electrical geniuses who have surrounded us with so many comforts. Parenthetically, we may remind ourselves that it was a Florida physician, John Gorrie, who pointed the way to the manufacture of artificial ice and who may be well termed the father of the mechanical refrigerator.

We are particularly grateful—these days—for the statecraft, the wise leadership of Washington, of Jefferson, of Monroe, of Lincoln, and all those who created in this land "a government of the people."

Medicine, strangely enough, began what we may term its modern development only with the turn of the nineteenth century. A study of the medical management of the illnesses of Washington and of Napoleon should make one thankful that he did not live in that era. Hippocrates or Galen would have been far more successful than the wisest medical man of more than 100 years ago.

The study of bacteria has opened the doorway to our understanding of the causes of sickness. We no longer look upon typhoid as a visitation of Providence. Should it appear in our midst we are obliged to admit that carelessness in the disposal of sewage or in providing clean milk and water is responsible.

The story of insects as disease spreaders reads like a romance. When Theobald Smith proved that Texas fever in cattle was carried from animal to animal by means of infected, blood sucking ticks, a new principle was enunciated. Malaria and yellow fever can now be conquered if we will protect the human family from certain species of mosquitoes that carry the germs of the ailments. Scores of maladies, including tularemia and Rocky mountain fever, for the most part come to man via insects.

We must not fail to mention in our inventory the observations of Roentgen, who gave us the X-ray, not only as a powerful diagnostic aid in many hitherto obscure conditions, but of real value in the treatment of malignant growths. While not curative in all cases, it is helpful in a reasonable percentage.

Diabetes, hitherto a wasting and all too rapidly fatal disorder, has yielded to skilled care with the aid of insulin. We can say honestly to most of these victims, "You can carry on and live your normal life if you will follow a well established régime, thanks to the substance extracted from the pancreas."

In the field of chemistry there are no limits to new accomplishments. Organic preparations of arsenic and other heavy metals will guard the life of the syphilitic and protect the offspring of the affected mother. The properties of sulfanilamide are legion and there is reason to believe that our high mortality from pneumonia will be greatly reduced through its use. Finally, we must not forget that present day surgery has been possible not only through the work of Pasteur and Lister—but through the perfection of anesthesia. The terror of an operative procedure has been banished forever and our hospitals—with trained personnel—have surrounded with many safeguards every portion of the body requiring surgery.

As we must educate all of our citizens in the sacredness of the guarantees provided by the constitution of the United States, so must we inculcate, in season and out, the rules of good hygiene, of proper sanitation, and the service of well trained physicians. But the end is not yet. Every worth while medical man is seeking constantly more light, more knowledge. Some day—and we devoutly hope soon—cancer will yield to the research attack.

Each year witnesses the development of more useful remedies against our mortal enemy—disease.

MELANCHOLIA.

J. G. writes: Your article on moods fits a member of our family. This person has been told by a physician, after an examination, that there is nothing wrong physically. Years ago he had a romance broken up—partly by his mother and partly by the girl herself. He gave up his job and had no place to go, so his parents took him back home. They have supported him for ten years and he refuses to look for work, claiming that they ruined his life. He talks constantly about the past, and, occasionally, stops speaking to members of the household.

As you said in your article, not only the individual himself, but his family as well, are sufferers. What can be done to make such a person a human being again?

REPLY.

A sympathetic physician, who has a reasonable knowledge of psychiatry, and who is willing to spend considerable time with the sufferer, can work wonders. He must possess a substantial fund of common sense and stimulate his patient through his companionship. Drastic treatment, which may be used as a last resort, consists in withdrawing support and putting the man on his own. Hunger is sometimes a great incentive. I assume that the malady known as dementia precox has been ruled out.

BLOOD PRESSURE AND AGE.

M. M. writes: Does blood pressure go according to age? For instance, should one who is 45 years old have a pressure of 145?

REPLY.

Formerly, 100 plus the age was considered normal. Now it is thought that the systolic blood pressure should not exceed 130 to 140 at any age. In younger persons it should be lower. A fair amount of fluctuation, however—above or below these levels—is consistent with good health.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

PARIS.—Gangrene, trench nephritis and epidemic encephalitis—in short, all the major diseases that scourged the armies in past wars—can be checked now, according to Prof. Louis Martin, director of the Pasteur institute.

In addition, modern army medical services have speeded transportation of battle casualties, and arranged treatments that give the wounded the best chance of recovery.

Every French soldier must be vaccinated before leaving for the trenches.

Prof. Martin says that for the first time in medical history antigangrene serum is plentiful. Furthermore, there is the possibility of a triple vaccination in one, which will protect millions of allied soldiers from diphtheria, tetanus, and typhoid.

Soldiers are now protected against diseases like trench fever and trench nephritis, which were comparatively unknown before the last war. The Pasteur institute now can provide 5,000 vials of antityphoid vaccine within 48 hours and 50,000 doses of antitetanic serum a day.

This spring more than 1,000 horses capable of producing antitoxin serum were evacuated near Paris. Three weeks later a laboratory improvised by five doctors furnished 670,000 doses of the serum necessary for the vaccination of class 15 against typhoid.

Prof. Martin said the horses were treated to furnish the valuable serum in about five or six weeks, whereas in 1914 it took six months, and in 1918 three and one-half months to arrive at inferior results.

During the last war the Pasteur institute produced 6 million doses of serum, which was distributed among the allies and the Red Cross.

Means of production are considerably developed and huge reserves are available to treble the output.

Special sanitary, hygiene, and pathology corps have been added to the French army medical service. The strategical and tactical employment of medical units have been paid particular attention to with reference to the collection, evacuation, and distribution of the wounded.

Thirty groups of French surgeons today are operating in 40 surgeries near the front under a new lighting system that is not affected by explosions or atmospheric conditions.

Special trains equipped with the latest medical apparatus will transport major cases inland.

"Universal donors" have given large quantities of blood, which can be kept in perfect condition for at least two weeks. This blood was sent to hospitals at the front.

Dr. Alexis Carrel, Nobel prize winner in medicine in 1912 and former member of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, has just been named head of a special mission in the cabinet of public health by Minister Marc Rucart.

During the last war Dr. Carrel helped develop a new sterilizing solution for treating wounded soldiers and a mechanical means of application which was accepted by all military hospitals.

PROBATE PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, Oct. 12 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. Can a will made out in Portland, Ore., by my wife's mother in June, 1930 [she passed away in September, 1932] now be probated in Chicago? She died in Evanston, Ill.

2. If so, and with the executrix living in Portland, [3] can we get some written authority from her so that I, the husband, or some friend can be appointed executor?

4. Is it possible to have the will probated without cost?

5. How should we go about it? The deceased left her husband, my wife's stepfather, five weeks prior to her demise, owing to nonsupport. I supported her during that time and paid all funeral expenses.

6. Can he claim any part of stock which my wife has, it being in her mother's name? He got all the household furniture.

7. The will left everything to her daughter, my wife. M. W.

1. Yes, if she resided in Cook county at the time of her death.

2. The nonresident executrix would not be eligible to serve here.

3. You could obtain court appointment as administrator with the will annexed.

4. No. If the estate does not involve enough assets to pay the costs of administration, then we doubt if administration is worth while.

5. The first step would be to employ an attorney. His fees would be paid out of the estate.

6. Of course he can claim it. His chances of success would depend on the proof as to a gift having been made.

7. In general, the surviving spouse can renounce a will and take instead his statutory share. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NOTE RENEWAL.

Chicago, Oct. 12 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. Does a note, unpaid, expire after ten years?

2. Can judgment be brought against a note, if not renewed, after ten years of date thereon?

3. If judgment is brought against one, does the party or person who signed the note have to be notified within the ten years? M. F. B.

1. The limitation period is ten years from the maturity date, but the period could be extended by special facts such as a new promise to pay.

2. See 1.

3. The instrument may or may not include wording authorizing a judgment without service of a summons.

WHY "THE EMPIRES"?

Chicago, Oct. 13.—With many of your readers, I have been wondering why lately you have changed in your headlines and news items in describing England and France as "the empires" instead of as "the allies" as all other newspapers and commentators refer to them. Perhaps this is some new and subtle Hitlerian propaganda that you are beginning to spread.

One of your lengthy [!] and fair [?] editorials might help to enlighten some of us who are not quite intelligent enough to grasp what you are driving at.

ISAAC L. MARIENTHAL.

VARYING VIEWS OF LINDBERGH.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—In the face of the overwhelming deluge of British propaganda it was refreshing to hear Col. Lindbergh in his talk on the radio last night set forth a purely pro-American solution of the present crisis. H. P.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Who is Charles A. Lindbergh to dictate to this great nation, in his radio talks, what to do or what not to do?

He is only an aviation upstart, who married rich and now capitalizes on his luck. Is it because of the recent decoration by Hitler that he has acquired something of a martial spirit with sort of dictatorial aspirations?

JOSEPH S. KOBRZYNSKI.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Why doesn't somebody start a Lindbergh for President boom? What we need at the head of our government in this world crisis is a person like Col. Lindbergh, who thinks in terms of Americanism and not foreign "isms." MARGARET LYTLE.

WHY COLLEGIANS ONLY?

Park Ridge, Ill., Oct. 12.—I would like to add my impressions to an issue that is gaining momentum lately. Why should the civic aeronautic training program be limited to college students? It is their stated purpose to stimulate interest in aviation and increase their reserve of potential military pilots. Is there any reason why college students, who in many cases have proved to lack a genuine interest in the venture, should be the only acceptable material for the experiment? I have had college training myself, but because I am not in school now, I am ineligible to enjoy the benefits of the program. There are thousands like myself who are so genuinly interested in flying that they are willing to make sacrifices in order to fly fifteen minutes a week. Why can't we prove ourselves to be just as able as a man who is going to college now to handle an airplane, and provide the country with good pilots, which it obviously needs?

STUDENT PILOT.

PUTTING IT UP TO HORNER.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—I am sending the following telegram to Gov. Horner:

"Taxing the poor man's bread and margarine under the guise of a sales tax for charity and then using the money for other purposes smacks of obtaining money under false pretenses, and as a taxpayer I protest against the willful, wasteful squandering of this money for any purpose but charity."

I hope every man and woman in this state will rise up and protest against this outrage. J. G. STODDARD.

ALL MUST SERVE.

Chicago, Oct. 16.—May I inform A. P. A. that if and when conscription comes it will take in all able bodied men of the country and consequently include Jews and Catholics. All would be prepared to fight and die in any war that this country might enter.

I believe that Senator Burke is one of the brainiest men in the United States senate and that he would fully inform himself on any subject before discussing it. And he is not a Catholic.

WANT ADS REFLECT LIFE.

Indiana Harbor, Ind., Oct. 14.—I wonder how many realize what a liberal education they can get by reading and studying THE TRIBUNE'S "want ad" section daily, and especially Sunday.

Aside from the actual service rendered by this section, it is a daily reflection of Chicagoland's life; what people want, how they think, and how they live.

Consider, for instance, the barter and exchange column all during the depression. People, being short of cash and work, turned to actual bartering.

You can tell the seasons of the year without looking at the date. Moving times in Chicago bring out large advertising by real estate firms. Summer time, larger auto ads. Fall starts the hunting ads, etc.

From pathos and sorrow in the personal column to the happiness offered in the diamond and auto ads. There is no other record made that reflects so quickly and accurately the daily life of the people of Chicagoland as THE TRIBUNE want ad section. WALTER ESCHENBACH.

LATIN AMERICAN COLONIES.

Wood, Wis., Oct. 14.—I wish to express my appreciation of your editorial, "American Waters."

After living in Latin America for 35 years, and especially in British, Dutch, and French Guiana, it is with great pleasure that I now hear of an attempt to awaken interest in these poorly governed colonies.

It is high time that the United States should take over these colonies from the whisky loving, tennis playing, and lazy Europeans who are sent to the West Indies and the colonies on the mainland.

A. J. NEU.

OUR JUNIOR COLLEGES.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—The city's three junior colleges should be investigated. The one I am interested in is Wright. The arbitrary and tyrannical way the students there are treated is appalling. I know—I have a son there and know from other boys there.

The advisers and counselors are overbearing and totally indifferent of the students' best interests.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Oct. 18, 1914.

LONDON—The German armies are stretched along a line from the North sea to the Swiss frontier, the right resting on the Belgian coast near Ostend. A great battle was predicted almost immediately to determine whether the advancing German hosts would be stopped in western Belgium or push on into northern France opposite the English channel.

PARIS—The French officially reported that the Germans occupying western Belgium had not crossed the line running from Ostend south to Menin. The allies had gained, said the reports, in the regions of Arras and St. Mihiel.

ROTTERDAM—Five war vessels of the British North sea fleet sank four German torpedo boat destroyers off the Dutch coast.

BERLIN—A gigantic battle is preparing in the eastern theater of war, where the Austro-German forces have taken positions along the Vistula and San rivers.

MAORIS UPSET PESSIMISTS AND ARE INCREASING

Brown May Exceed Whites in New Zealand.

BY QUENTIN POPE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct. 1 [By Mail].—The Maoris, sturdy brown men who inhabited New Zealand before the arrival of the whites, are now ending fears of their disappearance. They are even encouraging the more adventurous of scientists to say that if the present rate of increase continues they will one day exceed the whites.

But the futility of long-term predictions from birth and death statistics is shown by the history of the Maoris in the last 80 years. In an official year book of 1895 it was declared from current evidence that the race would fall to 30,000 by the turn of the century, and that by the year 2000 they would be extinct. This view was shared by the Maoris themselves. They expressed resignation—"big fish ate little fish," the plants imported by the white men were driving out the native flora, and it was against the law of nature for the Maoris to survive.

Race Makes Comeback.

Twenty years later the prophets of gloom could see themselves borne out on every hand. The numbers of the Maori had fallen from 56,000 to 42,000, and the expected decline was proceeding more rapidly than had been anticipated. But in the next 10 years the decline was arrested, and a long, slow upward climb began. By the time the world war broke out there were almost as many Maoris as there had been 50 years earlier. Today there are 90,000, two-thirds of them of pure blood, the remaining third of mixed blood, but at least half-native in parentage.

So the population forecasters have revised their ideas. And, studying the situation, they have found some noteworthy facts. Whereas in 1926 the white children under 10 years of age in New Zealand formed almost 20 per cent of the entire population, in 1936 they were only 16 per cent. In other words, it is now the white native-born population which is declining. The Maoris as a race form only one-twentieth of the total, but their children are one-tenth of the child total. In the last 15 years New Zealand has grown perceptibly darker brown.

Forecasts Are Fallacious.

This fact has caused some to forecast that, "if expansion continues at the same rates," the Maoris will be in the majority here—in 190 years. Recently a British newspaper gravely discussed whether the white New Zealander was on the way to extinction.

The fallacy of these long range predictions has been demonstrated by the Maoris themselves. And three other factors are lined up against the peaceful reconquest of his homeland by the native. The first is the continued possibility of migration. New Zealand lost many men in the world war, yet strengthened its population by a vigorous migration policy in the years that followed. Second is the infant mortality rate, the lowest in the world. Even a small change in the birth rate would have a marked effect. And finally, there is already apparent an upward swing in the birth rate.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS.

WARWICK, Bermuda, Oct. 11.—To the Travel Editor: On Tuesday last an informal meeting of Americans, resident in various parts of Bermuda, was held to consider what steps should be taken to correct false statements concerning conditions here—more especially since many of our friends, misled by these inaccurate stories, are wondering whether they should open their Bermuda homes for the winter season.

It was decided that the following statement of facts and actual conditions should be mailed to the press and to every American owner of a home in Bermuda whose whereabouts is known.

Following the withdrawal of the Furness line's Monarch and Queen of Bermuda from the New York-Bermuda service, the island government obtained the Nieuw Amsterdam, flagship of the Holland America line, for this run. This vessel, a new luxury liner, operates on a weekly schedule leaving New York every Saturday. Pan American Airways is doing a capacity business. Every incoming plane brings as many American visitors as can get accommodations, and it is understood that the service is to be increased until 500 passengers can be transported each way weekly.

And now, as to Bermuda itself. We assure you it is as calm and peaceful as ever. A number of Bermudians have enlisted in the local forces, and are on duty in various parts of the islands, but if military restrictions exist we have not become conscious of them. Golf, tennis, bathing, and fishing go on as usual.

There is no shortage of any kind of food. In anticipation of a greater demand for agricultural produce, farmers are putting under cultivation land which has lain idle for many years. We are reliably informed that at no time during the last war was there any food shortage here, and certainly none is expected now.

Bermudians are deeply and genuinely distressed that some of our fellow countrymen should have jumped to the conclusion that the presence of Americans here would be unwelcome under present conditions. They point to a speech made by the acting governor on Sept. 9 when he said: "I hope our American cousins will continue to pay us visits. There is no reason why they should not. We can guarantee to send them back rejoiced and charmed." In the face of this friendly and cordial invitation, it is difficult for us to understand how the impression that Bermuda does not want visitors can have gained such wide credence.

We would also like to quote the following statement by Harold L. Williamson, consul for the United States of America in Bermuda: "Citizens of the United States, it is hoped, may continue to enjoy their vacations in Bermuda. The chance of personal danger would seem remote in the colony, removed as it is from the acute war zone."

HAVE FAITH IN AMERICA!

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 13.—To the Travel Editor: This is a thank you letter.

Wisconsin's cool summer vacation season has once more come and gone, and autumn's brilliant color fires are slowly flickering out. Soon to come are winter sports days.

Right now, with a grand summer behind us, I want to thank you for myself and for the state conservation department. As we near the beginning of a fifth year in submitting to you reports from Wisconsin, let me express again our appreciation for your paper's kindness and your helpful consideration.

With Americans everywhere turning a more thoughtful eye upon our own country, rich in the beauty of peace and sanity and complete freedom of movement, we believe THE TRIBUNE is doing a really important work in reminding all of us of the thousand and one recreational satisfactions the United States affords. And I think, too, that the better we all know and understand our land—thru travel, thru outdoor recreation, thru knowing its people—the more we shall love it and believe in it.

We have great expectations that 1940 will be our most successful American recreational season.

NEW HOT SPOT DISCOVERED AT YELLOWSTONE

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., Oct. 17 [Special]. — This playground originally was called "Colter's Hell." Parts of it still live up to that name. Their number was increased the other day, when rangers discovered a new hot spot.

Fire lookouts on Pelican cone had seen steam rising from the vent and could hear the rumbling from their vantage point 2½ miles away. The discovery followed. The hole was found to have a temperature of 216 degrees—17 degrees above the boiling point at that altitude.

Hottest known vent in the park has a temperature of 230 degrees.

MISSOURIANS PROUD OF STAIRWAY.

Missourians say the interior stairway in their statehouse, 65 feet wide, is the widest inside stairway in the world and that the bronze exterior door, 13 feet by 18 feet, is the largest bronze door cast since the Roman era.

Seaboard to Add Three Limiteds to Florida Run

New York, Oct. 17 [Special].—Three air conditioned, limited trains, providing daily service between New York and Florida, are to be placed in operation in December by the Seaboard railway. This was announced today by the company's passenger department. Each of the trains will be drawn by a 2,000 horsepower Diesel electric locomotive.

WHILE EUROPE WARS, AMERICA VISITS ITS PARKS

Attendance for '39 Totals Nearly 15½ Millions.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

In Europe the people are concerned nowadays with death and destruction. In America they're concerned with life and vacations.

So far this year nearly 15½ million Americans have visited the various units of the federal park system. This—said the national park service in announcing the figures yesterday—is more than the mobilization figures for all armies on the other side of the Atlantic.

National Parks Gain.

Up to Oct. 1 the national parks had shown an attendance of 6,804,216. This was a gain of nearly a quarter of a million over the 1938 figure. The 63 reporting national monuments also showed an increase [2,566,452 this year, as compared with 2,313,630 last year], but a number of the battlefield sites, military parks, and the like showed a loss. Visitors to the Boulder Dam recreational area increased from 564,800 to 611,895.

The grand total of visitors for 1939 was 15,454,367. While this was a drop of 779,321 from the 1938 total, the park service explained that in reality there was a general increase. The apparent contradiction was due to the seventy-fifth anniversary celebration at Gettysburg in July of last year. The attendance on that occasion skyrocketed the park's 1938 figures to abnormal heights. The difference in Gettysburg travel between this year and last amounted to 946,109. Had the two figures been the same, the 1939 total for the whole park system would have seen a gain of 166,788.

17 Parks Show Gains.

Seventeen of the twenty-five national parks scored gains. Yellowstone and Yosemite were up approximately 20,000 each. Others to show gains were Grand Canyon, Glacier, Great Smoky Mountains, Zion, Carlsbad Caverns, Hot Springs, and Mesa Verde. Most of these benefited from the unusual travel volume produced by the fairs in New York and San Francisco.

Among those on the red side of the ledger were Rocky Mountain, Bryce Canyon, Mammoth Cave, Mount Rainier, and Shenandoah.

Despite its decrease, Shenandoah continued to head the parade. Its 1939 attendance was 911,612. Great Smoky Mountains was second, with 761,567, and Rocky Mountain third, with 609,029.

TURN MARCONI'S ITALIAN VILLA INTO MEMORIAL

BOLOGNA, Italy, Oct. 17 [Special].—Officials of the Royal Italian academy are completing reconstruction of the Villa Pontecchio, where the late Guglielmo Marconi made his first experiments in radio transmission.

The estate is to be turned into a permanent memorial to the inventor. Original pieces, as well as replicas of early Marconi wireless apparatus, will be shown. Dedication of the memorial is set for next April 25.

Grace Line Will Launch the Santa Ana Today

Newport News, Va., Oct. 17 [Special].—The Santa Ana, first of the United States maritime commission's C-2 type cargo ships to be built for the Grace Line, will be launched here tomorrow. It will operate in the South American west coast trade, via the Panama canal, and touch at major Atlantic ports of this country en route.

My friend and I have been told that there are wild boars in certain parts of Tennessee and that we might be allowed to hunt them if we went there. Please give details. H. D.

The drove descended from boars imported from Russia by sportsmen years ago for stocking a game preserve. The animals escaped into the woods, and have been multiplying ever since. Nowadays they are to be found in the Cherokee National forest, in the extreme eastern part of the state. Shooting is permitted in the late fall. For dates and permits write the superintendent, Cherokee National forest, Cleveland, Tenn.

Is Yosemite park open in the winter months? J. B. P.

Yes. There are skiing, skating, and tobogganing activities from mid-December until late in the spring.

Will the hunting of caribou be permitted in Quebec province this winter? R. K.

Yes. There has been a closed season on them for the last five years, but they have increased so rapidly in that time that the ban will be lifted Jan. 1.

How did Brazil get its name? F. X. McI.

A Portuguese explorer bound for India landed at Porto Seguro in 1500 and proclaimed the land a possession of his country. He loaded one of his ships with red dyewood and sent it back to Portugal. There the wood made a hit with builders, who called it "brasil." The name later was given to the country.

FORT RALEIGH, SITE OF LOST COLONY, IS NATIONAL MONUMENT

Manteo, N. C., Oct. 17 [Special].—Fort Raleigh, site of Sir Walter Raleigh's lost colony, is now a national monument. It has been officially designated as such, following its transfer to the national park service.

The 17 acre tract lies on Roanoke Island. It contains a reproduction of the first English settlement in America. Eventually it will become a part of the National Seashore, a 65,000 acre federal park planned for the shores of North Carolina.

Under the terms of the transfer the fort's open air theater, pitched on a hill beside Roanoke sound, will be available for the summertime performances of Paul Green's "Lost Colony," the historical play that already has been seen by a quarter million persons.

BERMUDA TO JOIN IN OBSERVANCE OF GUY FAWKES DAY

On Nov. 5 Bermuda will join with the rest of the British empire in observing Guy Fawkes day, commemorating discovery of Fawkes' attempt to blow up parliament in 1605. Children will burn him in effigy and shoot off fireworks, and adults will gather at dinner parties where, in accordance with an old custom here, sweet potato pudding is to be served.

Thanksgiving day is, of course, not on the Bermuda calendar. But on Dec. 26 there will be a festival virtually unknown to Americans. Boxing day, celebrated the day after Christmas, combines customs of the slave plantation era with others originating in England many centuries ago. Featured are ritualistic Gombey tribal dances. Servants of Bermudian and American householders are remembered with gifts.

JEWELS REVEAL LONG VANISHED MEXICAN PEOPLE

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Oct. 17 [Special].—Recent archæological discoveries in southern Mexico have brought to light relics of a people whose culture flourished centuries before Christ.

Gem-encrusted gold and silver jewelry, wrought in the days of a civilization long since vanished, was found in excavating a tomb at Monte Alban, near Oaxaca. The surrounding area is believed to have been the burial ground of a race that preceded the Indians and the Aztecs.

The collection, called "the Jewels of Monte Alban," is now one of the major tourist attractions at the Mexican National museum. Included are ornamental headdresses, necklaces, rings, earrings, bracelets, and masks.

Some of the pieces are of oriental design and workmanship. Antiquarians say the discovery may aid in solving the mystery of the disappearance of these people many hundreds of years ago.

CONFLICT ARISES OVER WARNING IN MANTENO PLAGUE

State Officials Disagree on Letters.

Conflicting statements were made yesterday by state officials concerning letters considered important in an inquiry to place blame for the epidemic at the Manteno state hospital. More than 500 persons were stricken with typhoid fever at the institution. The 53d victim died yesterday.

Dr. A. C. Baxter.

Dr. A. C. Baxter, state director of health, declared his office had condemned the water supply of the Manteno institution and had sent one or more letters to that effect to A. L. Bowen, state director of public welfare. When a copy of the letter was requested, Dr. Baxter said he would withhold it pending a subpena for it at an inquest to be held tomorrow at Kankakee into the death of one of the victims.

Mentions 1931 Letter.

When Director Bowen was asked to make the letter public, he said the only letter Baxter could be withholding was one written in 1931.

"That letter was written to my predecessor by one of Dr. Baxter's predecessors," Bowen said. "It described the construction of the wells at Manteno and said that because of the peculiar rock formation the wells might become contaminated at times.

"From time to time since then his department would send to my department reports on tests of the water at the various state institutions, including the Manteno hospital. The reports were by sanitary engineers. Occasionally there would be notations at the bottom of some of them saying the water was or was not fit for drinking purposes.

"We knew that occasionally impurities would get into the water, but never before last Aug. 19 was there ever even a hint that any sewage was found in the water or that any typhoid germs might be in it."

One Quiz to Cover All Cases.

Tomorrow's inquest is to be into the death of Miss Emily Dalton, 58 years old, 1959 Jackson boulevard, Chicago. No inquest will be held into the death of Mrs. Jessie Bengston, 55, 806 North Lockwood avenue, Chicago, who died at the Manteno hospital yesterday. It was explained that any evidence of negligence or carelessness brought out at one inquest would be considered as effecting the deaths of the other typhoid victims.

A post-mortem examination yesterday on the body of Herbert Wise, 59, 5542 64th place, Chicago, showed he had suffered from amebic dysentery, but that he had probably been infected with this disease before his arrival at the state institution a year ago.

Taxi Driver Gets 10 Days for Fleeing Traffic Squad

Marshall Henderson, 22 years old, colored, a taxicab driver, was sentenced to 10 days in the County jail yesterday by Judge Joseph B. Hermes of the Safety court on a charge of reckless driving. Henderson, who lives at 3642 South Wabash avenue, was arrested a month ago after he had attempted to flee from members of a police squad who wanted to question him for a trafic violation.

MILK IN CARTONS LIKELY TO BOOST SALES BY STORES

Predict Reduction of Home Deliveries.

Labor union and dairy officials predicted yesterday that the sale of milk in paper containers in Chicago would increase purchases at stores and would reduce the amount sold thru home delivery. Use of the paper containers was approved Monday by the board of health.

Robert G. Fitchie, president of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, local 753, said: "The change will do us harm because more people will buy in stores and wagon routes will be doubled up. However, there is nothing we can do about it. It is a change we will have to take."

Expects Fewer Routes.

An official of one dairy which plans to sell milk in paper containers in stores, if the city council concurs in the board of health action, said many milk routes will be eliminated. "Four years ago there were 7,500 home milk routes. Store sales have reduced those to 4,000 and more will go," he asserted.

At the same time work will be increased for trucks and men delivering to stores, he said, and new inside jobs will be created for handling the paper containers.

Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th], chairman of the council health committee, gave assurance that action on the amendment to the milk ordinance to permit use of paper cartons would not be delayed by red tape in his committee. "I will expedite public hearings so the council can act," he said.

One reason given for the expected increase in store sale of milk is that paper containers will not be sold elsewhere at first. The store price is lower than the home delivery price and the containers will enable house wives to take advantage of the saving without suffering some of the present inconvenience of store purchases of milk. The cartons can be discarded, while glass bottles must be washed and carried back to the store. No bottle deposits will be necessary, as with the glass containers. Dairy officials said the price of milk in paper containers at stores will be the same as milk in glass bottles.

May be Made Here.

Ten concerns are manufacturing the containers and none of these has a plant in Chicago. About 95,000 containers would be used here a day and this volume would warrant the establishment here of branch factories, dairy officials said.

The Bowman Dairy company, Borden-Wieland, and the Fieldcrest Dairies, all of whom have been selling milk in paper containers in the suburbs for some time, said yesterday they are ready to market their products in cartons when the ban is lifted. Fieldcrest will be entering the city for the first time. Sam Dean Jr., president of Fieldcrest, said arrangements have been made for Chicago distribution.

AUTOIST SAVED FROM FIERY CAR BY POLICEMAN

Ernest C. Collins, 1514 North 36th avenue, Melrose Park, was dragged from his blazing automobile by State Policeman Archie Moran yesterday after Collins had driven thru a stop sign on Wolf road and smashed into a cattle truck westbound in Roosevelt road. The gasoline tanks of both vehicles burst but only one caught fire.

Collins' clothing was burning when he was rescued. Policeman Moran rolled him on the ground and Sergt. Wilbur Kennedy played a fire extinguisher on him to put out the flames.

Victim to Face Charges.

Collins was taken to Hines hospital, where it was said he will recover. He will be charged with reckless driving and passing the stop sign. The truck driver, Asmus Stoltz of Preston, Ia., was not injured.

Phillip Black, 23 years old, 7540 Eggleston avenue, a shipping clerk, died in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries suffered Sunday when he was struck by the automobile of a hit and run driver in State street just south of Marquette road.

An inquest into the death of Denis J. Madigan, pioneer west side merchant, was continued yesterday until Nov. 10. Mr. Madigan, who was 78 years old and a founder of Madigan Brothers, Inc., department store at 4030 Madison street, was killed by an automobile while walking in Columbus park Monday night. His home was at 5900 Adams street. The driver was Elmer G. Brown, 48 years old, 334 South Kostner avenue.

Indian Charged in Death.

Police yesterday placed a charge of manslaughter against Abner St. Cyr, 36, of 4545 Oakenwald avenue. His companion, Miss Gladys White Eagle, 26, of 669 Wrightwood avenue, was fatally injured in a collision between his automobile and a street car at Cottage Grove avenue and Marquette road. He is an Indian of the Winnebago tribe and so was she.

Mrs. Ella A. Lowell, 33 years old, of 346 Austin avenue, Oak Park, died in a hospital in Sandwich, Ill., of injuries received Sunday afternoon. The car, driven by her husband, Robert, crashed into a culvert. Lowell and their daughter, 5 years old, were slightly injured.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 680 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 524 were killed in Chicago, where 17,473 persons were injured in traffic accidents during the same period.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & Co

Marching C.I.O. Members Ring Kenosha Plant.

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 17 [Special].—The strike-bound Nash automobile plant here was completely encircled today by about 3,000 C. I. O. pickets. No effort was made, meantime, to resume peace parleys which were broken off yesterday. The pickets, members of the United Automobile Workers of America, marched in single file about the building.

Picketing was begun when peace negotiations ended because the company's assurance that it would not attempt to operate pertained only to the period during which negotiations were in progress. The company has made no move to resume operations, however.

Both Issue Statements.

Both sides in the three weeks old dispute issued statements today setting forth their respecive versions of the deadlock. The company asserted that it has agreed to 13 points in a proposed new contract, and that the union has refused to budge on other points that are holding up a settlement.

In a letter to its employés, the company pledged that it will resume negotiations whenever the union indicates a reasonable attitude.

Police secured special permission from strikers today to take from the factory parts needed for repairing a squad car damaged yesterday in an accident.

Dodge Strike Authorized.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 17 (AP).—R. J. Thomas, international president of the United Automobile Workers, a C. I. O. union, tonight authorized a strike of 22,000 employés of the Dodge plant, a key unit of the Chrysler corporation. He took this action shortly after the Michigan state Labor Mediation board indicated it might intervene in the dispute which already has made 55,000 Chrysler workers idle.

The state mediation proposal came from Arthur E. Raab, labor board chairman. He said he was considering a call to officials of the corporation and of the union to confer with the board at Lansing.

CALLS FOR JURY IN CONDEMNATION OF AIRPORT LAND

Progress toward the condemnation of land for expansion of Chicago airport was made yesterday when Judge Denis J. Normoyle overruled the last technical objections to the suit and directed that a jury be impaneled on Monday to determine compensation for the 80 landowners who are defendants. Hearing of evidence should begin early next week.

The airport expansion program calls for the removal of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad tracks from the available area that is bounded by 55th and 63d streets, Cicero and Central avenues. The C. & W. I. tracks now bisect this plot along the line of 59th street. They are to be shifted to a new right of way along the line of 54th street.

This will enable the city to join the two complete flying fields that now are ready for use. At this time only the southern half of the field is utilized.

The condemnation suit, filed in the name of the railroad, is being prosecuted by city attorneys under terms of an agreement.

Snite Leaves for Florida in Iron Lung; 16 in Party

TWO ENDURANCE FLYERS BESET BY MOTOR TROUBLE

Vibrations May Force Hoosiers to Land.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 17 [Special].—The plane in which two young Hoosiers set a new endurance record—and had planned to keep flying for several more days—unexpectedly developed motor trouble tonight. A crowd of several thousand persons quickly assembled at the airport near Muncie.

The aviators—Robert F. McDaniels, 25 years old, of Muncie, and Kelvin F. Baxter, 23, of Richmond—had been in high spirits all day after passing the old mark for light planes last night. They had planned to stay aloft at least 500 hours and perhaps until they broke the heavy plane record of 653 hours.

The plane was in its 392d hour when the motor began to labor excessively about 7 p. m. The disheartened flyers sent word to their ground crew that they were coming down.

Point for 400 Hours.

But a short time later they dropped another note in which they said: "Something broke loose in plane, causing it to vibrate considerably. Hope to stay up until 2.53 a. m. to reach 400 hours."

The note also warned the ground crew to exercise the utmost care at the 10 p. m. refueling. The plane must throttle down to a low speed to pick up cans of fuel from an automobile that races across the airport under it.

An hour after the trouble, however, persons on the ground said the motor sounded better than before. This was the first trouble the flyers had experienced, except in the early stages of their flight when they soared too high and ice formed on wings of their ship.

After the motor trouble the flyers remained directly over the airport, three miles north of Muncie, and flew at a low altitude. During the sixteen days they have been aloft they have circled most of the time over Muncie at between 1,000 and 2,000 feet, but occasionally have taken short excursions over nearby areas.

The aviators were elated Sunday night when they surpassed the 343 hours 46 minutes which the Moody brothers had claimed to be a light plane record. The mark was set by the Moodys over Springfield, Ill., last August.

Rivals Aloft 18 Days.

Lancaster, Cal., Oct. 17 [Special].—Clyde Schleipper and Wes Carroll today soared into their eighteenth day aloft in their quest for a new airplane endurance record. They reached the 441 hour mark at 6 p. m. tonight.

Mayor's School Advisers Reorganize for Year's Work

Mayor Kelly's school advisory committee informed him yesterday it has reorganized after summer vacations and is ready to go back to work. Dean W. F. Clarke of De Paul university, chairman of the committee, said the group will coöperate with and advise the school board in consideration of controversial subjects. "I told the committee I wanted constructive criticism," the mayor said.

HURT IN SCUFFLE; DIES.

Root and Stem of Democracy in Christianity

"Lessons in Liberty," by Clarence Manion. [University of Notre Dame Press, $1.50.]

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

This is a study of God in government by the professor of constitutional law at the University of Notre Dame.

Clarence Manion.

"The old have forgotten and the young have never learned," Prof. Manion writes, "that the relationship and responsibility of man to his Creator is the root and stem of our American democracy. When we reënforce America's faith in God and buttress American confidence in the personality and immortality of the individual human soul, we solidify the foundations of our constitutional freedom and unveil the one and only justification for the most unusual political system on the face of the earth."

Prof. Manion pictures the tree of liberty sheltering this section of the earth. It is planted in the soil of God's creative purpose, he says. Its roots are the principles of the Declaration of Independence, its trunk the federal and state constitutions. Its branches are the congress, state legislatures, the President, and federal courts, the governors and mayors and police, and state courts.

How this tree came to be planted here forms the subject matter of the brief historical part of the book. The author traces the slow growth of human freedom and how the pagan theory of all powerful government came to be opposed by the Christian belief in the dignity of the individual human being.

Prof. Manion writes not only of the development of constitutional protections in this country, but discusses the variations in state absolutisms of today.

The book is intended as a text book and is divided into three sections: substance and purpose of government, forms of government, and methods of government. American government, the author writes, is a living instrument of faith and determination, geared to the highest of all human ideals.

How Does Genius Work? This Book Gives the Answers

How does genius work? Rudyard Kipling attributed his inspiration to his "Dæmon," a friendly being who supplied him with ideas, and said, "I watched my pen write." Robert Louis Stevenson mentions his "Brownies," the "little people" who did his work for him. Mozart, describing his sensation in composing, said, "The process with me is like a vivid dream." Frederic Howard Griswold's "Creative Power" [McKay, $1.50] tells [in many cases in their own words] how the geniuses of literature and music got their inspiration and developed their ideas.

Aldington Uses Deft Device in Satirical Novel

"Rejected Guest," by Richard Aldington. [Viking, $2.50.]

As different as possible from his bitter "Death of a Hero," the tenth anniversary of whose publication its own publication celebrates, is Richard Aldington's "Rejected Guest." War averted for that time being casts a shadow over the final pages and deprives the young hero of his love, and war is, indeed, his very reason for being, for he was a war baby.

But except for those fortuities, "Rejected Guest" is not concerned with war but with the irony of life. There is much more of the velvet glove in it, less of the iron hand, than in any of Mr. Aldington's prose, although not even in this at times extremely gay tale can the reader forget that Richard Aldington doesn't like a great many things in the world. That fierceness can sometimes be more effective with a tickling of the reader's ribs than with the punch at his solar plexus, which has heretofore often been Mr. Aldington's technique.

"Rejected Guest" is, so far as plot goes, as fantastically simple as life sometimes is, but novels seldom are. It concerns young David Norris, natural son of Rosamund Norris and young Frank Danby. His parents were snatched by high romance and war's social freedom from England's grubby village life and a wealthy baronetage, and it was David's fate that the one parent who survived the war should be his mother, who neither could nor would take care of him. Brought up by his grandparents in poverty, he was early to realize his illegitimacy and to be harassed by it. David's childhood and youth were dreary, and his young manhood brightened only by a very small inheritance which enabled him to study biology.

But that "tide in the affairs of men which taken at the flood leads on to fortune" turned out to be David's carbon copy resemblance to his dead father, and by the simple method of presenting himself to his grandfather fortune beamed upon him.

Fortune had a hand—gentleman by the name of Mr. Martindale, who is one of the most amusing realists in all of English literature, and for whose verbose observations and Rabelaisianisms "Rejected Guest" is alone worth reading.

English Author

Dorothy Whipple, young English novelist, whose latest story, "The Priory," is reviewed below.

"The Priory," by Dorothy Whipple. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

The Marwoods at Saunby lived life as they wished. Maj. Marwood was constantly in debt, yet he refused to give up his cricket team and the professional he hired by the year. His two grown daughters, Christine and Penelope, still took their meals in the nursery, steered clear of their father and their Aunt Victoria, who mismanaged the household in the moments she could spare from dabbing at a canvas with a brush and oil paints.

Into this odd ménage comes Anthea, who has married the major thinking he loves her, but who soon learns her mistake. "The Priory" is a story of all their lives, with sidelights on the unhappy lot of the servants. Grimness and grayness are relieved by the author's humor and understanding.

An Eyewitness History

"The Heritage of America," edited by Henry Steele Commager and Allan Nevins. [Little-Brown, $4.]

Like the great rivers flowing through it, the history of any land has a main course, but its very existence is due to its converging streams, the rivulets of thought and of personalities that feed it. Here two brilliant historians have collaborated on a thrilling book—a history of the United States which is a skillfully selected anthology of contemporary eyewitness records or of authenticated historic data about those rivulets.

The editors have annotated their material only enough to define historically each period. They have divided the book into 35 sections of American history from "Opening Up the Continent" to "From Normalcy to New Deal." In these 1,128 pages is to be found a vivid panorama of that old man river, the United States of America. The book is heavy to hold in the hand [and weighty in its implications], but easy to hold in the memory.

Defensive War Britain's Hope, Writer Argues

"The Defence of Britain," by Liddell Hart. [Random House, $3.50.]

"Attack on America," by Ared White. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.50.]

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Liddell Hart, facile and prolific British military critic, argues in his "The Defence of Britain" that there can be no complete military victory in any war between first class European powers. Thereby he seeks to persuade his nation in the present war, begun since he completed his book, to adopt the defensive as the only feasible road to its objectives.

"For the aggressor, aiming at conquest, the complete overthrow of the opposing forces and the occupation of the opponent's territory may be necessary to his success," says Hart. "But not to ours. Our object is fulfilled if we can convince the enemy that he cannot conquer."

His brief for the defensive is based on the contention that modern weapons have so magnified its power that a major offensive is as useless as it is bloody. The attacker, he argues, only destroys his own army, something that his enemy cannot do by attacking him.

It will be as suicidal for the French and British to attack the Siegfried line as for the Germans to attack the Maginot line, he asserts. His appraisal of the defensive possibility of the western front, from Holland through Switzerland, is thorough and interesting. And if the French are not going to attack, Hart says, it will be unnecessary for Britain to send a huge conscript army across the channel.

His faith in the defensive extends to the air. He deplores Britain's concentration on the bomber in her air force, holding that fighting planes and antiaircraft guns can make bombing attacks too costly for the attacker. Furthermore, he says, British bombing attacks on Germany face less chance of success than German attacks on Britain.

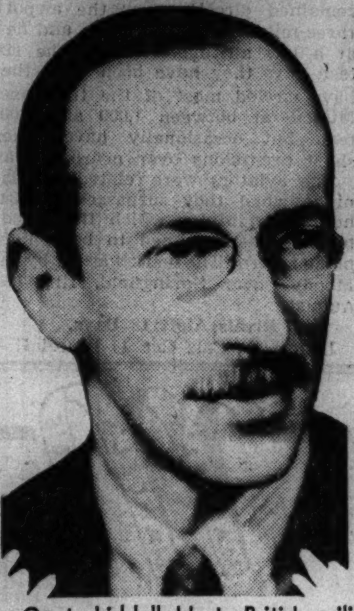
Hart is unsparing in his appraisal of the military losses that Great Britain suffered as a result of Prime Minister Chamberlain's appeasement policy, saying: "On each successive international issue the government had weighty arguments for avoiding our obligations—but the fact remains that each surrender led to a worse one, and to a worsening of our situation as well as that of civilization."

By permitting the axis-supported victory of Franco in Spain, Hart says, Britain endangered not only its shipping lines through the Mediterranean, but its alternate route to India around Africa. The Spanish coast offers submarine and air bases against which it would be far more difficult to protect British commerce than it was to protect it against German submarines in the North sea, he asserts.

As for the Mediterranean, he says, the submarine and airplane have transformed it, strategically, into a 2,000 mile canal. He is far more apprehensive of Britain's danger if Italy and Spain enter the war than he is of German ground and air attacks.

The abandonment of Czecho-Slovakia, says Hart, robbed the British and French of what he estimated as the most efficient army on Germany's eastern front. Writing before the German attack proved him right, he had a low opinion of Polish military effectiveness. "Polish military doctrines . . . raise a doubt whether their leaders have their feet on the ground," he said.

Military Expert



Capt. Liddell Hart, British military authority, whose "The Defence of Britain" is reviewed in adjoining column.

The sad deficiency and inefficiency of the British air force and air defenses was the justification given by the Chamberlain government for the backdown at Munich. "But," comments Hart, "it could hardly be termed an excuse, since that government had been in office seven years."

The major portion of Liddell Hart's new book is up to his usual standard as a military writer, although the final chapters on reorganization of the British army are heavy going. These chapters, however, will be principally interesting to American readers in demonstrating that the lethargy of governments in defense matters is not peculiar to this side of the Atlantic.

Hart's great vice is oversimplification. For that reason, American army officers have always taken his writing with a grain of salt. A few years ago a member of the faculty at our war college said of him, "He writes so much, he has to be right part of the time." This may be one of the times when he is right.

"Attack on America" is fiction, but fiction based on military fact. It tells what would happen to our American army, in its present state of equipment and training, if it had to do battle at once.

The problem of getting the attacking force past the American fleet Ared White solves by placing in Mexico an army of European mercenaries in the service of a dictator of that country. They have been sent there following an armistice in the European war, and the purpose of their attack is to put America out of the war before it can join the European struggle on a resumption of hostilities.

Von Hassek, the mercenary leader, attacks without warning. His planes bomb the White House and kill the President. His mechanized force quickly smashes the American divisions in Texas and seizes the southwest. The Panama canal is bombed. A naval threat from Europe sends our fleet around Cape Horn to meet it, and leaves the Pacific coast open to invasion from Asia, which we are unable to oppose effectively. Only after a year of effort, and the loss of the southwest and the Pacific coast, is the United States ready to start the task of expelling the invaders.

Woven into the purely military recital is a parallel tale of the adventures of an American army intelligence officer, working in Von Hassek's camp and combatting his espionage system in this country.

Authors and Their Work

Ben Lucien Burman, author of "Blow for a Landing" [John Day, $2.50], knows more about the Mississippi than any living man. Here's one reason why. Since spring he has covered every inch of the Mississippi from St. Paul to the gulf, parts of it more than once, besides voyaging up many of its tributaries. And he started by being the Mississippi's No. 1 know-boy. Early next year the result of this intensive travel will be a nonfiction book on his favorite subject.

Pietro Di Donato, the 28 year old bricklayer author of "Christ in Concrete" [Bobbs-Merrill, $2.50], a hauntingly poetic-realistic novel of bricklayers' lives, is so handsome that when he recently gave a television broadcast he was a sensation—an Italian Greek god. He is going to be in Chicago Saturday and you may come across him in one of the book stores autographing his novel.

Because a customer for his egg business agreed to buy and to pay for in advance $300 for a three years' supply of eggs Paul Corey was able to finish the small stone cottage he was building with his own hands near Cold Spring, N. Y., and also his ambitious novel of Iowa farm life, "Three Miles Square" [Bobbs-Merrill, $2.50].

The other day in New York I met William Faulkner, that southern novelist who often curls the gray hairs of his readers with his language. He is a gentle and mild man who engagingly and disarmingly said as he left [perhaps respecting my gray hairs, but I think just being natural and southern], "Thank you, ma'am. I hope you like my new book."

This Biography of Bolivar Done with Fine Skill

BY PERCY WOOD.

Tourists in Caracas, the capital of Venezuela, are likely to become irritated by the bumptious chatter of the guides who lead them—often at breakneck speed—about the various buildings and monuments honoring Simon Bolivar [pronounced Bo-lee-ver], the "liberator."

For example, it seemed decidedly too much, on a recent sunny day, to be told by the woman who conducts parties through Bolivar's birthplace, that he was five times as great as George Washington. "Washington," she said, "freed only one nation. Bolivar"—after a significant pause—"liberated five nations, Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Bolivia, and Peru."

Every one who enjoys exciting, personalized biography will probably come to some very definite convictions after reading "Man of Glory." Thomas Rourke, whose "Gomez, Tyrant of the Andes" was widely praised, has here produced another unforgettable story from his researches into Venezuelan history. He has drawn a sympathetic picture of a great patriot, but he has not neglected to include the less estimable traits and deeds of his subject.

Completing these 359 pages, one is not quite willing to accept the estimate of the woman who conducts tourists through Bolivar's birthplace, nor is there any indication that Mr. Rourke shares her opinion.

The author, however, confides the respect due a man who did free five republics and who drove the Spaniards forever from northern South America. This Bolivar did against odds which make his victories in the Napoleonic tradition, and, indeed, there is a further basis for comparison. Bolivar also died in exile, an embittered man, yet today his tomb is just as much the Venezuelan shrine as Napoleon's is the object of French veneration.

Both as a military strategist and as a politician Bolivar was singularly endowed. He was born of a wealthy Venezuelan family, had a private education, and lived for a time in Europe, where he saw and admired Napoleon. In Madrid he fell in with a group of young Venezuelan patriots who hated Spain.

A number of these young men were Bolivar's co-leaders in Venezuela during the successive heartbreaking campaigns he led against Spanish brutality and domination. Almost always his forces were infinitely smaller than the enemy's; invariably they were miserably equipped. But their leader was magnificently inspired, and he could transmit his inspiration by word and deed. Yet, when he had freed a vast section of the continent, he could not hold his freemen together, and when he died his victories were as ashes in his mouth.

If you decide to join the Book-of-the-Month Club now, we will give you free, as a new member, a book which has been recognized all over the world as a really indispensable volume to anyone who wishes to obtain a panoramic understanding of perplexing international politics. The new and revised edition of INSIDE EUROPE by John Gunther retails for $3.50. This was one of the recent book-dividends of the Club. Or, if you prefer, you may choose one of the other recent book-dividends listed in the coupon.

OTHER BOOK-DIVIDENDS RECENTLY DISTRIBUTED FREE, TO BOOK-OF-THE-MONTH CLUB MEMBERS

EVEN if you read slowly, an average of only half an hour a day would have enabled you to read, within the past three months, at the very least eight of these dozen widely-discussed new books:

ESCAPE	by Ethel Vance
THE GRAPES OF WRATH	by John Steinbeck
THE YEARLING	by Marjorie K. Rawlings
CHILDREN OF GOD	by Vardis Fisher
BLACK NARCISSUS	by Rumer Godden
INSIDE ASIA	by John Gunther
NOT PEACE BUT A SWORD	by Vincent Sheean
WIND, SAND AND STARS	by Antoine de Saint Exupéry
DAYS OF OUR YEARS	by Pierre van Paassen
REACHING FOR THE STARS	by Nora Waln
THE REVOLUTION OF NIHILISM	by Hermann Rauschning
COUNTRY LAWYER	by Bellamy Partridge

—or any other new books you may have been particularly anxious to read. Instead, if you are the average person, you have probably been confessing to friends that you could "never get around to reading books."

Over 250,000 book-reading families—persons like yourself—have found a subscription to the Book-of-the-Month Club by far the most effectual way to keep themselves from missing the new books they are really interested in.

You are not obliged, as a member of the Club, to take the book-of-the-month its judges choose. Nor are you obliged to buy one book every month from the Club.

Publishers submit all their important books to us. These go through the most careful reading routine now in existence. At the end of this sifting process, our five judges choose one book as the book-of-the-month.

You receive a carefully written report about this book in advance of its publication. If you decide from this report that it is a book you really want, you let it come to you. If not, you merely sign and mail a slip, saying, "Don't want it."

Scores of other recommendations are made to help you choose among all new books with discrimination. If you want to buy one of these from the Club, you can get it by merely asking for it. Or you can use these reports (we find that most of our members do) to guide you in buying from a favored bookseller. In other words, you can browse in bookstores as always, but now do it more intelligently; you know what to look for.

In addition, there is a great money-saving. Time and again our judges' choices are books you ultimately find yourself buying anyway. They are always high on national best-seller lists. For every two books-of-the-month you buy you receive, free, one of our book-dividends.

So many of the Club's members ordinarily want the book-of-the-month that an enormous edition can be printed. The saving on this quantity-production enables the Club to buy the right to print other fine library volumes. These are then manufactured and distributed free among the Club's members—one for every two books-of-the-month you buy. For every $1 you spend for a book-of-the-month you actually receive about 75¢ back in the form of free books, figured at retail value.

You pay no yearly sum to belong to the Book-of-the-Month Club. You pay nothing, except for the books you buy. Your only obligation is to agree to buy four books-of-the-month a year from the Club.

BOOK-OF-THE-MONTH CLUB, 385 Madison Ave., N. Y. N-3810

Please enroll me as a member. It is understood that I am to receive a free copy of INSIDE EUROPE, that I am also to receive, without expense, your monthly magazine which reports about current books, and that for every two books-of-the-month I purchase from the Club, I am to receive the current book-dividend then being distributed. For my part, I agree to purchase at least four books-of-the-month a year from the Club.

If you do not wish Inside Europe as your free enrollment book, check box below for title you prefer. (No others available at this time.)

Survey Shows Effects of War in Book World

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 17.—Every one in New York connected with publishing books is talking about what effect the war in Europe will have on the American book reading public. The older publishing houses dug out their 1914 records and made many fancy surveys of them. The younger houses [and many of the best known publishers today were practically in rompers in 1914] had intensive and expensive research done concerning Americans' reading tastes and the trends of the American book market during the first world war.

Charts, the memory of man, the stock market, private hunches, politics, isms, everything, except necromancy have been tossed into the prophecy pot. The net result was voiced by one of the leading publishers when, after a long conference in which every possible avenue of the subject had been explored, he said:

"I will offer as the prophecy of an old-timer who came through the first world war a sadder and wiser but also a richer man, that in the second world war—good books will sell and poor books will not sell."

That does seem to be practically the only certainty in the whole discussion, but there are many theories. One theory is based on the American experience of 1914 and the present state of affairs in England. More books are being sold now in London than for months—perhaps years. Magazine circulations have leaped. Since there is not so much else to do, London is reading, which phenomenon, incidentally, also appeared during the worst days of the depression in this country.

Some American publishers feel that reading as a pastime, as a comfort, as a stimulus, or even merely as an escape, will increase enormously. Their theory is bolstered by the undeniable fact that book sales have increased since war was declared.

Some publishers believe that there will soon come out of the war many excellent personal experience books, written probably by newspaper correspondents rather than by soldiers.

Most of the publishers feel sure there will be much "escape" literature resulting directly from the war—fiction that amuses and intrigues the reader into forgetting the state of the world, nonfiction that is comforting. Gay stories, mysteries, adventure, the kind of historical romance that is not written to point a moral for the present in the past, but merely to be a good story, will be very popular, the prophets say.

All the publishers feel sure that books by and for Americans will be even more popular on account of Europe's troubles. There has been for some years in the United States a growing interest in American writers. They believe that our increasing knowledge of Europe's present will inevitably turn our thoughts to our own past, present, and future, and that "Read America" will be the inevitable result.

But the most obvious immediate result of the war are the books dealing directly with the political and economic causes and possible effects of the war and America's attitude toward it.

List of New War Literature

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 17.—Outstanding books which have been published recently and not yet reviewed in THE TRIBUNE or are promised for early publication include some very exciting items. A list of them follows:

The British War Blue Book [Farrar & Rinehart, $1.50], to be published Oct. 23, is the official record of events leading to hostilities between Great Britain and Germany.

How War Came, by Raymond Gram Swing [Norton, $2], published Monday, is an illuminating analysis by the Mutual Broadcasting company's commentator. Three publishers, not counting his own, told me he was the most careful and long visioned news commentator on the air.

The Hundredth Year, by Philip Guedalla [Doubleday-Doran, $3], is a history of the year 1936 in England, which marked the end of the postwar period and the beginning of the turbulent, uneasy, unsettled present. To be published Friday.

How Strong Is Britain?, by C. E. Count Puckler [Veritas Press, $2.50], gives a competent German account of Britain's strength, recently published in Germany and Britain, praised in Britain as objective and well balanced.

Barbarians Within and Without, by Leonard Woolf [Harcourt-Brace, $1.50], to be published Oct. 26, analyzes the state of western civilization in an effort to explain the present chaos.

The Fate of Man, by H. G. Wells [Alliance, $2.50], comments on the world today. To be published Oct. 30.

Handbook of the War [Houghton-Mifflin, $2], for publication in November, gives a graphic survey of the resources of the leading European nations by two members of the Foreign Policy association and a military specialist.

The Story of the Political Philosophers, by George E. G. Catlin [Whittlesey, $4], to be published in November, is a provocative history of political thought.

Ahriman: A Study in Air Bombardment, by Brig. Gen. Oliver L. Spaulding [World Peace Foundation, $1], tells what can be accomplished by air raids and how much they cost.

Europe Going—Going—Gone! by Count Ferdinand Czernin [Greystone, $2.75], coats a serious consideration of England, Europe, and America with frivolity and witty cartoons by Walter Goetz.

This Is War, by Lucien Zacharoff [Sheridan House, $2.50], describes the developments in warfare since 1918.

World in Arms, by Maj. Ernest R. Dupuy [Military Service, $2], pictorially presents authoritative facts on the armies and navies of the world.

Shall We Send Our Youth to War? by Herbert Hoover [Coward-McCann, 75c], answers a question that is on everybody's lips. Published Friday.

The Deadly Parallel, by C. Hartley Grattan [Stackpole, $2], published last Wednesday, shows how the American people are being led again to join a war.

When War Comes, by Larry Nixon [Greystone, $2.25], is a vivid conjecture by six New York newspaper men about what will happen and what to do.

Words That Won the War, by James R. Mock and Cedric Larson [Princeton University Press, $3.75], tells the story of America's "propaganda ministry" during the world war. Published Monday.

Can America Stay Neutral?, by Allen W. Dulles and Hamilton Fish Armstrong [Harpers, $2.50], argues a pertinent question.

America's Chance of Peace, by Duncan Aikman and Blair Bolles [Doubleday Doran, $1], to be published Friday, estimates America's chances of staying out of the European conflict.

Road to War, Walter Millis' history of America, 1914-'17, is now republished [Houghton-Mifflin, $1.45].

Documents on American Foreign Relations, edited by S. Shepard Jones and Denys P. Myers [World Peace Foundation, $3.75], contains source material bearing on American foreign policy in 1938 and the first six months of 1939.

Adjusting Your Business to War, by Leo M. Cherne [Tax Research institute, $6.50], analyzes the changes imposed on the nation's business in war time.

Keep America Out of War, by Norman Thomas [Stokes], is promised for the middle of November.

The New Western Front, by Stuart Chase [Harcourt, $1.50], will soon bring a revised edition of Mr. Chase's arguments that America need not be drawn into war.

The Vampire Economy, by Guenter Reimann [Vanguard, $3], is a study of business under Fascism, based on secret data smuggled out of Germany and Italy. Published today.

From Nazi Sources: Why Hitler Can't Win, by Fritz Sternberg [Alliance, $1.75], scheduled for publication Oct. 30, was suppressed in Hungary after selling 80,000 copies in three weeks. However, Berlin was unable to point to any inaccuracies in the book.

Histories Deal with American Pioneer Treks

"Blazing the Way West," by Bliss Isely. [Scribners, $3.]

"Wagons West," by Elizabeth Page. [Reprinted by Farrar & Rinehart, $2.75.]

BY WILL DAVIDSON.

From the mouths of old timers, from the files of old journals, and from the archives of historical societies and libraries, Bliss Isely has drawn a fund of information and anecdote with which he fashions a living narrative of the French era in North America in "Blazing the Way West." In the adventures of Tonty and Cadillac and La Salle, of Bienville and Frontenac and Champlain, the author discovers the eternal truth that "civilization's progress has always been spurred on by man's greed, his love of action, and the egotism that makes him fret over any wilderness" that doesn't know his beneficent touch. This is a popular history in the best sense of that word.

Rare is the textbook that has appeal to the general reader, but "The Westward Movement," by Ina Faye Woestermeyer and J. Montgomery Gambrill, has such appeal. Composed almost entirely of original letters and articles, it pictures the course of empire in the words of the men and women who led that empire west, or who watched it as it went by. The book's three divisions—the attraction of the frontier, the actual moving of population and boundaries, and the economic and social development that resulted—is a scholarly and happy choice. It makes possible a smooth narrative, yet keeps intact the continuity of all phases of growth.

To avid readers of "The Tree of Liberty" who had missed Elizabeth Page's first book, this reprint of "Wagons West" should be welcome. Like the authors of "Blazing the Way West" and "The Westward Movement," she has gone to original sources for her material. Letters and word of mouth descriptions are the backbone of this fascinating story of the wagon trails. It is a story that is magnificent both because of itself and its telling—at once a factual history and a sympathetic sketch of the men and women who felt themselves to be very unheroic characters in what they did not realize was an epic.

What They Are About

FICTION.

Hudson Rejoins the Herd, by Claude Houghton [Macmillan, $2.50], records the return of life to a man on the verge of death. His memories of childhood gradually construct the drama begun as playmates by himself, a notorious actress, and the man who attempted to murder him.

Charley Manning, by Elizabeth Corbett [Appleton-Century, $2.50], concentrates on the lovable perennial bachelor of "The Young Mrs. Meigs."

Lady with Jade, by Margaret Mackprang Mackay [John Day, $2.50], portrays an American woman who starts a curio shop in Peking, because of her love for the arts of old China and especially for pure green jade, and tells of the increasing conflict between her human love and her passion for inanimate things.

NONFICTION.

The New Immortality, by J. W. Dunne [Harpers, $2], explains the "serial" theory of time, and demonstrates reasons for accepting personal immortality.

The Philosophy of John Dewey, edited by Paul Arthur Schilpp [Northwestern University, $4], subjects the writings of the dean of American philosophers to careful scrutiny by 17 supporters and opponents. It is released today to honor his 80th birthday on Oct. 20.

If You Can Read You Can Cook, Too, Says Author of Cookbook

If you can read you can cook. That is Mary Grosvenor Ellsworth's theory. Her unusual cookbook, "Much Depends on Dinner" [Knopf, $2.50], is very easy to read. All the recipes, given in interesting story form, are for dishes of her own discovery or invention.

"Fit for a King" is an appropriate title for the Merle Armitage Book of Food, edited by Ramiel McGehee, with drawings by Elise [Longmans, $5].

If You Prefer Short Stories, Try This Fare

"The Best British Short Stories, 1939," edited by Edward J. O'Brien. [Houghton-Mifflin, $2.50.]

"Sailor Off the Bremen," and other stories by Irwin Shaw. [Random House, $2.]

BY JOHN BLACKBURN.

Whether you regard a collection of short stories as a literary convenience, to be picked up and read piecemeal, or whether you enjoy the short story because it is an especially entertaining form of fiction, you are sure to find something to your liking in this group.

Edward J. O'Brien's "The Best British Short Stories, 1939," is a fitting companion piece to his "The Best Short Stories, 1939," a compilation of American works published earlier this year. Because of the wealth of material which comes to his eyes and because of the careful and generally sound standards he applies in making his selections, Mr. O'Brien's collections can be relied upon to be of high quality.

Several of the British short stories in the current collection have appeared in American periodicals. Most of them, however, were published originally in English and Irish periodicals seldom seen here. Mr. O'Brien also goes into the byways, culling an occasional gem from publications so obscure that they do not reach the average reader. These provide the special surprise, the true literary treat. As a whole, these British stories are fresh, vital, and persuasive.

Mazo de la Roche, author of the popular Jalna novels, uses an unusual device in her short stories. She weaves her tales around a variety of animals which serve as foils for the human beings to whom they belong or whose lives they affect with varying results.

The title piece, "The Sacred Bullock," is representative and perhaps the best of the lot. It is the story of a farm boy hired to tend a herd of young bullocks being fattened for the market. He singles out a white bullock, different from all the rest, on which to shower his affection in his otherwise empty life. By a ruse he saves the white bullock from the slaughterhouse, only to meet a tragic fate as a consequence.

The stories are plausible, and are flavored with gentle pathos and comedy. Miss de la Roche tells her tales with her accustomed skill and with sympathy and understanding for both the animals about which she writes and their masters.

In his book of short stories, "Sailor Off the Bremen," Irwin Shaw brings the reader close to the everyday American scene and reveals that scene in all its dramatic intensity—ugly, tragic, or amusing. He belongs to the school of realistic writers, but tempers his realism with an appreciation of softer human qualities.

Again the title piece is typical. A sailor on the liner Bremen loses an eye at the hands of a bullying steward. His relatives and a friend wreak a decisive vengeance. All of Mr. Shaw's plots are as simple as that. His stories—about gangsters, taxi drivers, housewives, small business men, prize fighters—have the immediacy of a news event. The reader may say to himself: "It could have happened. I wonder if it really did?"

Why are your prayers never answered? Read these two books, remarkable in their spiritual inspiration and interpretation and application. Absolutely correct in their viewpoint. Learn The Secret of Answered Prayer.

Historical Novel

Spine Tinglers for Readers of Mystery Tales

"Monkshood," by Eden Phillpotts. [Macmillan, $2.]

"Tragedy in the Hollow," by Freeman Wills Croft. [Dodd-Mead, $2.]

"The Corpse with the Red Headed Friend," by R. A. J. Walling. [Morrow, $2.]

"Black Feather," by Benge Atlee. [Scribners, $2.50.]

BY AL CHASE.

"Monkshood" is one of Eden Phillpotts' most puzzling crime stories. Not that the seasoned mystery fan won't guess what is going on long before the final chapter, but only a supersolver of slayings will be able to guess how the aconite [monkshood] reached the tummies of the victims. Like most of Phillpotts' well written mysteries, "Monkshood" moves sedately. But its lack of speed, its wisecracks, and its involved plot are factors which make for enjoyment of its fine writing and masterly character delineation.

Another slow speed but satisfactory British crime depicter is Freeman Wills Croft. His newest Inspector French mystery, "Tragedy in the Hollow," is the story of a giant gambling ship which cruises about the British Isles. The murder takes place on land, but most of the action is on the huge liner rebuilt into a floating Monte Carlo. As usual, Croft has turned out a shipshape yarn with real people and a puzzling plot.

R. A. J. Walling, one of Britain's ace mystery writers, falls back on the old standby of crime fiction—the victim found bashed on the head while sitting at his desk—to start off his "Corpse with the Red Headed Friend." But the rest of this rattling good story is not commonplace. Our old friends, Investigator Tolefree and Farrar, his handy "Dr. Watson," reach the body close on the heels of the local constabulary and help solve the strange death of Mr. Entwhistle. This is a well written, skilfully plotted, and briskly moving tale.

Benge Atlee, in "Black Feather," recalls John Buchan at his best. It's a dashing story of a free lance secret service operator who gallops through an almost incredible number of hair lifting episodes connected with a munitions ship consigned to the Nazis. Dr. Atlee knows the Balkan states and the Greco-Turkish situation as a London bobby knows his Trafalgar square.

"Liar Dice" is the first mystery novel by a writer who spent 20 years in the American far east consular service. The locale is Tientsin. The characters are noisy, hard drinking, wisecracking, but likable. The plot at times is hilariously funny, and there are no quiet paragraphs in the book. It's recommended to the reader who likes action, color, intrigue, and romance in his mystery cocktail.

Beauty of Maine's Coast Captured in This Volume

The beauty of the Maine coast and the rare flavor of the heritage and history of her ancient landmarks are brought together in "Ranging the Maine Coast" [Norton, $4]. Alfred F. Loomis writes of the history of each island and harbor visited in his cruise down the coast of Maine. Edward A. Wilson, shipmate for part of the voyage, contributes strikingly beautiful illustrations.

Adler, Pioneer in Psychology, Ably Portrayed

"Alfred Adler," by Phyllis Bottome. [Putnam, $3.]

"Why We Love and Hate," by David Seabury. [Whittlesey House, $3.75.]

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Here are two new books dealing with the ever-fascinating subject of the human personality and the art of living. The first is a biography of the famous Viennese psychologist, Alfred Adler, and the second is another in the series of popular works by the American lecturer, David Seabury.

Phyllis Bottome.

When a novelist essays a biography the result is sure to be readable, and the thousands who enjoyed "Private Worlds," both as a novel and a moving picture, know that Phyllis Bottome understands psychology. Her life of Alfred Adler is as interesting as any novel and is packed with information for the layman who wants to know something about the school of "individual psychology" which originated with the man who broke away from the teachings of Freud, and which has now spread over the world.

Phyllis Bottome and her husband, A. E. Forbes Dennis, first became interested in the Adlerian methods when they decided to take a few boys into their home at Kitzbuhel in the Austrian Tyrol for language teaching. In order to become more expert in handling young students, Capt. Dennis consulted Adler in Vienna. From this interview began a friendship which lasted until the death of the psychiatrist in 1935.

Miss Bottome became interested in "individual psychology" along with her husband, studied it in Vienna and Munich, and did much to further its spread in her homeland, England. She was asked by Adler himself to write the story of his life.

She portrays Adler from the point of view of a disciple and her book is her tribute to the genius of the man as well as a record of his life and achievements. For years he was something of a martyr, his ideas and methods being so different from the accepted school that honors and privileges due him were withheld. Later, some of his own students and his colleagues presented and used Adler's methods as their own, but he never objected because he felt he had merely uncovered facts of universal truth.

Most people think of Adler as the originator of the theory of the inferiority complex. But that was merely one of his contributions to modern psychiatry. He also was responsible for the "family constellation" theory upon which much of modern child guidance is based, and he laid great emphasis upon the power of social interest to overcome the egocentric aim causing neurosis.

He believed that man should be judged not by his reaction to nerves, glands, "drives," etc., but by how he measures up to the three common life tasks set before every human being—work, love or marriage, and social contact. Unlike Freud, Adler did not believe in lengthy psycho-analysis. He did not get his results by controling his patients and guiding them laboriously through various set phases on the road to recovery, but by "setting them free."

In "Why We Love and Hate" Seabury once more explains methods by which the reader can see himself as others see him. He provides quizzes, the results of which will serve to classify types, and he then explains the nature of those types. . . .

He gives clear, terse analyses of various common emotional problems, illustrating his points by citing well known men and women of history. This book, like his others, is easy to read and entertaining.

Important New Books

Hero in English History

"The Bride," by Margaret Irwin. [Harcourt-Brace, $2.50.] Published a week ago Thursday.

James Graham, marquis of Montrose, is one of the most gallant figures in all history. Single-handed he set out, during the 17th century English civil wars, to raise all Scotland for his king, the unfortunate Charles I. As the historian Montague wrote, "Montrose had spent his marvelous power on an impossible task."

Montrose is the hero of this well knit historical novel, based on that turbulent period of English history when Cromwell was in power and the Stuarts in exile. It is the story not only of his courageous exploits but of his love for the Princess Louise, niece of Charles I., and of his death on the gallows.

The year was 1649. Charles I. was nearing death on the scaffold. The leaders of the Royalist party were clustered in a destitute, excitable little group in The Hague, making desperate, feverish plans to rescue their king. To The Hague came Montrose. Intrepid, ingenious, clothed in black armor, a poet and a military strategist, he already was a legendary figure. He came to see Elizabeth, sister of Charles I., and Prince Charles, soon to become Charles II., but he fell in love with Louise.

The beheading of Charles I. and Montrose's departure on his tragic pursuit in Scotland that gained him nothing but honor and death are told by Miss Irwin in splendid, stirring prose that surges and breathes.

As an Englishman Sees Us.

"I Lost My English Accent," by C. V. R. Thompson. [Putnam, $2.]

"I Lost My English Accent" is sort of a reverse "With Malice Toward Some," that delightful book in which Margaret Halsey poked such amusing barbs at Englishmen. Not so brilliant or uproariously funny as Miss Halsey, C. V. R. Thompson is always entertaining and often amusing.

Since 1933 the American correspondent of the London Daily Express, Mr. Thompson came to New York with an amazing collection of prejudices and opinions on America. He has remained to change most of them. Always an Englishman, Mr. Thompson admits now that he prefers New York to London, and is on the way to becoming Americanized, aided by his wife, a New York newspaper woman, and the colony of writers near Stamford, Conn., where he has a farm.

Mr. Thompson has a slightly barbed wit for our national foibles, now well known to every one through our own passion for self-criticism. But he also finds much in the American and the American scene which is superior to his native hearth. If you would rather be tickled than enjoy a hearty laugh, try three chapters of "I Lost My English Accent" in a beaker of warm whisky before retiring.

J. H. T.

The Real Casey Jones.

"Casey Jones," by Fred J. Lee. [Southern Publishers, $2.50.]

It is with great amazement, usually, that people learn Casey Jones was not just a myth, a name assembled to rhyme with "engine's moans" in a stirring song about a brave engineer.

Casey was born John Luther Jones in Cayce, Ky., the town that supplied him with his nickname. He came to be known as the fastest engineer on the Illinois Central. He was killed on April 30, 1900, near Vaughans, Miss., while making up time for the Cannon Ball Express, time another engineer had lost. Casey crashed the Cannon Ball into a freight that couldn't make it onto a side track in time.

Mr. Lee knows his railroads and writes about the heroic deeds out on the main line with vividness and feeling. The chapter on Casey's last run is magnificent. It takes little imagination to see the mileposts flashing past the cab windows or to hear the notes of Casey's whippoorwill whistle, sounding for the last time across the bottom lands.

Take the Time for Finished Makeup Job

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The habit so many of us business women have of sleeping until the last minute in the morning and then "throwing" ourselves together for a breathless dash to the office is a bad one. It means that we sometimes forget the belts to our dresses, find that we have on mismated stockings, and, what is most important, we have slapped on our makeup in such haste that in a strong light we look something like comic valentines. In almost every office you'll find us putting on the finishing touches with our purse vanity kits. We labor under a great handicap, for the light over the office washstand is not always good, and our makeup "tools" are not as handy as the ones we didn't have time to use at home.

Because we've been guilty of this habit so much ourselves, we've made up our mind to try a new experiment, which means getting out of bed 10 minutes earlier, and a reversal of our usual dressing procedure. Instead of waiting until we're ready to leave the house to put on our makeup hurriedly, we've tried making our time to do it immediately after our bath. As a result, we've found that, even if we do have "to step on it" a little to dress come out with a better looking face and more self-assurance.

Here's the way to make up the face. On your freshly washed face first smooth on a foundation cream which exactly matches the skin. If you find by a close mirror inspection that it shows, blot off the excess with a face tissue. Then put on a cream rouge. Sometimes you change off to a dry rouge, just because you're the type who likes a change. But whichever it is, see that it matches your underlying skin tone. If after a moment you discover it is not evenly applied, or that you have too much on, smooth it or rub a little of it off. [A facial tissue box is a handy dressing table item.] Next, dab on enough powder so that your face looks as though you'd dipped it in a flour barrel. But wait! Immediately, using a powder brush, brush it off—presto! If some of the powder remains on brows and lashes, use a teeny bit of white vaseline on an eyebrow brush "to wash" it off. And finally, apply your lipstick, which matches your rouge.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The windows are blazing with new collections that include evening gowns, evening coats, and cocktail and dinner costumes made of shiny materials and trimmed with fur. These costumes feature delectable color and color combines. A celestial blue seems to share the spotlight with the most subtle shades of pale gray.

There are sleek, form revealing dinner suits of pale blue wool trimmed with bands of brown fur. There are glittering dinner dresses of pale blue metallic cloth, almost as thin as chiffon, made with a double cartwheel skirt, a neat small waistline, and a shirtwaist top with elbow length sleeves. Down the front are gorgeous jeweled buttons.

Pale gray costumes are particularly romantic, the dove grays glinting with either silver or gold as the accent. Very seductive clinging costumes are demurely fitted with long tight sleeves, the body lines sheathed smoothly, the hiplines accentuated with suave folds of the materials.

Separate jackets that shine with eye blinding splendor are better than ever before.

J. Alexander McWilliams to Take Bride

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALTHOUGH announcement of their engagement was made in New York two weeks ago, the news just has come to Chicago that Alex McWilliams is to take a New Yorker as his bride. The engagement of the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles David McWilliams of Dwight, Ill., to Miss Alice Reed was made known by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Victor Reed of Methuen, Mass., on Oct. 2.

Young Mr. McWilliams, who was christened James Alexander, has been working in New York for the last few months, but before that he was engaged in business here, and was considered one of Chicago's most attractive young bachelors. He has a bachelor brother, Charles Jr., who lives in Dwight, but who comes here frequently, and a benedict brother, John P. McWilliams II., who lives in Lake Forest with his wife, the former Priscilla Morse, and their little daughter.

Miss Reed, who lives in New York, is a graduate of Dana Hall, and of the School of Fine Arts and Crafts in Boston, and of Pratt institute in Brooklyn. Mr. McWilliams prepared at the Hill school for Princeton, from which he was graduated in 1935. He was captain of the track team at Princeton and president of the Cottage club.

It is understood that the wedding will take place next month, and that Mr. McWilliams will bring his bride here to start housekeeping.

Frances Durr Engaged to Gordon Haverkampf.

Further romantic news of interest is the announcement from Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Durr of Kenilworth of the engagement of their daughter, Frances Ellen, to Gordon Douglas Haverkampf, son of Mrs. John L. Haverkampf Jr. and the late Mr. Haverkampf of Chicago.

Miss Durr was graduated from Sarah Lawrence college and later attended Northwestern university. She is an active member of the Grey Ladies.

Mr. Haverkampf was graduated from Culver Military academy and the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration at Hanover, N. H. He has a brother, John L. Haverkampf III., whose wife is the former Ilma Jane Theurer.

Drama League to Hear Chinese Actress Today.

Members of the Chicago Drama league and their guests will gather for tea and a program of monologs at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. The artist will be Soo Yong, a Chinese actress. She will appear in costume.

Tzechin Lu, the Chinese consul, and Mrs. Lu will be especial guests. Pouring will be Mrs. William E. Vogelback, Mrs. Welch Dickinson, Mrs. Kenath Sponsel, Mrs. Walter J. Cummings, Mrs. Carl Defebaugh, and Mrs. Robert C. Griffiths.

The first meeting of the English Speaking union next Monday will also be the first one at which Rufus C. Dawes will preside. It will be further distinguished by having Dr. James Rowland Angell, president emeritus of Yale university and president of the English Speaking Union of the United States, as especial guest and speaker. His subject will be "The Challenge of the Present Crisis." The meeting will be held at 12:30 o'clock in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House.

Dinner Will Mark Vassar Anniversary.

The first formal party of the year for Vassar alumnæ will be held on Saturday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Several hundred Vassar alumnæ and husbands and beaux will gather for dinner to celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the college. Alumnæ groups all over the United States and Canada will meet at the same time. President Henry Noble MacCracken of Vassar will address them in a nation-wide radio talk at 9:45 o'clock Chicago time.

Morris Hadley of New York, president of the board of trustees, will address the Chicago dinner. Mrs. Sylvanus G. Lee, president of the Chicago Vassar club, and Mrs. John E. Barlow, newly elected president of the north shore group, will be hostesses for the evening. Miss Katherine Brothers and Miss Harriet Street are in charge of dinner arrangements.

The woman's committee of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will give a musical and tea at 3 o'clock next Wednesday at the Casino club. The program will be presented by Charles Dilling Brewer, violinist, with Arpad Sandor at the piano, and by Mrs. Gilbert Smith, soprano, accompanied by Hadassah McGiffen at the piano.

Mrs. Prescott Childs, who has been visiting her sister, Miss Marion Lewis, for about a week, plans to leave in a fortnight for the east. Her son, David, who is in Connecticut with Miss Katherine Lewis, will come to Chicago next week. About a month from now Mrs. Childs expects to return to her home in the West Indies.

Count and Countess Eugenio Casagrande are arriving tomorrow for a short visit with her mother, Mrs. B. M. Gresham, at the Ambassador hotel.

Horatiana.

Chicago's greatest collector of Horace and Horatiana — and the greatest in the country—is Stephen E. Hurley, La Salle street lawyer. He now has more than 2,100 editions of books by and about Horace in his library, not including duplicates, which bring the number up to 2,500. He also has Horatian prints and engravings, two phonograph records of Horation verse, as well as musical arrangements of Horatian verse, and a number of manuscripts, including twelve of Eugene Field's Horatian translations. The books range from fifteenth century editions (incunabula) to current items. Some of them are translations of Horace into other languages.

Collector Hurley, who had been left with a latent interest in Horace by a teacher during his school days, began his Horace collections after he found a small seventeenth century edition of Horace in an old North Clark street book shop—a relatively unimportant item. Last February the University of California brought out a bibliography, Quintus Horatius Flaccus, which cites the Hurley collection as one of the three, out of seventeen private collections in the country, conspicuous for early printing and manuscripts. Its title page is taken from the edition of William Norton, 1574, in the library of Mr. Hurley.

Now might be a good time to quote Eugene Field's verse:

When I was broke in London in
the fall of '89,
I chanced to spy in Oxford street
this tantalizing sign:
A splendid Horace, cheap for cash!
Of course I had to look Upon the vaunted bargain, and it was a noble book!
A finer one I've never seen, nor can I hope to see—
A first edition, richly bound, and clean as clean can be.
And just to think, for three pounds ten, I might have had that
Pine,
When I was broke in London in the fall of '89.

Field merits sympathy, according to Mr. Hurley, for that was a bargain. He has a choice Pine from Field's library, on the fly leaf of which is written the above verse in Field's inimitable copy plate hand.

Today's Styles Cut Speed of St. Luke's Show

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

Blame the 1939-'40 winter fashions, not the St. Luke's board, but the 13th annual fashion show for the benefit of St. Luke's hospital, was not up to the other 12. It moved more slowly, it did not have the sparkle and brilliance that have come to be associated with these superfashion shows that the clever and hard-working women give to raise money for their charitable work.

Today's fashions demand that the mannequins walk more langorously, so the show lasted more than half an hour longer than usual. Imagine some one who looks like a picture of grandma in long, full, stiff skirts, wasp waist, and hair in a peruke stepping along at a snappy pace. It just cannot be done.

We heard that some of the exhibitors had trouble getting the models into the proper foundation garments for displaying the gowns, and we well can believe it, for I doubt if any one today wants to be laced and boned the way grandma was. But most of the dinner and evening gowns shown demand tiny waists and full busts and rounding hips. Even the slimmest of the models had to be put into stays before donning the creation she was to display before the 1,725 women and three men who filled the ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

Seating Arrangement Shows Improvement.

The seating arrangement in the afternoon was different this year, an improvement, for no chairs at the tea tables faced away from the runway. Not quite so large an audience could be accommodated because of this, but since the price of the tickets was upped fifty cents, probably the results will be the same.

The setting this year was a triumph and provided a spectacular entrance and background for the 102 models. They entered from behind Grecian pillars that seemed to be far in the distance; the young women walked down a few steps and then down a long, winding ramp onto the stage proper and thence onto the runway. The whole was pristine white except for black velvet hangings at the rear and the immediate background of the pillars, which was a rich aquamarine.

The models were lovely as to face, figure, coiffures, and make-up. The new way of walking is not a complete success; probably modern misses are not accustomed to having their waists confined and it makes them walk stiffly. The hair-dos were beautiful in most cases, simple, showing the shape of the heads, and there were no long, ratty bobs. If a young woman had long hair it was confined in a snood, rolled up sleekly, or tied into a peruke, just like George Washington used to wear. I can remember only two girls who wore their hair long in the same style in which they wear it every day, Miss Sally Perry and Mrs. Philip D. Armour IV.

Mrs. Armour was like a picture by Velasquez in a white satin evening gown with black velvet trimming, black gloves, and her long blonde hair with bangs across her forehead fitted into the picture perfectly.

Miss Perry's black page boy was not quite so in keeping with the old-fashioned looking blue heavy taffeta evening gown trimmed with black bauble fringe and passementerie that she wore.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Take the Stand, Franchot Tone.

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 17.—He is a very stubborn guy, and when you charge him with it he denies stubbornly that he's stubborn. . . . He was born in the city of Niagara Falls on Feb. 27, 1905, when Teddy Roosevelt was President.

One of his first stage rôles put him in a Brooklyn jail over night when the Brooklyn district attorney's office closed "Holy Night," the play, because the second act showed a house of ill repute. . . . His greatest professional disappointment—the rôles which he's inherited since "Mutiny on the Bounty."

He thought that that picture would establish him as a movie performer, but since then he's been given a series of fatuous parts. . . . His favorite actor is Alfred Lunt. . . . He believes that Pauline Lord is the finest actress he's ever applauded.

He was manager of the football team at Hill school, famous Pottstown, Pa., prep. . . . At Cornell, however, he was interested only in the dramatic classes conducted by able A. M. Drummond, head of the public speaking department. . . . Students got no credits for the plays in which they engaged. . . . He had played 40 different rôles before he was graduated with an A. B. degree in the class of 1927.

Playwright Sidney Kingsley was a class ahead of him at Cornell. . . . From Cornell he went to Buffalo, where a cousin, Pascal Franchot, was heading the Garry McGarry Players. . . . He acted as assistant stage manager and finally got a chance to act when the juvenile lead, anxious to break his contract, went on a three day binge. . . . Director Ralph Murphy gave the drunk's rôle to Tone.

He is a mixture of Irish, French, English, Dutch, German, and Scotch. . . . Tone is an Irish name, going back to famous Wolf Tone. . . . He is a frat brother of Alpha Delta Phi, to which Fredric March belonged at Wisconsin and Walter Wanger was pledged at Dartmouth. . . . After 15 screen tests in New York City he was finally signed by M-G-M's Al Altman after he did a test with Jean Muir. . . . However, he'd made a picture before then, at the Paramount eastern studios, with Claudette Colbert and Melvyn Douglas. . . . It was called "The Wiser Sex."

His first picture in Hollywood was "Today We Live," with Gary Cooper and Bob Young. . . . It was in that first picture that he met Joan Crawford. . . . He says that she is the most attractive girl he's ever known.

His favorite companion, Burgess Meredith. . . . The greatest stage performance he ever saw, John Barrymore's "Hamlet." . . . The best all around performances he's ever seen in a play, "Golden Boy." . . . The greatest actor he's ever witnessed, veteran Italian répertoire star, Grasso, a Sicilian, who played down on Grand street in New York City.

Personally he preferred of his own pictures "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Lives of a Bengal Lancer." . . . His favorite author, Ernest Hemingway. . . . He will return to the stage in Hemingway's "Fifth Column": leaves here in two weeks to report for rehearsals on Broadway.

His favorite tune, Cole Porter's "Night and Day." . . . His favorite clubs, Jack Kriendler's "21," and Sherman Billingsley's Stork club. . . The worst play he ever saw, Lawson's "Internationale," in which he appeared. . . . The worst picture he ever saw, "Straight Is the Way," in which he appeared. . . . The play that he most enjoyed, "Green Grow the Lilacs," with June Walker and Helen Westley.

His professional ambition, to return to Hollywood next year and play comedy rôles such as he had in "Love on the Run," the Gable-Crawford co-starrer. . . . His great thrill, the preview of "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," and he says that he owes all of his success in that to Director Henry Hathaway.

Eleanor O'Reilly got him his first important stage break. . . . The night before he and the rest of the cast of "Holy Night" were clapped into the bastille at Brooklyn she saw the play, and on that basis suggested him to Guthrie McClintic, who was casting Katharine Cornell's "Age of Innocence." . . . He and the star did not play any scene together.

He says that Lee Strassberg and the Group theater players taught him more about acting than he'd ever known. . . . The lowest pay he ever received on the stage was his $15 a week salary with the new Playwrights' theater at Greenwich Village. . . . He is boyish, likable, idealistic, and stubborn. . . . That's where I came in.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

And now the melancholy days have come for the women whose hands look like rare steaks during the cold weather!

Of course, the basic cause is poor circulation. Step that up and you'll see a great difference. But it's true of every one of us that external hand treatment takes on a new importance in cold weather. The skin gets rough if you don't watch out.

One great beauty house suggests companion beauty aids—and we think it's a swell suggestion. We've known it to work out wonderfully. For daytime use, after those innumerable hand washings which are just routine to the city dweller, they suggest a quick treatment lotion. For the before falling into bed treatment they have a rich lubricating cream.

The method of using both a lotion and a rich cream has always seemed best to us, and these are exceptionally fine products. The lotion not only softens but protects. It should be worked in well, even under the nails, where it prevents soil from becoming too deeply imbedded. It dries in a jiffy. You can pull your gloves on immediately.

The cream is much, much richer. This, too, should be worked into the hands well—and for goodness' sake give those poor hands at least 5 or 10 minutes of massage. It's good for their contour and their complexion. Leave the cream on over night to get the best results.

This pair are good guardians of hand beauty and comfort in cold weather. We're sure they'll keep your hands more than presentable.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

If you feel in need of laughter of the —er—belly variety, I recommend a dose of "$1,000 a Touchdown."

College football, as it might be comprehended and played in an institution for the mildly insane, has large innings in the story, which, otherwise, delineates the hectic romance between an orphaned lady with a defunct university—"relic" of her departed father, on her hands, and the crowd fearing son of a famous actor. . . .

Martha and Marlowe meet in the office of a psychiatrist. She has no boy friend. He has no girl friend. . . . Boy chases girl. Girl chases boy. . . . Eventually boy becomes president and football coach of the Madison university which is forthwith turned into a college specializing in romance and dramatics.

But what is college without football? Or co-eds? [Idea! Get a handsome gridiron eleven and co-eds would come without calling!] So, Martha hies her forth and by bribes and beauty lures the most pulchritudinous males she can find from the nests of other colleges. True, it develops that she has picked ten "backs" and one "center" and has allowed for NO substitutes. But—phooey—! Who cares? Newspapers have spread the good word, and the campus is alive with beautiful damsels.

The problem of securing a team for the Madison team to play crops up next. This is settled—after Madison has been turned down by every other institution, including regrets from both the Army and the Navy—by securing a contract with a team of professionals, who, of course mow Madison down until—well—the title to this movie DOES mean something. . . .

Miss Raye, considerably more ladylike than usual in a blonde wig and some really nifty clothes, is amusing and, do you know it, sometimes downright appealing. She and Mr. Brown hilariously head an able and enthusiastic cast. None of the players take themselves or their vehicle seriously for a quarter of a minute—and you're funny if you do.

Also on the program is "Mutiny in the Big House," which tells another of those grim stories about sinful men, the wages of their sin and their efforts to eel out of paying. . . . The cast is a good one, featuring Barton McLane as chief evil doer and Charles Bickford as a fighting priest.

See you soon.

They Hunted a Fox

By Alice Campbell

[Copyright: 1939: By Alice Ormond Campbell.]

SYNOPSIS.

Alison Young and her fiancé, Dr. Colin Ladbroke, are guests at Chenerys, the English country estate of Tom Boldre, to attend a fox hunt and ball. Wynn Marchmont, sister of Tom's wife, Pat, is engaged to Tom's brother, Derek, a veterinarian. Alison overhears a love scene between Pat and Arthur Kingsclere. Chenerys is mortgaged to the hilt. Gregg, Tom's agent, urges him to accept an offer made for the estate, but Tom refuses to sell. At the hunt, from a far off hill, Alison and Colin see Tom thrown and a man bending over him. Reaching the accident, they find Derek stooping over Tom's prostrate form. A farmer, Glover, happens along and helps them. Tom, revived, is surprised that Derek, rather than his neighbor, Maj. Fitts, found him. Three weeks later Tom is again thrown and dies soon after. Alison visits Wynn at Chenerys. Riding near the scene of Tom's first accident they find the dead body of Glover. Official verdict is that Glover was killed by a shot from a passing car. Kingsclere, Derek, and Maj. Fitts all drove that way. Inspector Headcorn from Scotland Yard investigates. He finds the murder weapon. It belongs to Maj. Fitts, but was stolen the afternoon of the day Glover was shot—after Kingsclere and Derek had called. Dr. Blount, who'd attended Tom, suffers an apparent stroke while the inspector questions him. Dr. Colin Ladbroke exposes the illness as a fake and gets Dr. Blount to admit he gave Tom an anti-tetanus injection, which caused his death, as he had not been desensitized after a previous injection. The first injection must have been given Tom after his first fall when he was unconscious—whoever gave it must have murdered Glover because he was a witness. Derek admits having anti-tetanus serum which was taken from his room. Derek goes out for a walk in the night—that same night Mrs. Glover is beaten up. Her assailant was evidently seeking to destroy evidence in the farmhouse.

INSTALMENT XXXIII.

TWO WORRIED SUSPECTS.

Crossing the still deserted lounge Headcorn opened the coat cupboard door, stepped back from its brightly lighted confusion, and apologized.

"I didn't know I was intruding, Miss Marchmont."

There was Wynn on the floor, surrounded by dogs. Tangled curls over hard, desperate eyes, much display of slim, shapely calf, on her lap a Bedlington, pinioned and being subjected to an arduous grooming.

The steel comb dropped. "O, don't mind me!"

Up she scrambled, chin high, leaving him the field. Five minutes later Headcorn grunted in disappointment and quitted the house.

Outside he cogitated. Someone had slipped forth into these grounds. Not Miss Marchmont, too dark and too tall to be Miss Young. He pried a little in the gloom, wherever possible keeping to the grass. The stable yard was silent, moonbeams silvering the red roofs. Kitchen, garden, and shrubberies alike empty. What about the other side of the house?

He found a walled rose garden, its scrolled iron gates slightly ajar. Down at the far end, under what appeared to be a rustic arbor, a whitish blur moved. He skirted the old brick wall on its outer side. Nearing the corner he heard low pitched voices. A man's and a woman's. He could identify both.

"Not now, Pat!" urged the younger Kingsclere irritably. "Can't you see it won't do?"

"Why ever not? I used my own extension."

"But my end, idiot! The Governor was listening to every word."

"Well,"—sulkily—"and how was I to know you'd had this damned detective over there?"

"Use your brains, girl. My God! Surely you realize I've got to take the rap too. Didn't I have the same chance to pinch Fitts' revolver? Didn't I drive along that blasted lane?"

"O, it's all too utterly stupid! Why should you pinch anybody's old revolver? You hadn't any excuse to kill Glover."

"They don't know that. I might have had." The words were lower, spoken through set teeth.

"Why? He hadn't anything on us. No one has anything, so there!"

"God! Is it possible you still don't grasp it?"

A hand smote the arbor seat. All the small dry rose leaves rustled violently. A pregnant hush, and then:

"You don't have to explain why you're treating me like a leper," said Mrs. Boldre icily. "Go home—and stop there. See if I mind."

"Hold on, Pat! You've got to listen to me." A second step strode angrily in pursuit. "No, you blasted fool, come here!"

The sound of a struggle. A sob of fury merging into a sigh, then soft, yielding murmurs, not yet wholly placated. The bench creaked and for long moments nothing but the vaguest of murmurs reached the wall. The listener waited. At last, after some quarter of an hour, a lithe, dinner-jacketed figure alighted in the lush grass only ten paces from where he stood. It moved away into the shadows towards a path leading to a stile. Presently, up at the other end of the walled enclosure, a white wraith appeared for an instant to melt unobtrusively into the back entrance of the house.

Budsworth dozed over the wheel outside the lodge gates. Roused, he lent a greedy ear to his chief's disclosures.

"It's true, then, about those two. Here!" He had switched on the light. "And whose hair have you got on your shoulder?"

Headcorn craned to see. He brushed crossly at his homespuns.

"Fifty-seven dogs. The Marchmont girl was combing them in that damned cupboard."

The sergeant's eye glinted. "Yes. And which breed of dog grows hair like this?"

He held up a snowy cotton wisp. It curled between finger and thumb. The Inspector goggled, made a grab, and for several seconds swore hard.

. . . .

By the lamp on the table Wynn and Derek came together.

"Not yet," muttered Derek wryly.

"Not ever!" flashed the girl. "Why, what evidence can there be against you? You fell heir to this place. You were one of several people who could have taken that revolver. You took a walk at night as anybody might do. O, yes,"—less confidently. "And you once had some anti-tetanus which someone stole."

He did not answer. She eyed him covertly.

"I wonder," she whispered, "if he's heard about Arthur—and Pat?"

"I doubt it." His glance strayed.

Voice hard, she said, "If by any chance they do arrest you, he'll have to be told."

"Told what? A thing that can quite safely be denied? It won't clear me to bring accusations against your sister and a friend. Even if I felt inclined. Funny, I've always rather liked Arthur, you know."

"What's that got to do with it? If a man's done two murders is it likely he'll speak up to save another man from—from—" Horror swamped her. She was trembling from head to foot.

He laid brusque hold of her. "Don't, Wynn. Do you hear?" Suddenly he let go. "Don't," he repeated under his breath. "Keep all this for—a better object." He turned away.

Her heart stopped beating. Then it went on again. Of course, this was only his old self-depreciation cropping up as it used to do. She fondled his arm.

"Darling! If there could be a better object, I'd—I'd loathe it! You do know that?" He had withdrawn from her touch. She swallowed her despair and forced herself to be practical. "So he searched your room?"

"O, yes! It's a thin story about that stuff being stolen. Why should he believe it?"

"Arthur could have taken the syringe. Easily."

"And Gregg. And Padgett, and Fitts—to name a few. What's the use? We'll never find out."

"Wait! How could Glover have got on to the real reason Tom died? I mean—" She stopped, perceiving her error.

"Quite," said Derek, observant. "I thought sooner or later you'd strike that snag. Now you see, don't you, just how the whole thing dovetails together?"

She did see, cruelly. It all hinged on Glover. What he and only he had witnessed that day Tom came down . . .

"It didn't have to happen then. It was some other time—of course."

"What other time?"

"O, fool, how should I know. Tom had heaps of accidents."

"None when he was unconscious. Make sure every hunt member and servant has been fully canvassed on that subject."

Some Children Not Ready for Life at School

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I'll be so glad when Dickie is old enough to go to school. Then his teacher can deal with him! And I'll get a little rest. I just can't manage him; he's a difficult child. Every one says so."

On the heels of this came a letter. Because there are so many talented and conscientious teachers of young children, I believe this communication deserves space today.

"I read your column regularly and, because I know so many mothers do, I hope you will say something about this attitude of so many parents—that magic will be worked upon their children in the schoolroom.

"The children who start in school from homes of all types are supposed to have a miracle worked upon them. Deficiencies and misbehaviors and the like are supposed to fall away under the spell of the teacher.

"While this is not fair to the teacher, it is doubly unfair to the child who, from lack of discipline or training at home, is often miserable at school and has an unnecessarily hard time adjusting himself to the new environment and personalities and simple demands made upon him. Is this a subject you consider worth giving space to?"

It is, indeed, and one worth the thought of parents of young children, especially of those who are beginning school this year or who will do so in February.

The teacher, particularly the public school teacher, has a subtle and difficult task. Children come to her from every sort of home. Some have been intelligently brought up; but many are spoiled, wilful, uncontrolled, disobedient, used to being governed by fear, as well as tired and undernourished. She has the task of guiding these children individually and molding them into a harmonious, well behaved group. She wants them to be happy and as active as possible, also to learn, without resort to force, coaxing or harshness, or any of the other measures they may be used to.

This cannot be done in a day. Many teachers do possess the magic touch, but it can't be felt at once, though some parents expect it.

As this teacher says, it is fair to neither teacher nor child, but more unfair to the child to plunge him into an experience for which his parents have done nothing to fit him.

often on such a wee hat a fairly large bird was poised. Such a hat was worn by Mrs. C. Daggett Harvey, whose hat and snood were black and whose bird was white. Mrs. John I. Shaw's little model had not one but a dozen bluebirds on it.

Judging by the clothes displayed yesterday you must be very, very modest at night and be completely covered, or be absolutely bold and expose as much of your neck and shoulders as the law allows. You may wear your hair unadorned or you may pin anything you happen to have in it, a bow, a flower or a feather. Or you may envelope it in a snood studded with flowers or sparkling gems. A nice style for a busy woman who does not find time to have her hair done on the day of a ball! Long gloves at night are a MUST.

For an evening coat you may wear a short peplum jacket [one of the ugliest fashions ever to be revived, I'd say] like Miss Jean Hoff's pale blue one; a fur pelerine, which is longer in front than behind so that you can fold up the long ends into a muff [Mrs. James Addington wore an ermine one]; a full length dark mink coat that costs $15,000 like the one worn by Mrs. Charles N. Fuller; or a long, full coat that reminds one of the dressing gowns Granny used to wear. Both the coat and the dressing gown fasten only at the neckline. Mrs. William H. Morgan, the former Frances Orcutt, wore a violet coat of this type.

Present Smart Daytime Outfits.

Outstanding was a daytime outfit modeled by Mrs. Burke Williamson. It had a skirt of gray and a jacket of gold with a wide band of leopard at the bottom of the jacket. The long, tight sleeves were of the fur to the elbow, and the hat was of leopard skin. Mrs. Gilbert H. Robinson wore the same subtle combination in a wool dinner suit: A long sheath gown of gray and a short jacket of gold with cuffs of ocelot.

Mrs. Wesley H. Loomis, Miss Dorothy Drummond, and Mrs. John L. Irving opened the show by appearing in the pink smocks they wear when they work in the St. Luke's shop, the latest project of the woman's board. The show was closed two and a half hours later by a march of St. Luke's nurses and Gray ladies.

Easy to look at and to remember were Mrs. Peter Moon's dazzling turquoise blue hat and gloves to match; tiny Deborah Marie Washburn and Georgia Bluford Spencer in twin blue and pink pajamas and dressing gowns, pushing bassinets down the runway; Miss Margaret Burrows in red python shoes and bag and suede gauntlets of the same rich color [it was the shoes, bag, and gloves she was modeling; the junior Mrs. Byron S. Harvey's white silk jersey evening gown with a long scarf that she wore as a veil, making her look like the heroine of "The Garden of Allah;" Mrs. Edward Byron Smith's lovely neck, arms, and hands displaying jewels; Mrs. Charles S. Dewey Jr., and her sister, Mrs. Garfield King, in evening gowns of the same shade, dove blue-gray, and Mrs. Carl W. von Ammon in a hooded white fox evening wrap.

Mrs. George S. Chappell Jr. was a Victorian bride in an exquisite heavy white moire gown that was designed by Molyneux just before he went to war. The bridesmaids, Miss Kay Littlefield and Miss Prudence Johnson, were in ankle length teal blue velveteen dresses, the sort of frocks the French call "last youth."

Mrs. Richard K. Juergens wore a black velvet dinner costume with white feathered hat, white gloves, and white bag, just the sort of outfit that our grandmother wore when she went calling.

Liver appears much too infrequently upon the dining table. It is a wonderfully nutritious meat, containing rich supplies of iron, copper, and vitamin A, and even a little of the rare vitamin D. If properly cooked, it has a delicate flavor and tender texture. And it possesses the added advantage of being easily and quickly cooked.

Crisp, dry bacon is the ideal accompaniment for liver. Sometimes onions are fried with liver, but my personal preference is for broiled liver and bacon, with creamed onions. Broiling prevents overcooking liver and produces crisp bacon. Creamed onions are a rather mild flavor contrast, and enhance the appearance of the finished meal more than fried ones do.

Mashed potatoes, tomato and chicory salad with anchovy French dressing, and a simple dessert of sliced apples and Camembert cheese finish a liver and bacon meal to perfection.

SHORT CUT DINNER WITH LIVER

Broiled Liver and Bacon.

Beef or calf liver, sliced ¾ inch thick
2 strips bacon for each serving
Melted butter, salt, pepper

Wipe the liver and dip it into melted butter. Bacon fat will do just as well. Place on broiling rack with the bacon strips. Broil under moderate heat, about three minutes on each side. Liver will be done as soon as it is well browned. Sprinkle with salt and pepper before serving.

CREAMED ONIONS

Choose fairly small onions if you wish to cook them whole. Or slice larger onions in thick pieces. Drop into boiling, salted water and cook without a cover until the onions are just tender. Drain and add a hot medium white sauce [2 tablespoons each of flour and butter to 1 cup milk, salt, and pepper]. If the onions are strong in flavor, change the water once while cooking. A part of the cooking water may be used in making the sauce.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

The following letter was received from an inmate in a penitentiary and is indisputable proof that splendid bridge can be found in very strange places.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: As a constant and appreciative reader of your daily bridge articles, I wish to submit a hand which seems to me to bring up a new point. As declarer, I freely admit I was greatly helped by the opening and subsequent leads. Regardless of this, I feel that very few defenders would have seen through my ruse.

"West, dealer.
"North-South vulnerable.

"The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 spade	Pass	Pass	2 clubs
2 diamonds	4 clubs	Pass	5 clubs
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

"I was South. Perhaps the bidding wasn't all it should have been, but I feel I was justified in going to game after my partner's jump raise.

"West opened the king and ace of diamonds, then shifted to the heart king. Winning with the ace, I proceeded to analyze the hand. Search as I might, I counted no more than 10 tricks, even with the spade finesse. Trumping my remaining diamond would bring me no nearer my contract. Therefore, the only hope I could see was to try to make my diamond good without trumping. The way I figured it was that West undoubtedly would feel that, if I had a third diamond, I would ruff it. Therefore, I proceeded to make him think I had no diamond left. Pulling four rounds of trumps, I tried and succeeded with the spade finesse. I then played dummy's remaining two trumps, discarding two hearts from my own hand. Next, I cashed the spade king and led a small spade to the ace, then took the last trick with the eight of diamonds, which was good by now, inasmuch as West had thrown off the queen and nine. Needless to say, if West had led three rounds of diamonds originally, or had held onto a third diamond, I would have been up the flue. No. 14340."

Although there was nothing sensational about the play of this hand, it was a shrewd example of dummy reversal play and speaks well for the caliber of bridge to be found in our penal institutions. Incidentally, I venture to say that prisoners who go into contract bridge seriously give very little trouble to the wardens, so it might not be a bad idea if the study and practice of bridge were further encouraged.

The declarer's analysis that there would be no way to make this hand, except by fooling West, was quite correct. Of course, perfect coöperation and defense on the part of East and West would have revealed declarer's plan, but this does not detract from its excellence. Presumably, while declarer was running off six rounds of trumps and one spade, West discarded one diamond, one heart, and one spade, and then faced his first dilemma on the play of the fifth club. But what was East discarding on these rounds? He could follow to only two. If he then let go his remaining two diamonds before discarding from any other suit, West could take it for granted that East had let go all his diamonds and that South, therefore, was marked with the diamond eight. In other words, it is the essence of good defense to discard all of one suit [if it is worthless] in order to give partner an exact count of that suit. However, I can well understand that this may have been over the head of East to do or West to interpret and, as I have said, my correspondent deserves credit for his psychological coup.

Open Ancient Music Festival at Goodman

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The Goodman theater was the scene last night of the first concert of an ambitious festival of ancient music which is being held this fall under the sponsorship of Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, resident authorities on old music and musical instruments. The music last evening consisted entirely of the works of Bach and Mozart, and was performed by harpsichordists, string players, and a singer.

The frail, twangy tones of the harpsichord dominated the evening, for the instrument was used, singly or in combination, in every number except one on the program.

The two principal items—the Bach concertos for three and four harpsichords, respectively—became almost brilliant by reason of the great skill of the performers in utilizing the instrument's surprising capacity for variation in color and dynamics.

Other Bach items were an arrangement for two harpsichords of the sixth trio sonata, and a song, "My Heart Now Is Merry," ably performed by George Bishop. Mozart was represented by a four-hand fantasia played in a finely inflected manner by Dorothy Lane and Dorothy Brown, and a string divertimento by Leonard Sorkin, Milton Preves, and Dudley Powers—violinist, Bishop violist, and cellist, respectively.

OPERA REVIEW

BY CECIL SMITH.

Franco Perulli sang the tenor rôle of Alfredo in Verdi's "La Traviata" for the first time locally in last night's San Carlo Opera company performance at the Auditorium theater. Though the more dramatic moments of the score overtaxed his slender voice, he endowed his characterization with romantic elegance and his singing with grateful color and nuance.

Lucille Meusel was a comely and impeccable Violetta. Ivan Petroff sang the "Di provenza" aria with long and well sustained vocal line. Carlo Peroni conducted with his unfailing authority.

Auditions of Chicago singers interested in winning opportunities to sing with the San Carlo Opera company will be held tomorrow at 1 p. m. in the Auditorium theater.

Here comes that word "Longie"

from thousands to millions a day . . . in four months

A new product is booming. Advertising people are talking. No wonder. A cigarette—a brand item in a highly competitive field—is a spectacular success in four months. It broke into advertising last June . . . in the New York Herald Tribune. All summer, in small space, it appeared exclusively in the Gravure Section of this newspaper. During that time, this cigarette took hold . . . and climbed.

By the end of August, the manufacturer said "business is fine." Investigation proved business was phenomenal. Sales had tripled. Production was stepped up to millions a day. The factory moved to growing space for the second time in a year. All this built on an exclusive Herald Tribune campaign.

And on top of that, there is a fat pile of evidence that the Herald Tribune does a merchandising as well as selling job. Orders have continued to pour in from dealers and distributors, in most cases attached to clippings of the Herald Tribune ads.

The emphasis here is not on making cigarette history overnight, but on using a double-purpose medium when there's a double job to be done. By reaching Herald Tribune readers first, advertisers sell a group whose preferences are felt across the country. And they impress a body of retailers whose brand-consciousness is a national merchandising influence.

NEVERS STARTS CARD SHAKEUP; FIRES TWO

WALTERS WINS N. L. VALUABLE PLAYER AWARD

Leads Mize, 303 to 178, in Poll.

Past Winners

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 [Special].—Following are past winners of the National league most valuable players' award:

1924—Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn.
1925—Rogers Hornsby, St. Louis.
1926—Bob O'Farrell, St. Louis.
1927—Paul Waner, Pittsburgh.
1928—Jim Bottomley, St. Louis.
1929—Rogers Hornsby, Chicago.
1930—No award.
1931—Frankie Frisch, St. Louis.
1932—Chuck Klein, Philadelphia.
1933—Carl Hubbell, New York.
1934—Dizzy Dean, St. Louis.
1935—Gabby Hartnett, Chicago.
1936—Carl Hubbell, New York.
1937—Joe Medwick, St. Louis.
1938—Ernie Lombardi, Cincinnati.

New York, Oct. 17 [Special].—A little more than four years ago, William Henry [Bucky] Walters, third baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, protestingly gave up the business of infielding and agreed to try his skill as a pitcher. Today Bucky, right handed sinker ball star of the Cincinnati Reds, is the National league's most valuable player, an honor voted him by 24 members of the Baseball Writers of America, three from each city in the league.

Walters received 303 out of a possible total of 336 votes. His worth to the Reds in winning 27 games was considered such an outstanding contribution to their success that his nearest rival, Johnny Mize, St. Louis first baseman, had only 178 votes. Mize won the batting and home run championship. Only four points behind the St. Louis slugger was big Paul Derringer, winner of 25 games during the regular season and loser of two of the four games with the Yankees during the world series. The Reds' domination continued when Frank McCormick, youthful first baseman who led the league in runs batted in, polled 159 votes for fourth place.

Curt Davis Lands 4th Place.

These four were far ahead of the other players deemed outstanding. Curtis Davis, veteran right hander of the St. Louis Cardinals, secured 106 votes, but there were no others with more than 100 points. Jimmy Brown, Cardinals' shortstop, was sixth with 99 votes.

In the estimation of the experts, none of the Chicago Cubs' players was outstanding. They were paced by Stanley Hack, third baseman, who received 17 votes, two more than Outfielder Augie Galan's total. Bill Lee, whose sturdy right arm was a big factor in the Cubs' 1938 pennant conquest, was given only eight votes. Manager Gabby Hartnett received five, and Billy Herman, once rated the greatest second baseman in the league, escaped a shutout by getting a single vote.

Walters Failure as Infielder.

Walters came into organized baseball as an infielder for High Point in the Piedmont league in 1929. Because of his powerful throwing arm he attracted attention of the scouts, but his hitting was not up to major league standard. He was turned adrift by both the Boston clubs after lengthy trials, and was marked as a failure as an infielder with the Phillies in 1934 when he reluctantly agreed to become a pitcher.

Walters had no won and lost record in 1934. In 1935 he won nine and lost nine with the Phillies. The next season he won 11, but lost 21. In 1937 he scored 14 decisions while losing 15 and came back with his first plus .500 season last year when he won 15 and lost 14. In June of 1938 he was purchased by Cincinnati for $55,000 and two players, Catcher Virgil Davis and Al Hollingsworth. Walters is 29 years old. His home is in Philadelphia.

Votes received by other players follow:

Joe Medwick, St. Louis, 81; Leo Lurocher, Brooklyn, 52; Harry Danning, New York, 33; Luke Hamlin, Brooklyn, 32; Mel Ott, New York, 21; William Jurges, New York, 20; Dolph Camilli, Brooklyn, 20; Billy Myers, Cincinnati, 18; Terry Moore, St. Louis, 15; Morris Arnovich, Philadelphia, 10; Linus Frey, Cincinnati,; Enos Slaughter, St. Louis, 8 each; Bill Werber, Cincinnati, 6; Max West, Boston, 5; Ival Goodman, Cincinnati,, Buddy Hassett, Boston, Pete Coscarart, Brooklyn, and Elbie Fletcher, Boston-Pittsburgh, 4 each; Harry Lavagetto, Brooklyn, 2; Bob Bowman, St. Louis, 2; Eddie Miller, Boston, 1.

They Will Be Important Men in Minneapolis Saturday

OHIO STATE GIVES ITSELF PEP TALK FOR MINNESOTA

Columbus, O., Oct. 17 [Special].—The Ohio State football squad went thru its practice session here today with a new spirit. Huge placards in the dressing rooms reminded the Buckeyes that Minnesota could be beaten and that the Gophers were one Western conference team that held an edge in victories over the Buckeyes.

The cards referred to the Minnesota series of three games in which the Gophers and Buckeyes split even in the regular series and in the post-season charity game in 1931 which Minnesota won, 19 to 7.

Work on Pass Offense.

Forward pass offense came in for more work, Coach Francis Schmidt trying to build up his aerial department. Charlie Maag, injured regular right tackle, engaged in the workout and probably will start at Minneapolis Saturday. Others in the Ohio State lineup were Sarkkinen and Clair at ends, Daniell at the other tackle, Nosker and Marino at the guards and Andrako at center. Strausbaugh and Zadworney were at the halves, Scott at quarter back and Langhurst at full back.

BIERMAN WORKS ON TACKLERS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 17 [Special].—Bernie Bierman, University of Minnesota football coach, ready as usual for the worst when Ohio State comes to Memorial stadium Saturday, worked on defense today and the Gopher tackles got the heaviest going-over of all.

Figuring Ohio State will try to smash over tackle, Bierman spent much of the practice period with Capt. Win Pedersen and Sy Johnson, the regulars, and with the seven tackle replacements.

STUDY S. M. U. PLAYS.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 17 [Special].—Southern Methodist's tricky and powerful plays, as scouted in the Mustangs' games with Oklahoma and Notre Dame, were studied in Marquette university football practice today as the Hilltoppers began to bear down hard for Saturday's game in Dallas.

Coaches also took time to revamp a few of Marquette's running and passing plays. Johnny Goodyear, left half, and Chuck Peifer, tackle, who have been injured, rejoined the Marquette squad, but it is not certain that either will be able to play Saturday.

Maj. Griffith Recovering in Hospital

Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference athletic commissioner, was reported resting comfortably in St. Francis hospital in Evanston yesterday. He became ill after eating lunch Monday afternoon and collapsed in his home in Winnetka Monday night.

Maj. Griffith's ailment was described as a stomach disorder. His physician, Dr. Robert Keeton, said the patient would remain in the hospital for a rest and a complete physical examination.

"Maj. Griffith has been working hard since the opening of the football season filling speaking engagements and performing the many duties of his office," said Dr. Keeton. "He showed improvement today, and after a rest and complete checkup will return to his office."

Maj. Griffith has been commissioner of athletics in the Western conference for seventeen years.

ATHLETICS TAKE CONTROL OF 1ST FARM BALL CLUB

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 17 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics announced today acquisition of their first player farm through a franchise in the Interstate league. Roy W. Mack, vice president, said the Athletics would operate a club in Wilmington, Del., with financial backing from a group of local sportsmen.

The league operated as a class C circuit last season—its first in organized baseball—with teams in Hazelton, Sunbury, and Allentown, Pa., and Trenton, N. J.

League members decided at a meeting three weeks ago to apply for promotion to class B ranking.

Green Bay Signs Zarnas, Former Ohio State Guard

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 17 (AP).—The Green Bay Packers today signed Gus Zarnas, former Ohio State guard, who recently was released by the Brooklyn Dodgers. Zarnas played with Chicago Bears for two seasons.

Ticket Campaign for Prep Charity Game Under Way

Plans for the distribution of tickets for Mayor Kelly's city prep football championship game between the Catholic and Public School league winners in Soldiers' field Dec. 2 were announced at a luncheon yesterday by Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel and secretary of Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit fund.

Hodes said he was hopeful the crowd this year would equal the 1938 gathering of 80,000 which saw Donald [Flash] Griffin and the Fenger eleven defeat the Catholic league champions, Mount Carmel, 13 to 0. The largest attendance since the series was inaugurated by Mayor Kelly in 1934 was in 1937 when 115,000 saw Bill De Correvont lead Austin High to victory over Leo.

"Last year the benefit fund realized $100,000 from the football game and approximately $300,000 from the Night of Stars performance in Chicago Stadium. This enabled the fund to purchase clothing for 75,000 underprivileged children in Chicago," said Hodes. "I have watched the races in the Catholic and Public School league closely and I believe another crowd of 80,000 this season will see a great football show."

Hodes also announced that the Night of Stars show would be held in the Stadium on Dec. 20. Tickets for the football game now are on sale in the benefit fund's offices, 33 North La Salle street, and will be available in thirty-six public high schools and fifteen Catholic schools within a few days.

Fenger and Mount Carmel already have served warning that they intend to play a return engagement in Mayor Kelly's game. With Griffin again leading the attack, Fenger has scored three consecutive victories in the south section of the Public School league. Mount Carmel also is unbeaten, winning two south division contests in the Catholic league and playing a scoreless tie with Leo.

Other unbeaten elevens in the Public School league include Schurz and Lane Tech in the north section; Austin in the west division; Tilden Tech and Lindblom in the central and Morgan Park and Hirsch in the south. St. George leads the north zone of the Catholic league with three victories and no defeats, but St. Ignatius is in second place with two triumphs and one tie.

BIG 10 FOOTBALL RACE MAY RUN TO FORM, AFTER ALL

N. U. Can't Be Counted Out of Upper Bracket Yet.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

With the exception of Northwestern's defeats and the 61 points Harvard scored on Chicago, the Western conference football teams have moved along at approximately the pace predicted for them. This is written in contradiction of the criticism of football publicity, of which some few letters have found their way to our mail box.

The football coach naturally is disinclined to be optimistic, not so much because he fears the worst, but because he understands from experience that any cautious admission that he may have a good team may, by repetition, be puffed up to prediction his boys will win all their games. The first hand reporter generally is accurate. He writes, as it was written of Northwestern, that the Wildcats lost four regulars by graduation, that Bernie Jefferson will be missed at right half back because of his blocking ability, and that the ends were the most uncertain positions in the line.

Can't Control Overstatements.

But as far as Northwestern was concerned, national publicity could not be controled. Bill De Correvont was responsible and he couldn't help that either, except that he scored a couple of hundred points as a high school senior and played before a crowd of 100,000 in his last game. For two years, other sections of the country seem to have considered this record crowd a tribute to DeCorrevont's ability and not the result of fine publicity for a civic charity.

Consequently, the number of sophomores on Northwestern's roster misled many who did not think in terms of blockers. Northwestern's schedule was no help to the debut of a team that for one year had received national publicity. Oklahoma and Ohio State, in succession, constitute major competition at any time.

No Blocking, No Gains.

All of which leads to the fundamental proposition that it's difficult to win unless you have blocking superiority over an opponent and the best half back in the country will be stopped consistently unless his teammates at least get him past the line of scrimmage.

Sophomores do step into varsity lineups and play spectacular football. The best example recently is the Michigan trio of backs, Paul Kromer, Forest Evashevski, and Tom Harmon. They were regulars from the start of the Michigan State game last season and will be until injury or ineligibility tackles them. Every Big Ten coaching staf, and many others, knew that these boys would make good just as they knew that Bob Peoples, a sophomore last year, would fit into Southern California's team. But none of them ever received tremendous national publicity.

It's Up to Wildcats Now.

Before this season started the Big Ten was divided into two groups on the basis of material available, and skill. In the first group were Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio State, Purdue, and Northwestern. The other teams—Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Chicago—were grouped. Except for Northwestern's defeat by Ohio State, in its own group, there is no evidence that the Wildcats do not belong in the top flight. But if Wisconsin wins from Northwestern this week, and many believe the Badgers will, or if Illinois whips Northwestern, then Northwestern has been completely misjudged.

This is self-evident. Wisconsin outplayed Northwestern last year and won, and while both teams may be a bit below that level, it's up to the Wildcats since the pressure is on them.

The cycle that quite likely will determine the Big Ten championship opens this week with Ohio State at Minnesota. Both play Michigan next month. Purdue, by its tie with Minnesota, is very much in the race. For that matter, the Boilermakers can wait and see how the above cycle comes out but they must not forget to take care of their own schedule.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

IF sports news followed the lines of war communiques:

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 14 [Passed by Censor].—Notre Dame's invincible machine rolled over a Southern Methodist army today, scoring repeated gains with killing thrusts on all sectors. The enemy's attempts to raid our lines from the air were futile and tonight the entire invading force was retreating in disorder toward its base in Dallas, Tex.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 14 [Censored].—Southern Methodist's valiant football army marched into its home base tonight with bands playing and flags flying in celebration of an eminently successful attack on the highly mechanized columns of Notre Dame, which were directed by Fuehrer Elmer Layden in person. It was learned thru sources close to official circles that the mighty Mustangs suffered only minor losses.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 14 [By Acid Press—Uncensored].—Neutral observers who landed here tonight after a trip by airplane over the northern Indiana battle front reported that intensive artillery, tank, and aerial operations were carried out both by the Notre Dame and Southern Methodist armies today. Late in the evening, as dusk settled over the rival trenches, it appeared that a truce had been reached as the warring columns filed from the battlefield. Both sides apparently had suffered heavily. Altho no definite report of the outcome could be obtained because of the strict watch maintained by sentries at the Indiana-Kentucky border, well authenticated dispatches relayed to Louisville by way of neutral Ohio indicated the Irish regiments had attained their objectives. At any rate Dictator Elmer Layden was marshaling his forces for an invasion of various eastern provinces, where the Irish minorities were reported to be demanding liberation from their alien rulers.

The invasion, which is expected to follow the usual Layden plan of lightning attacks by land and air, is said to have been designed with the idea of placing the victorious Notre Dame banner on the ramparts of the Navy, Carnegie Tech, and Army. If these conquests are completed within the allotted three weeks Layden's legions will countermarch immediately into Iowa to subdue insurrections fomenting there under the guidance of Gen. Eddie Anderson, a renegade who formerly wore the Notre Dame uniform.

She almost swooned whenever she'd espy
A tall, dark, handsome man upon the street—
Her heart would swell with dreams that were most sweet
And all day long she'd think of him and sigh.

Her ideal man of dreams had eyes divine,
Dark wavy hair smooth as a raven's wing;
His tall, lithe form moved with an athletic swing,
And just to see him was an anodyne

To the constant fluttering in her maiden breast—

That some day he would ask her to elope
And settle down in a cozy little nest.

Three other games are scheduled for today. Kelly High, holder of second place and conqueror of Tilden, faces Hyde Park in Gage park; Manley meets Crane Tech in Altgeld park, and Amundsen opposes Von Steuben in Winnemac park. Carl Schurz draws a bye.

HANDS RELEASE TO HAL BRADLEY, REGIS MONAHAN

More Changes Are Predicted.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Ernie Nevers' threat to fire and fine on a grand scale unless immediate improvement is forthcoming in the ranks of the Chicago Cardinals resulted last night in the release of Hal Bradley, end, and Regis Monahan, a guard.

Regis Monahan.

Monahan, former Ohio State star who was a member of THE TRIBUNE'S All-Star team in 1935, and Bradley were cut loose after yesterday's workout in Wrigley field, where Nevers is attempting to build a defense against Parker Hall's passes for Sunday's game with Cleveland. Bradley, formerly of Elon college, was with the Washington Redskins last year and came to the Cardinals on waivers a few weeks ago. Monahan had been picked up as a free agent after three years with Detroit.

More releases are imminent, Nevers indicated, if the Cardinals do not carry out assignments any better this week than they did last Sunday against the Bears.

Bears Head East Today.

The Bears surrender Wrigley field to the Cardinals today, leaving them plenty of room and time to prepare for Cleveland. The Bears go east at 3 o'clock to finish preparation for their engagement against the Giants Sunday in the Polo grounds. Thirty men will compose the party, which will stop off in Newark tomorrow and Friday to work out with Gene Ronzani's Newark Bears. They will go into New York for a workout Saturday morning and attend the Princeton-Columbia game there on Saturday afternoon.

Alec Shellogg, former Notre Dame tackle, was sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday by the Bears. Shellogg is the fourth player acquired by the Dodgers in the last two days. Dick Nardi, former Ohio State half back, who played with Detroit last year and was released recently by Pittsburgh, was signed yesterday. On Monday the Dodgers took Sam Francis, a full back, and Johnny Tosi, a center, from Pittsburgh.

Scoring sprees which have marked early games in the National Football league are not likely to continue thru the season. Coaches seeking an answer to the huge scores so far, attribute the wholesale point making to the schedule, which so far has pitted the weaker teams against the leaders.

Look for Decline in Scoring.

Out of 24 games to date, only two have been between teams regarded as championship contenders. In one, the Bear-Packer contest at Green Bay, which Green Bay won 21 to 17, there were only two drives to touchdowns, one by each team. The Bears connected on a long pass for their second touchdown and the Packers seized fumbles, one on the 8 yard line and another in the end zone for two of their tallies.

Washington and the Giants played a scoreless tie. These two contests indicate, the coaches explain, that scoring will become more rational as the schedule brings about a greater parity between contestants.

Some of the more technical minded, however, saw in such totals as the Bears' 157 points for five games, a greater concentration on the offense with a corresponding increase in the number of defensive formations. Increasing defensive formations, Coach George Halas claims, citing some of the Bears' experiences last year, leads to ragged performances and often downright confusion which simplifies a task the offense already has made fairly easy for itself with intricate maneuvers.

The Bears have been more successful with a few defensive stratagems thoroly learned than they have with special formations for every offensive trick.

DRAKE LEADS SCORERS

New York, Oct. 17 (AP).—John Drake, Cleveland full back, took the scoring lead in the National Football league with six points he registered against Detroit last week. He has a total of 36, two more than Bill Smith of the Cardinals, who led last week. Joe Maniaci of the Chicago Bears has 31 points and Jim Benton of Cleveland and Bill Osmanski, Bears rookie, are tied with 30 each.

Parker Hall, Cleveland rookie from Mississippi; Ace Parker of Brooklyn, and Bernie Masterson of the Bears still are the three leading passers. Hall has completed 47 out of 94 for 614 yards, Parker 32 out of 64, and Masterson 27 out of 54. However, Frank Filchock of Washington has the highest efficiency with 68 per cent.

BILLIE DAY, 6 TO 1, WINS SOUTH PARK AT SPORTSMAN'S

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Billie Day, a speedy little filly from the Spitzer stable, scored her second consecutive victory of the Sportsman's park meeting by beating a field of six other fairly good juveniles in the South Park purse, a five furlong sprint which headed yesterday's program. She got home half a length ahead of Black Time, All Lizzie being third.

The strongest betting support went to the consistent All Lizzie, which had raced very well at Arlington, Washington, and Hawthorne. She was established as the 6 to 5 favorite, Jeanne Seremba's Joe W. was the 9 to 2 second choice. Billie Day, which had taken a sound beating from All Lizzie the last time they met, was held at 6 to 1.

All Lizzie Acts Up.

All Lizzie, a notoriously bad actor at the post, went through her customary capers until she was sent to the outside of the stall. She got away well, however, worked her way toward the rail on the first trip past the stands, and led the way around the clubhouse turn. During the gallop down the back stretch Black Time came up with a strong challenge, getting through on the rail to run head and head with All Lizzie as the latter bore out.

On the swing around the turn, the favorite tired and Black Time went to the front. Meanwhile Billie Day, which had been running third, began closing the gap. Jockey Hubert Kees took her to the outside for the drive through the stretch. Racing gamely, Billie Day got to the leader in the last 40 yards and drew out to a half length lead at the finish. Black Time was a length ahead of All Lizzie.

Those who backed Billie Day in the mutuels collected $14.80, $6.20, and $3.40. She ran the 5 furlongs in 1:02.

T. Marcus Surprises Again.

T. Marcus, which raced all last year and all through the spring of this season without success until he finally scored during the Washington park meeting, woke up again in the first race. He won at more than 22 to 1 odds, getting up in the stretch to beat Whipsnake by two lengths. He paid $46.40, $21.20, and $11.80.

The weak hearted Arched went away out in front in the second race, opening up such a big lead that he could hardly have quit fast enough to lose this time. Jockey Paul Keiper took no chances, however, and drove him hard right up to the finish, tho he was eight lengths in the lead. Fan Dandy was second and Miss Sonada third. Arched was the favorite, returning $5.60, $3.60, and $2.80. Those who combined him with T. Marcus in the daily double collected $180.60.

Four Leading Horses Race at Pimlico Nov. 1

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—The owner of four leading performers on American tracks this year agreed today to send their stars into competition Nov. 1 for the "horse of the year" title and the comparatively small purse of $10,000.

It will be Challedon, Kayak II., Cravat, and Isolater when the contenders for the crown go to the post in Pimlico's 1939 Special. The Special was inaugurated last year when Seabiscuit beat War Admiral.

Challedon Favorite.

The championship will be decided over the mile and three-sixteenths route, a distance favored by all four. Track conditions likewise are not expected to give an advantage to any one of the contestants, for all have shown they can get up and go on a track fast or muddy.

Challedon, a Maryland horse, has been established as the pre-race favorite. He will carry the lightest burden—120 pounds—under the Special's weight-for-age rule. His competitors must carry 126.

Complete Purse Goes to Winner.

The $10,000 purse will be given on a winner-take-all basis. With it, besides the "horse of the year" title, will go the Maryland Jockey club gold cup.

William L. Brann owns Challedon, C. S. Howard owns Kayak II., Cravat is owned by Townsend B. Martin, and Isolater belongs to William Woodward.

Replace Baer, Nestell on Stadium Card.

Alberto [Baby] Arizmendi, one of the best lightweights in the game, and Sammy Angott, No. 1 welterweight and lightweight contender, yesterday agreed to meet in a 10 round bout in Chicago Stadium Nov. 3.

The match was substituted for a proposed meeting between Max Baer and Bob Nestell after Baer refused Promoter Bill Rand's offer of $5,000. Max wanted a $10,000 guarantee.

Rand then canceled a scheduled card in the Coliseum Friday, which would involve matches of 10 rounds between Pete Lello, Gary lightweight, and Paul DeBello of New York, and Leone Efrati, junior lightweight of Italy, and Frankie [Kid] Covelli of Brooklyn. These matches may be shifted to the Stadium program.

Dan Merritt, 1938 Chicago Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, will arrive tomorrow for a 10 round headliner against Alex Kettles in Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . Joe Louis will spar two rounds with Clarence Brown in Trafton's gymnasium this afternoon. . . . After he boxes Allen Matthews in St. Louis tonight, Ken Overlin, Decatur middleweight, will head for Atlanta, Ga., where he will face Ben Brown, Oct. 25.

Henry Armstrong is willing to defend his welterweight championship against Sammy Angott in the Stadium in December, Matchmaker Eddie Long said yesterday. Long admitted, however, that there was an obstacle, the stumbling block being Mike Jacobs, who has exclusive rights to Armstrong's contract. After meeting Ritchie Fontaine in Seattle, Wash., Friday, Armstrong will appear in Los Angeles and Denver before meeting Lou Ambers in a title match in Madison Square Garden Dec. 1.

Eight amateur contests between Catholic Youth organization boxers will be included on the athletic program sponsored by the 4th Ward club in the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, tonight. It is the first of a series of Christmas fund shows. Jim McMillen will wrestle Fritz von Schacht. Jack Smith, former wrestler, will be the referee.

Eddie Lander, west side featherweight, today will leave for New Orleans, La., where he meets Jimmy Perrin Monday. . . . Billy Marquart, Winnipeg, Man., junior welterweight, has opened workouts in Trafton's gymnasium for an eight round clash with Billy Beauhuld on the card headed by Tony Canzoneri and Al Davis in the Garden Nov. 1. . . . The 10 round encounter in Milwaukee Monday between Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids, Mich., lightweight, and Wishy Jones of Louisville cost promoters $100. The net gate was $1,083.

AGA KHAN NAMES FIVE FOR STAKES AT WASHINGTON

The Aga Khan, India's celebrated sporting potentate, regarded as the world's richest man, has made three nominations for the 1940 renewal of the rich and historic American Derby and two nominations to the Washington Park Futurity of next year.

Additional international flavor was added to the American Derby by two nominations from Prince Aly Khan, another of Europe's famous racing enthusiasts.

President Walter L. Gregory of the south side track, which has offered a purse of $40,000 added for the American Derby and $20,000 added for the Futurity, received word of the nominations yesterday by cable from London. Aga Kahn entered Bashir, Moradabad and Stardust in the Derby and Toubo and Khoshbook in the Futurity. Prince Aly Khan's Derby nominations are Turkhan and Tant Mieux.

This will be the first United States invasion by Aga Khan's horses. His colors are a common sight at the big races in England and France and it was his Blenheim, now standing at stud in this country, which captured the 1930 English Derby.

MICHIGAN GIVEN WORK IN TIMING AND BLOCKING

Passing Is Also Stressed for Chicago Game.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 17 [Special].—The Michigan coaching staff today went to work on Scout Ray Courtright's report on the Chicago football team. The report was encouraging from the Wolverine standpoint.

The first team returned to practice today after Monday's vacation and was soon back at hard work in an intrasquad scrimmage as Coach Fritz Crisler sought to improve the blocking and timing which he said was ragged against Iowa.

Blocking and tackling will be emphasized thruout the week with pass offense also being stressed. Half Back Tom Harmon continues to carry the passing burden, as Paul Kromer is still on the sidelines.

MAROONS REBUILDING.

Altho the University of Chicago squad engaged in defensive scrimmage against the freshmen yesterday, the effort was not directed primarily toward stopping Michigan when the Wolverines invade Stagg field Saturday. It was evident at yesterday's scrimmage that Coach Clark Shaughnessy is starting from scratch in an attempt to build a new Maroon outfit for the second half of the season. Climaxed by the 61 to 0 defeat by Harvard in the semi-final, the first half of the schedule is not likely to close much more happily against Michigan, however strenuous this week's preparations may be.

PURDUE TRIES PASSING.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 17 [Special].—Anticipating a wide open game in the first home start of the season, the Purdue Dads' day attraction against Michigan State Saturday, Coach Mal Elward today devoted his main attention to perfecting the details of Purdue's aerial attack.

Michigan State's scoring power, as shown in its second half dominance over Michigan and last Saturday's loss to Marquette, has evidently convinced the Boilermaker coaching staff that Purdue's own attack will have to be in high gear if it is to win.

It's Hard to Draw a Bead on Woodcock

BY BOB BECKER.

The trail you may follow around Portage or Poynette, Wis., in quest of the shy, hard-to-hit woodcock often seems like the proverbial wild goose chase.

On our recent trip into Wisconsin to toss shot at the "timber doodle" of the boggy thickets, George [Buck] Johnson, the conservation warden of Portage, said that he had just talked to a doctor who had a friend in Poynette who had been shooting at woodcock. It was a vague tip, but away we went with Johnson to see if we could find the haunt of the woodcock.

Move in on Woodcocks.

Johnson enrolled Doc Dwyer of Poynette as "chief guide" and we drove deep into the lowlands near Lake Wisconsin. Here we moved into a wet boggy area along a small creek. We could see small pools of water in the thick growth of alders. Again we had found an area wet enough for the woodcock.

With Bill Haerther of Lake Villa on our left and Lyman Barr of Highland Park on our right, we began to crash through the alders in the hope that the woodcock still were on hand. Pat, the quiet, close-working English setter, worked just a few feet ahead of us. We heard a call on our right, then the rattle of the "muskets," and one woodcock went on its way unharmed. It had flushed from a thicket so dense that no one could get a decent shot.

Down Comes a Woodcock.

We crossed the stream on a big fallen tree. All of us were tense, holding our guns "at ready," as we splashed through the muck and water. Then boom went Haerther's 26 inch barreled gun and down went a woodcock. Pat retrieved the bird and we pushed ahead. Then came the thrill of the day. Barr called out: "Point, point! The old girl has one over here. Hustle up!"

We moved up a few feet and there was old Pat, the blue Belton, pointing her first woodcock. Her head was turned slightly toward a small log. All of us paused for several seconds to enjoy this beautiful picture, spotlighted by the mellow autumn sunlight which pierced the alder thicket. It was worth traveling 175 miles to see that dog, the woodcock spiraling upwards, and get that shot.

Manhattan Soccer Team Signs 2 Sparta Players

The Manhattan Brewers, who reached the national soccer finals last year, started a strengthening program yesterday by signing Jimmy Munro and Reggie, former stars of the Spartas. Manager Herbert Choice of the Manhattans says he hopes to sign two more outstanding players in time for his team's match with the Swedish-Americans Sunday in the Parichy stadium, Harlem avenue and Harrison street.

Roberts Named Chairman of Football Writers Group

Howard Roberts of the Daily News, was elected chairman of the Chicago Chapter of the Professional Football Writers' association of America yesterday. George Strickler of the Chicago Tribune was named vice chairman, and Irving Kupcinet of the Daily Times, secretary and treasurer for the coming year.

An Old Warrior Greets Illini Chief

ILLINI STUDENTS WELCOME TEAM ON RETURN HOME

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 17 [Special].—Carrying a banner inscribed "We're behind you, Zup," 2,500 students paraded to the railroad station this afternoon to welcome the University of Illinois football team home from Los Angeles where it was defeated by Southern California Saturday.

"Southern California played a clean, sportsmanslike game," Zuppke said. "We were against the Rose Bowl champions practically intact. They gave us a hot time all around. The temperature was nearly 100 degrees. We put up a real battle for a while and did as well as we could hope, considering everything.

"This demonstration encourages us to keep on instilling the Illinois principle, 'Never say die'."

The Illini went immediately to the stadium and started preparations for the Indiana game Saturday.

Cliff Peterson, junior full back, whose knee was injured in the first quarter at Los Angeles, is out of the game for several weeks and pernaps for the season. Whether Bill Lenich, regular center, who was unable to play against U. S. C., will be available will not be known until an X-ray is taken.

HOOSIERS STRESS TACKLING.

Fundamentals of charging and blocking also were stressed as the Hoosiers pushed preparations for their third consecutive Big Ten game Saturday against the Illini at Champaign. The Hoosier line is expected to receive its severest test against Illinois' strong forward wall, which averages 210 pounds.

Piepul Takes Full Back Job at Notre Dame

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 17 [Special].—Milt [Tarzan] Piepul, rugged 204 pound junior full back, displaced Joe Thesing with the Notre Dame varsity in today's preparation for the game with Navy in Cleveland Saturday.

The move was more of a tribute to Piepul's fine play against Southern Methodist Saturday than a reflection on Thesing, who has been Notre Dame's No. 1 full back since the third game of 1937, except when injured for a while last fall. Piepul made sixty-three yards in twelve attempts against the Mustangs. He ripped off forty-seven yards in one sixty-six yard touchdown march. Against Purdue, he made a shoestring tackle of Mike Byelene when the latter sprinted twenty yards into the clear at the Purdue 40 yard line. The Irish won, 3 to 0.

Bob Saggau, who tested his injured leg successfully against the Mustangs, was reinstated with the first team, but he will have to share the left half back position with Harry Stevenson Jr. Stevie played some of the finest football of his Notre Dame career against S. M. U.

NAVY STAR OUT.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 17 (AP).—Navy spent half a practice period today working its offensive plays in preparation for Notre Dame Saturday and used the other half trying to break up Notre Dame plays executed by the "B" squad.

Infirmary doctors told Coach Swede Larson that Emmett [Punkin] Wood, triple threat star would be unable to play because of a knee injury suffered in the Dartmouth game last week. The knee is still in a cast and Wood may not get back into play this season.

JIMMY WALTHOUR TO RIDE IN 6 DAY RACE AT STADIUM

Jimmy Walthour, outstanding six day bicycle rider, will be among the stars competing in Chicago's forty-second international six day race which starts in the Stadium Sunday night, Nov. 5.

Harry Mendel, manager of the race, who arrived in Chicago yesterday, said that in spite of the war an excellent field of Canadian, American, and foreign riders would compete. Mendel pointed out that during the years of 1914 and 1918 there were six day bike races run in New York and Chicago, with leading cyclists competing.

Garcia to Face Armstrong in Middleweight Bout

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 17 (AP).—George Parnassus, manager of Ceferino Garcia, announced today that Garcia will defend his middleweight boxing title in Los Angeles Feb. 22 against Henry Armstrong, welterweight champion. Charly McDonald, matchmaker of the American Legion's Hollywood stadium, will promote the affair, possibly taking over the Coliseum.

HAWKS DRILL ON PENALTY SHOTS IN HOCKEY CAMP

In the longest practice since the Hawks arrived here the Chicago team's boss literally drove his 18 aspiring athletes up and down the ice for a full 60 minutes.

Predicts Increased Scoring.

Prior to the speed whirls Thompson had all of the snipers practice the penalty shot which this season is likely to produce the thrills the rulemakers would like. The penalty line now is only 28 feet in front of the goalkeeper. The player delegated to make the shot must not be interferred with in any way. Manager Thompson, one of the best of the old time penalty shot scorers, is of the opinion a score will be the result once every three penalty shot attempts this season.

The most successful of the penalty shot drivers this morning were Bill Carse, Johnny Gottselig, and Bill Thoms. When Manager Thompson went into western Canada to look for young hockey talent last spring, speed was uppermost in his mind.

Defense Heavy, Yet Fast.

For a heavy lot the Hawks' five defense men, Seibert, Wiebe, Cooper, MacKenzie, and Smith, who average 190 pounds, are as speedy as many of the league's leading forwards. And Thoms, Desilets, March, and Gottselig are all fast enough to be efficient back checkers.

Bill Carse, Hergesheimer, DeMarco, Cunningham, and Allen, from International American league, were added to the Hawks' training roster at the season's start.

Only 21 on Wheaton Squad But It Defeated North Central

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Wheaton college's football team holds no competitive records at this writing, but it does claim a mark in having one of the smallest varsity squads in the game—21 players, count 'em, 21. One of the most remarkable educational institutions in the world, Wheaton is proud of its Crusaders, who make up in spirit what they lack in numbers.

Fred Walker, former University of Chicago star who is now in his fourth season as head coach of football, basketball, and baseball and in his third year as athletic director, avers that Orange and Blue teams have an urge to win comparable to that of many a larger school which has much more material from which to draw.

The 1939 Crusaders have played four games thus far, tying one, losing two, and winning another. After playing a scoreless tie with St. Norbert's college at De Pere, Wis., the team lost to a heavier Akron, O., squad, 33 to 6. Then, on Oct. 7, came the victory which already has made Wheaton fans more than satisfied. It was a 19 to 6 triumph over North Central, the Orange and Blue's traditional rival for more than a quarter of a century.

May Win Title.

That triumph also completed one-half of Wheaton's Illinois Collegiate conference schedule, for they play only two conference games this season. The other is against Illinois college at Wheaton, on Oct. 28. A victory in that will give the Crusaders a 1,000 conference rating and a claim to the championship.

Wheaton is the only fundamentalist Protestant institution in the central west, its enrollment including students from every state in the Union and 17 foreign countries. At matriculation all students sign an agreement to abstain from the use of alcoholic liquors and tobacco, from card playing, dancing, from attendance at theaters, including motion pictures, and from meetings of secret societies.

The present squad, Walker pointed out, might have been much larger except for a number of injuries. Ailing knees prevented three players, Bill Leonard, a speedy 180 pounder who would have been the regular quarter back; Bob Reed, tackle, and Arch Campbell, end, from playing a single minute.

Second Over North Central.

Le Roy [Pat] Patterson of Altoona, Pa., is the captain and full back of this year's team. Three of this year's regulars, all juniors, never had played football until last year, while five other players had only a year's high school experience before coming to Wheaton.

Meet Central Saturday.

TAKE SADDLES OFF HORSES TO DECIDE WINNER

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 17 (AP).—Competition was so close in the $1,000 stake for five-gaited saddle stallions at the American Royal Horse show today that the judge, Christian Barham of Milan, Tenn., ordered the saddles off the horses for closer inspection.

After this unusual procedure Barham awarded the blue ribbon to Stonewall Peavine, entry of Walter H. Gant, Ardmore, Okla. Second place went to San Pedro, Stanley M. Ross, Columbus, O.

Anita Rosalia Wins.

Campbell Sewall of Houston, Tex., sent out Anita Rosalia, a brown 3 year old mare, to win the blue ribbon in the $1,000 stake for five gaited saddle horses. Second among the 16 entries was Easter Serenade, a consistent winner owned by Temple Stephens of Moberly, Mo. Third was Ardella King, R. C. Flanery, Maple Park, Ill.

A $500 stake for heavy harness horses was won by a Kansas City entry, Captivation, owned by Mrs. Loula Long Combs. Second was Honeysuckle Rose, owned by Frances M. Dodge stables, Rochester, Mich., followed by Cyncoed Armada, Heyl Pony farm, Washington, Ill.

Mare Remains Unbeaten.

Vanity, 4 year old bay mare from the Fair City stables, Elberon, N. J., maintained its record of never having been defeated in the show ring by placing first in the ladies' class for fine harness horses. Vanity was driven by its owner, Mrs. L. Victor Weil. Appointments and costume counted 40 per cent in the judging.

Treasure Island, bay mare from Welch Greenwell's stables, Shelbina, Mo., won the $750 stake for three gaited saddle horses. Frances M. Dodge's Sunday Swing was second.

Wildcats Fear Badgers' Fleet Backs.

Improved blocking and tackling became the principal objectives in Northwestern's football camp yesterday as the Wildcats went thru a spirited drill in preparation for the Wisconsin game at Dyche stadium Saturday.

Northwestern's defense this year leaves much to be desired. The two opponents faced to date have scored 36 points, 4 more than were scored in 8 games last year. While most of these points can be traced to errors of commission such as fumbles, the fact remains that the Wildcat defense has been vulnerable, particularly against end runs.

With much of Wisconsin's offensive centered around such fleet backs as Tony Gradisnik, Bob Cone, and Bill Schmitz, it appears likely that Northwestern's belabored ends will be in for another busy afternoon Saturday. The Badgers gained much ground on off tackle plays and end runs last year when they defeated the Wildcats, 20 to 13.

While the defense is a source of worry, the Wildcats must also attempt to build an offense. With the exception of a few flashes in the Ohio State game, the Purple attack has been held in complete check. Ineffective blocking is held responsible for this shortcoming. Time after time the ball carriers have been bowled over before getting underway.

BADGERS PROMOTE TWO SOPHS.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 17 [Special].—Two sophomores appeared almost certain to start in the back field against Northwestern as Coach Harry Stuhldreher sent the first and second Wisconsin teams thru a hard scrimmage today against the freshmen, who used the Wildcats' plays and defensive formations.

The back field shifts were prompted by the Badgers' disappointing performance against Indiana, when the No. 1 and No. 2 left half backs, the position around which the running attack is built, wound up with a net loss of six yards.

WOMEN WHO RUN OWN NEWSPAPERS WIN RECOGNITION

Inland Press Convention Points to Their Rise.

Recognition of the increasingly important part that women are taking in leadership of newspapers in smaller cities of the middle west was given at the 55th fall meeting of the Inland Press association at the Sherman hotel yesterday.

Although this was a technical meeting, devoted to problems of advertising, circulation, business and promotion generally, 151 women were registered as delegates from the 303 papers of the association. The papers are published in cities in 19 midwestern states.

Have Special Program.

President Tom H. Keene of the Elkhart, Ind., Truth arranged a special program for the "ladies of the Inland." Wives of officers, directors and past presidents were seated at the speakers' table. Mrs. Helen Hart Hurlbert, publisher of the Warren, O., Tribune-Chronicle, is chairman of the new Inland women publishers and managers committee.

The women of this group are not feature writers or society editors, Secretary John L. Meyer explained, but business department heads. The realization of this development came to officials recently while they were looking over the membership lists. This is the first time, Mr. Meyer said, that any press association has recognized women as newspaper executives.

The guest speaker at the women's program was Mary D. Bailey, assistant United States district attorney in Chicago, who prosecutes narcotic cases. She has handled more than 5,000 such cases.

Urges Part in Work.

Vice President Clinton F. Karstaedt, secretary-treasurer of the Beloit, Wis., News, said that the association wishes to give women their rightful place in its work and asked them to contribute to the business sessions. Many spent the afternoon at a style review as special guests of Marshall Field & Co.

George Price Ellis, the association's consultant on taxes and social security, was called on at the forum session to answer many questions about the effect of these new laws on smaller newspapers.

The tax load of newspapers today is terrific, Mr. Karstaedt said. Their problem has become one, he explained, of shrinking revenues and an increasing overhead due to taxes and the increased cost of labor and material.

"The editor can't go fishing any more and leave the office to the bookkeeper," he said.

Mr. Ellis recommended that the association make a special study of laws passed in the last five or six years. The time in making records and reports alone under recent laws, he said, amounts to a big item.

OPEN NEW PARK DISTRICT OFFICES TO PUBLIC TODAY

The Chicago Park district will hold open house today at the formal opening of its new administration building at the north end of Soldiers' field. Ushers will show visitors through the four story $1,500,000 building from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 10 p. m., and the park commissioners will be on hand to greet them.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district said the complete project cost $1,990,000, of which $880,000 represented PWA grants, leaving the cost to the district at $1,110,000. The PWA assumed $663,000 of the $1,500,000 building cost; $62,000 of the $140,000 for repairs to the stadium, and $155,000 of the $350,000 for installing 8,000 additional seats in the stadium at the back of the building.

The new quarters provide space of 110,240 square feet. If rented in the loop, as other municipal agencies are obliged to do, Mr. Dunham said, a year's rental would amount to $220,500 at $2 per square foot. On this basis, Mr. Dunham said, the park district's share of the building cost will be amortized within four years. He added that the building costs were met by the district from the residue of the old South Park stadium bond fund, which could be legally used only to complete the stadium.

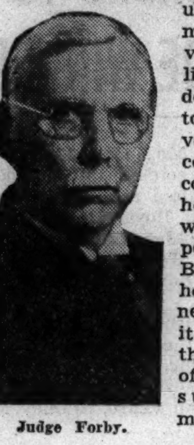
AN UNWILLING JUDGE GRANTS DIVORCE; RAPS NEW LAW AS SCREEN

City Judge Theodore Forby of Zion granted his first divorce yesterday under an amendment to the divorce act enabling any resident of a county to sue for divorce in a city court of that county even tho he does not live within its corporate limits. But in doing so he criticized the new law and said it encouraged the procurement of divorce in a surreptitious manner.



Judge Forby.

Judge Forby granted a divorce to Glenn Maikranz, 30 years old, a taxi driver, who filed suit in the city court at Zion altho he resides at 920 Porter street, Waukegan. Maikranz charged that his wife, Phyllis, deserted him June 7, 1938. They were married July 13, 1931, at Harlan, Ky.

"It is very apparent," Judge Forby said, "that the act opens the door for attempts to procure divorces in a surreptitious manner, and, unfortunately, modern society is surfeited with people who like to look around corners to find a way out of their predicament."

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 17 (AP).—Warren K. Billings became a free man today after having served 22 years in prison on conviction of the 1916 preparedness day bombing in San Francisco. Billings said he expected to be married soon to Josephine Rudolph, librarian of San Mateo, Cal., whom he met about 18 years ago in San Francisco while attending one of the numerous legal hearings in the course of the Tom Mooney-Billings case. Billings received a commutation of sentence to time served, and came to Sacramento from Folsom prison to receive personally from Gov. Culbert L. Olson the papers which set him free.

FIRST WIFE AIDS SUCCESSOR IN GETTING DIVORCE

When Paul R. Moffitt went into his wife's beauty parlor in 1936, a woman was sitting under the hair drier. Moffitt didn't even notice her.

But she was in Judge Oscar F. Nelson's court yesterday when Mrs. Mae Moffitt of 1017 East 47th street told why she wanted to divorce Moffitt. Mrs. Moffitt, who is 55 years old, said he was cruel. Then the woman who had been under the drier took the stand for questioning by Mrs. Moffitt's attorney, Victor Frohlich. She is Mrs. Ethel Aiken of Louisville, Ky.—Moffitt's first wife. He was divorced from her in 1916, shortly before he married the Mrs. Moffitt who was asking a divorce yesterday. The first Mrs. Moffitt said Moffitt gave the second Mrs. Moffitt a beating the day he came into the beauty shop. Judge Nelson gave the second Mrs. Moffitt her divorce.

POLICEMAN FAILS TO APPEAR; SUER AWARDED $25,000

Policeman Alfonse Winskunas of the Maxwell street station failed to appear yesterday when the trial of a $50,000 damage suit in which he was defendant was called. A jury of six women and six men quickly brought in a default judgment of $25,000 against the policeman. The verdict included a malice count under which he may be sent to jail if he fails to pay.

MSGR. LAVELLE, 83, ST. PATRICK RECTOR, IS DEAD

Served Famous N. Y. Cathedral.

New York, Oct. 17 (AP).—Msgr. Michael J. Lavelle, 83 years old, spiritual adviser to princes and paupers within the dominion of St. Patrick's cathedral, died tonight of a heart ailment in his home near the cathedral.

Msgr. Michael J. Lavelle.

A priest in the famous Fifth avenue church for 60 years, he had never been ill a day until early last summer, when he collapsed after being fêted at an anniversary celebration. He was a close friend of Cardinal Hayes, his superior, who died little more than a year ago, and of Cardinal Mundelein, who died two weeks ago in Chicago. The three had been young priests in New York.

Msgr. Lavelle was a familiar figure at public functions—at the head of New York's great St. Patrick's day parade; at the communion breakfasts which he organized for policemen, firemen, and workers in a multitude of industries; at occasional sports events and on state occasions when great men of the nation delighted in congratulating the aging, good-humored priest.

Rector of the mother church of the New York diocese for 53 years Msgr. Lavelle had been awarded the highest rank of prelate below a bishop, that of prothonotary apostolic. He had been the confidant of five archbishops, vicar general of the archdiocese, the recipient of foreign decorations and guiding spirit of many secular and religious causes.

Had Own Idea of Greatness.

He had his own definition of greatness. It was: "So long as a priest minds his own business, he is great. It is within his sphere to help the suffering, to comfort the unhappy, to minister to the spiritual needs and to guide the spiritual steps. There his duties end."

At the deathbed were his sisters, the Misses Agnes and Margaret Lavelle, Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, his physicians and members of the cathedral staff who recited prayers for the dying.

GARBAGE SERVICE CUT THREATENED IN FUND DEMAND

Unless money is transferred from funds other than the department of public works, ash and garbage collections will be made only three days a week after the third week of November, Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt told the city council finance committee yesterday. Hewitt said collections were made five times a week at the start of the year. Recently they were reduced to four a week because of shortage of money. Hewitt attributed part of the shortage to unexpected costs of snow removal last winter. Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th], said he had surveyed city finances and that there were funds available in other departments. Ald. J. M. Arvey, [24th], chairman of the committee, observed that it is necessary to show an emergency exists to transfer funds. The committee voted to ask Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes if an emergency exists in this case.

IDENTIFY LAKE VICTIM AS WIDOW OF WINE DEALER

The body of a woman washed ashore by the lake at 57th street Monday was identified yesterday as that of Mrs. Hattie Schmidt, widow of Herman Schmidt, president of the Otto Schmidt Wine Company, Inc. She was 60 years old and lived in the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive.

Schmidt's death a month ago was a great shock to his wife and recently she appeared to be under a nervous strain, according to a friend, Mrs. Robert Mayer, 1234 Hyde Park boulevard. Mrs. Schmidt often took long walks alone. Police said she might have plunged into the water from a pier at 59th street.

An inquest was continued until Oct. 31 to allow time for further investigation. Mr. Schmidt shared in the $730,000 estate left by his father, Otto Schmidt, who died in 1919.

ALDERMEN ASK FINAL CLEANUP OF BACK TAXES

Call for City-County Collection Drive.

The city council committee on taxation made public a report yesterday recommending a last effort to collect $119,476,000 in delinquent personal property taxes for the years 1928 to 1932, inclusive. If this effort fails, the report said, it would be a delusion to continue to carry these items as assets and they should be stricken from the county books.

The report was written by Ald. Frank Keenan [49th] after a four month study of the county's delinquent tax problem. It recommended that a permanent agency be organized with the coöperation of the city and county to seek collection of the taxes. This agency should supersede the recently organized county delinquent tax bureau, the report said.

Personalty List Is Greatest.

According to the survey, a total of $404,680,145 in delinquent taxes is due in the eleven year period from 1928 to Sept. 15, 1939. This is divided as follows: Real estate, $154,337,670; personal property, $243,603,800, and railroads, $6,738,675.

Concerning the personal property delinquency the report says: "Of this amount there is $119,476,000 due for the period of 1928 to 1932, inclusive. The years 1931 and 1932 were those of the famous 'telephone book' assessment which caused great disrespect for the personal property tax, practically all of which for those years is absolutely uncollectible.

"These appalling figures show a consistent failure or refusal on the part of the public to pay personal property taxes, these delinquencies being far greater than those on real estate taxes. It must be emphasized that until the legislature provides another method of taxation, personal property taxes are a source of public income that must be collected."

Strong Realty Tax Drive Asked.

In regard to real estate taxes, the report said there are more than 150,000 unimproved properties delinquent in payment over most of the eleven year period and that the delinquencies in many cases total more than the value of the properties. A strong, active, and well guided campaign for tax liquidations should result in collection of 50 million to 100 million dollars of these back taxes, the report said.

The delinquent railroad taxes may be considered good assets and collectible, the report stated, as their payment is subject only to the outcome of rate objections.

BRIDGES LOSES PLEA TO DODGE CONTEMPT FINE

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 17 (AP).—A ruling that Harry Bridges, California C. I. O. longshore director, was in contempt of court and must pay a $125 fine was affirmed today by the state Supreme court. The contempt charge was based on a telegram sent by Bridges to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins complaining that a court decision authorizing a receivership for the San Pedro Longshore union was "outrageous."

Attorneys for Bridges based their appeal partially on a freedom of speech argument, but the court said in a majority opinion:

"The right of free speech is not an absolute one, and the state, in the exercise of its police power, may punish the abuse of this freedom."

PICK RAIL HEADS IN HOME AREAS, JONES SUGGESTS

Credit Chief's Views Aid Chicago Drive.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17—Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, said today that he favors the selection of railroad trustees from the vicinity in which carriers operate and maintain their headquarters. More than that, he said, other railroad executives should be picked on the same basis.

This attitude was expressed by the man who has much to say about railroad management policies in view of the Reconstruction Finance corporation's big stake in railroads, obtained through RFC loans to them. On Aug. 31, railroad loans outstanding totaled approximately 434 million dollars. Jones formerly headed the RFC.

Midwest Drive Under Way.

He gave his views to THE TRIBUNE in connection with the active campaign of Chicago financial houses to restore financial and managerial activities of midwestern railroads to the areas in which they operate. They have complained that New York banks and investment houses have been getting the lion's share of this business.

Jones was asked particularly about the selection of trustees, registrars and paying agents for new securities of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway, which is expected to be the first railroad in the country to emerge from federal court control through reorganization under section 77 of the amended federal bankruptcy act.

Headquarters in Chicago.

The railroad has its headquarters in Chicago and operations are confined to the midwestern area.

No decisions have been made on the filling of these positions for the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Jones said, but he indicated that he does not oppose qualified Chicagoans getting them.

"Where practical I have thought that trustees in railroad mortgages should be selected from and should be in the immediate vicinity of the operating headquarters and on the road," Jones asserted.

Going a step further, he added:

"I think executive officers of railroads should live on the railroads—and as far as practical, the directors."

Present Practices Cited.

Recent surveys show that many directorships on midwestern companies are held in the east and that directors' meetings of some Chicago companies are held in New York City instead of Chicago. A return to Chicago is part of the drive to increase the city's prestige as a financial center.

The success of the Chicago Stock Exchange in getting big companies to list their securities there is believed in Washington to be a step in the right direction. Government officials have favored the naming of registrars, transfer agents, and others connected with stock and bond transactions in the vicinity where trading in the issues is concentrated. This accounted for the drift toward New York. Concentration of trading in securities of Chicago companies in Chicago would tend to restore these auxiliary financing functions to Chicago, it was said here.

New Trustee Pledges Support.

New York banks now hold the trusteeships for all issues of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad. Benjamin Wham, new trustee of the railroad, has promised support for the Chicago financial houses in getting trusteeships and other positions when the road comes out of reorganization, but be observed that the reorganization committee will have the final word. Inasmuch as the RFC is to take $11,000,000 of the new bonds under the reorganization plan, Wham said that Jones probably would have a great deal of influence on the subject.

Jones' support was also asked in 1935 in having the reorganization of Chicago railroads handled in Chicago, instead of the east. Jones expressed his sympathy for the idea when it was broached by Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company.

Andrews Out; Fleming Gets Pay-Hour Job

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Col. Philip Fleming.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—The long expected resignation of Elmer F. Andrews as wage and hour administrator was announced today by President Roosevelt.

The protégé of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins is to be succeeded by Col. Philip Fleming, army engineer, who at one time was athletic director of the United States Military academy at West Point, N. Y. Col. Fleming is at present army district engineer at St. Paul, Minn.

Because of technicalities in army regulations relating to the assignment of army officers to other branches of the government, Col. Fleming will not get the title of administrator. He will be detailed by the army to duty at the labor department and will be assigned to the wage and hour division with the title of assistant to the acting administrator.

Will Ask Congressional Action.

At the labor department it was said Secretary Perkins is not yet ready to name the acting administrator. However, the White House made it clear that no matter who is selected for this post, the division will be under the actual directorship of Col. Fleming. Later congress will be asked to authorize his assumption of the title of administrator.

After Andrews' resignation was made known, Paul Sifton, deputy administrator and long an associate of his chief, announced he had resigned also, "to facilitate the work of the new management."

The change in the control of the wage and hour unit comes at a critical period in its history. On Oct. 24, under the provisions of the fair labor standards act, there will be an automatic increase in the minimum houly wage scale from 25 to 30 cents an hour and at the same time the maximum work week will drop from 44 to 42 hours.

With some 12,300,000 persons employed in the industries covered, it is estimated that 700,000 workers will have their wages raised and hours cut as a result by the automatic increases.

Andrews to Go to RFC.

Andrews, an engineer by profession, will go to the engineering department of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. His resignation, effective yesterday, is subject to accrued and current annual leave.

Andrews came to Washington as the first wage and hour administrator two years ago from New York state, where he had been industrial commissioner. He had been assistant to Secretary of Labor Perkins when she held the latter post and took over her post when she came to the cabinet.

The New Yorker soon fell out with his chief and alienated the sympathy of the administration thru what has been described as his indecision. He preferred to let things work themselves out if possible and made decisions only when forced to do so, it is said here.

Stand on News Men Cited.

His decisions were often guided by his sympathies rather than reason, observers say. In the case of newspaper men, he refused exemption from the provisions of the wage and hour act—although he acknowledged the exemption claim has justice—because the labor unions were opposed to the claim and labor unions had been friendly to him.

The administration was dissatisfied with his slowness, although it was recognized that Andrews, as a New Dealer, was cracking down on its foes in business by what rulings he made. The New Deal complaint was that he did not make enough rulings.

Col. Fleming, rather than a New Dealer, was urged on Mr. Roosevelt, because he is considered a "go-getter." It was felt that he will bring the already bogged down administration up to date and will lose no time in wandering off on side alleys in furthering New Deal political philosophy.

OIL PRODUCTION IN STATE DROPS FROM HIGH MARK

Illinois oil production in the week ended Oct. 14 continued to slide from the peak reached two weeks ago, the Oil and Gas Journal reported yesterday. Output fell 12,615 barrels to 320,100 daily last week.

Illinois now ranks fourth among oil producing states, altho for a time was in third place.

Production of crude oil in the nation during the week rose 259,510 barrels to a daily average of 3,685,549 barrels, the journal reported.

Despite the drop in Illinois output, there were 58 new wells completed last week, increasing the number of wells in the state to 4,205. Twelve of the new wells were unproductive.

Wholesale Cash Butter Prices Set New 1939 High

Chicago cash wholesale butter prices advanced to the highest marks of the year yesterday as fresh arrivals continued small and storage withdrawal statistics were construed as favorable by the trade. Top quality butter was up ¼ cent a pound and undergrades as much as ¾ cent. Butter futures closed unchanged to 0.05 cent lower on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Egg futures were unchanged to 0.05 cent a dozen lower. Cash eggs were higher.

Canadian Rails Halt Shipments in Grain Tieup

WINNIPEG, Oct. 17 (AP).—Shipment of western Canada's new crop wheat to West Fort William, Fort William, and Port Arthur, Ont., have been suspended by the dominion's two transcontinental railways because of the heavy accumulation of wheat on track, in transit, at the lakehead and in eastern Canada.

In announcing the embargo on wheat shipments, company officials would not predict the duration of the suspension because of the many factors which affect world markets in wartime.

Coarse Grains Not Barred.

At the same time it was pointed out that coarse grains such as oats, barley, rye, and flax will not be governed by the embargo ruling.

The joint statement issued by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways said, in part:

"The actual movement from the head of the lakes to date has been considerably below the amount estimated and because of the large amount of wheat in lakehead terminal elevators and in cars waiting unloading, together with current demand for cars for coarse grains, it is now necessary to prevent further congestion and to conserve for other requirements which are largely of national importance."

WAR PROBLEM EMPHASIZED.

The action of the Canadian railroads yesterday in holding up wheat shipments from the western provinces to lake ports emphasized the serious congestion of supplies thruout Canada.

The war in Europe has slowed up the normal export movement of wheat. Grain elevators at the principal St. Lawrence ports are filled to capacity and lake vessels are waiting to unload.

Grain men believe that delay in moving wheat to Europe is, in part, the result of failure to complete organization of convoys for outgoing vessels. England has also been purchasing wheat from other countries that normally might sell to Germany.

Canada is dependent on England and France for a market for its big wheat surplus, totaling 400 million bushels. Other outlets have been largely eliminated because of the war.

TEXAS PURCHASE BY ROCK ISLAND ROAD APPROVED

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday authorized trustees of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad to acquire 75 miles of track of the Gulf, Texas and Western railway in central Texas. The purchase price of the trackage, which extends between Jacksboro and Seymour, Tex., will be $140,135.

No cash payment by the Rock Island will be involved, however. Trustees of the St. Louis-San Francisco railroad, which owns the Texas line, will buy 15 miles of the Rock Island's branch at Ardmore, Okla., for $250,000. The Frisco will pay the difference to the Rock Island in cash.

Officials of the Rock Island said the trackage the road will acquire joins present trackage of the road at Jacksboro. They estimated the acquisition would bring the system an annual profit of $40,000 from cotton and grain shipments.

$8,000,000 Santa Fe Issue of Certificates Awarded

A group headed by the First Boston corporation yesterday was awarded an issue of $8,000,000 of Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway 2½ per cent equipment trust certificates at a price of 101.899. Security for the issue will consist of new equipment represented by 1,800 box cars, 450 refrigerator cars, 200 ballast cars, 250 gondola cars and 100 flat cars, costing $10,143,348. The certificates mature serially, $800,000 annually, Nov. 1, 1940, thru 1949.

AVIATION INDUSTRY ESTABLISHES ANOTHER RECORD IN MILEAGE

More revenue passenger miles were flown during the first nine months of 1939 than in any comparable period in aviation history, and for the fourth consecutive month air travel reached a new high in the United States in September. This was announced yesterday by Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport Association of America.

In September 69,120,405 revenue passenger miles were flown, a 39.69 per cent gain over September of 1938, and a 1.6 per cent increase over August, 1939, the previous peak month, said Col. Gorrell. The revenue passenger miles for the nine months of the year were 481,469,139, a 39.16 per cent gain over the comparable 1938 period.

The air express division of the Railway Express agency handled 74,150 shipments during August, an increase of 27.2 per cent over last year, it was announced yesterday. Gross revenues from air express increased 31 per cent over last year, it was reported.

CARGO INSURANCE TO BE LIMITED TO AMERICAN PORTS

New York, Oct. 17 [Special].—War risk insurance covering the shipper against capture or seizure of merchandise by naval vessels of the warring empire powers will be withdrawn on shipments to all non-American parts of the world after Oct. 22, underwriters announced here today.

Since the war began such protection has been denied in war risk policies covering cargoes to European ports, but has been available on shipments to Latin America and to other parts of the globe. Under the new regulations only shipments between United States ports or to American possessions in the western hemisphere can be insured.

Underwriters informed shippers they have adopted a new clause to liberalize the terms of policies as far as the capture and seizure hazard is concerned. Under the new clause underwriters will provide protection against damage or destruction of cargoes while they are in the custody of naval authorities.

ALL YEAR USE OF INSURANCE ADS PROPOSED

Detroit, Oct. 17 [Special].—Increased use of newspaper advertising, spread thruout the year rather than being condensed into a single week, was urged here by Joseph C. Behan, vice president of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company. He addressed the Life Advertisers' association, at a three day international convention.

Behan is chairman of the association's annual message committee which each year conducts an advertising campaign known as the annual message of life insurance. He told delegates that this year the campaign, scheduled for the week of Oct. 23, will be publicized thru advertising in 700 to 800 newspapers, the greatest number ever used.

The Life Advertisers' association is made up of men who compose and distribute insurance advertising.

West Side Atlas National Makes Final Repayment

A sixth and final repayment of 9.7 per cent to about 5,600 depositors of the defunct West Side Atlas National bank is being distributed, Harry Joseph, receiver, announced yesterday. The final payment amounts to $98,375. Total repayments, including the current disbursement, aggregate 66.36 per cent. Joseph said the receivership of the bank would be terminated Nov. 1.

War Staples Prices Rise on Nazis' Thrust

Commodity prices followed securities upward yesterday in active trading. The principal factor spurring traders to buy was the apparent end of the "waiting war" in Europe as the Germans intensified their fighting activities.

Silk was outstanding, with both cash and futures climbing to the highest prices in years in New York trading. The October No. 1 contract closed 16 cents a pound higher at $3.33½, while other futures advanced as much as 12 cents. Limit fluctuation permitted in one day is 15 cents except for the current delivery. Cash silk added to Monday's advance by rising another cent to $3.18½ a pound.

Hides Are Boosted.

Other primary war staples which were boosted in active dealings included rubber and hides. More than 12,000 hides were sold in the cash market at an advance of ½ cent a pound. The Chicago quotation was 16½ cents, against 16 cents Monday. New York futures were up 0.44 to 0.47 cent a pound.

Cash rubber moved up 0.40 cent to 20½ cents a pound, and futures closed 0.16 to 0.40 cent higher. Tin futures finished unchanged to 1¾ cents a pound higher and cottonseed oil gains averaged about ¼ cent a pound. Wool top futures advanced 1 to 2.2 cents a pound.

Sugar Market Weakens.

Moving against the general trend to show small losses at the close were both sugar contracts and lead futures. Rio coffee and zinc were unchanged.

In secondary markets it was reported by Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering, trade journal, that consumption of chemicals in the United States is expected to be 22 per cent larger in the fourth quarter of this year than in the corresponding period of 1938.

At Buffalo, where roaring blast furnaces of the steel industry are having trouble getting enough coke, the retail coke price was boosted 65 cents a ton to $9.45, the second increase in a month. Anthracite was advanced 35 cents to $9.65 for pea coal and 25 cents to $11.45 for stove coal.

The American Institute of Food Distribution, Inc., reported the average sales gain of 72 wholesalers in the last two weeks was 17.4 per cent over the corresponding 1938 period.

BRAZIL ORDERS $5,870,000 RAIL CARS, ENGINES

Other Purchases Aid American Industry.

Contracts for the sale of seventeen locomotives and 1,000 railway cars to Central do Brazil railway have been awarded to four American manufacturers, the transportation division of the department of commerce announced yesterday. The locomotives will cost $1,870,000 and the cars about $4,000,000.

This order was one of several reported during the day, indicating an extension of the rise in American business resulting from the European war and improved domestic conditions.

Report Pullman Shares in Order.

Names of the companies receiving the orders from the Brazilian road were not announced. Placement of the contracts, however, closely followed reports in the trade that the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company and the American Car and Foundry company each had received orders for 500 cars from Brazil. The Baldwin Locomotive Works and the American Locomotive company also were reported as sharing a Brazilian order for locomotives.

General Electric company concluded an arrangement with the chamber of commerce of Jackson, Miss., for the construction there of a $750,000 General Electric plant to manufacture new type automobile headlights. The plant will employ between 300 and 400 persons. A 14 acre site was acquired by the company.

Weight of Lamps a Factor.

Automobile lamps to be manufactured at Jackson will be for replacement purposes, the company announced. General Electric now conducts no manufacturing operations in the south. New style automobile lamps are so much heavier than the old type that freight charges constitute an important cost factor, company officials said. Building of the plant at Jackson probably will be followed by construction of others in various sections of the country, it was said.

A subsidiary of the Baldwin Locomotive works, the De La Vergne Engine company of Philadelphia, was awarded two orders for Diesel engines. Gulf Oil corporation ordered twelve six cylinder Diesel engines of 500 horsepower each. Two similar engines were ordered by the Buckeye Pipe Line company. The total value of the two orders is about $350,000.

Rock Island Orders Cars.

E. M. Durham Jr., chief executive officer of the Rock Island Lines, announced the purchase of 1,000 fifty ton steel sheeted box cars under authority of the federal court, granted Oct. 4.

The Illinois Central railroad applied to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a $5,000,000 loan to finance repairs of fifty-one locomotives and about 11,000 freight cars. The road at the same time sought the approval of the interstate commerce commission for the proposed loan. The loan was sought for a period of three years, with interest at 2½ per cent.

Purchase of fourteen buses was announced by the Burlington Transportation company, subsidiary of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad. The buses, costing a total of $105,000, will serve chiefly as "feeders" to the company's main lines between Chicago and California points. The new equipment, which will be air conditioned and will include sev-

Stocks Score Gains Ranging to 5 Points

New York, Oct. 17 (AP).—A fresh burst of war-buying hit the stock market today, lifting leading issues 1 to more than 5 points, many to new highs for the year or longer. Steels and aircrafts touched off the advance, with rails, mail orders, coppers, rubbers, motors, oils, and a wide variety of specialties participating.

Trading Volume Soars.

Despite intermittent profit taking slowdowns, the day's volume of 1,852,050 shares was the largest since Sept. 27. It compared with 485,390 yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished with a net gain of 1.5 points at 53.6, a new high mark since Nov. 12, 1938.

With the Germans seemingly pressing hostilities on all fronts, traders who had been hanging back on peace thoughts were said to have returned to the market for shares of companies that might benefit from foreign purchases. At the same time, some observers expressed the belief that European demands, even if congress amends the neutrality law, might not come up to expectations at once owing to the assumption that the belligerents have been stocking up on supplies for a year or so in preparations for eventualities.

Business News Cheerful.

Business developments were much to the liking of recovery contingents. Early third quarter earnings statements from prominent corporations confirmed the late bulge in industry. September operating incomes for the railroads were well ahead of a year ago.

Conspicuous stocks on the forward tilt were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, United Aircraft, Chrysler, General Motors, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Anaconda, American Smelting, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, du Pont, Eastman Kodak, J. I. Case, Sears Roebuck, United States Rubber, Western Union, Pullman, and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

EMPIRES ORDER 200,000 TONS OF ARGENTINE MEAT

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 17 (AP).—One of the largest transactions in the history of the Argentine packing industry was disclosed today when the government announced Argentina had sold 200,000 tons of meat to Great Britain and France.

The meat, 170,000 tons of chilled and frozen beef and 30,000 tons of frozen mutton, will be forwarded within 16 months.

It was estimated nearly 600,000 head of cattle will be involved in the order.

Roberto M. Ortiz, president of Argentina, in a statement at Tandil, where he is resting, said it had been agreed with Britain and France to sell war supplies of beef and mutton outside the ordinary import quotas allotted by both countries to the Argentine.

The announcement ended bitterly contested negotiations which began more than two months ago and once were broken off by the British.

COUNTY DEALERS' SUPPLY OF USED CARS INCREASES

Used car inventories of Cook county automobile dealers rose to a 34.2 day supply on Oct. 1, compared with a 31.8 day supply on Sept. 1, the Chicago Automobile Trade association reported yesterday. On the basis of its findings, the association warned dealers to use caution in making allowances on used cars.

A compilation of returns from 231 dealers, a record number, showed that sales of used cars in September totaled 5,487 against inventories of 6,263, the association said.

BUILDING GAINS BOOST GYPSUM FIRM'S INCOME

Steel and Aircraft Earnings Mount.

Tom M. Girdler expects steel pace to continue.

Increased profits were disclosed yesterday in reports of several large corporations, including the United States Gypsum company, Republic Steel corporation, and United Aircraft corporation.

United States Gypsum benefited by the increase in building operations, reported net income of $2,613,003, equal to $2.08 a share on common stock for the September quarter. In the corresponding period of last year, the company earned $1,607,725, or $1.23 a share. For the nine months ended Sept. 30, net income was $5,730,861, equal to $4.46 a share, against $3,788,945, or $2.88 a share in the 1938 period.

Republic Gains Sharply.

September quarter earnings of Republic Steel and its subsidiaries was $2,815,339, compared with a net loss of $2,387,556 a year ago. Net income for nine months ended with September totaled $3,898,650, against a loss of $8,306,437 a year ago.

Republic's third quarter earnings were equal to 39 cents a share on common stock after preferred dividends. The nine months' income equaled 37 cents on the common.

Tom M. Girdler, chairman of the company, said that the current advance in the steel industry "will hold up unless there is peace, and there is very little chance of peace." The upturn has been caused by domestic and export business rather than war orders, he said.

Girdler, on a visit to the corporation's Youngstown properties, said Republic was operating at full speed, and that all plants were booked "for a long time to come."

Aircraft Earnings Rise.

United Aircraft and subsidiaries reported net income of $2,120,617, equal to 80 cents a share, for the September quarter. This compared with $1,142,694, or 45 cents a share, in the corresponding quarter a year ago. For the first nine months of the year, net income was $5,799,307, or $2.18 a share, against $3,564,405 or $1.40 a share in the 1938 period.

Schenley Distillers corporation and subsidiaries reported net income for

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Oct. 17 (AP).—Bonds advanced sharply today in sympathy with a renewal of war buying of stocks. Speculative loans were prominent, particularly the rails, their climbing power matching that shown during the excited war markets of last September.

Equally noteworthy was a buoyant rise in United States government bonds. These issues made one of the best advances of the October recovery. Treasuries averaged fractionally higher and some rose a full point or more. Particularly strong was the treasury issue of 3 3-4s of 1956-'46 with net rise of 1 23-32s points.

Foreign loans had forward leadership in German, Italian, Norway, and Canadian obligations.

Chicago Stocks.

Increased buying lifted prices of most issues traded on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. United States Steel common rose 3½ points, closing at 78¾. Other volume leaders showed gains ranging to ¾ point. Wisconsin Bankshares, the most active issue, moved against the general trend, losing ⅛.

Jarvis closed ⅝ higher at 17⅛ after touching a new peak at 17¼. Three other issues set new 1939 highs. Volume was 48,000 shares. Of 119 issues which changed hands, 92 advanced, 14 declined, and 13 closed unchanged.

Major fractional gains were made by Marshall Field, and General Motors. Also higher were Commonwealth Edison, Butler Brothers, Kellogg Switchboard, Illinois Central, and Chicago corporation.

Bank Stocks.

The bid prices of stocks of the First National, the Chicago Title and Trust, and the American National banks rose 2 points each in yesterday's trading. Continental Illinois was 1½ points higher. Prices follow:

COTTON

Strength in securities and commodities in general resulted in a broader commission house demand for cotton futures yesterday. Mills, Liverpool, and Bombay interests were on the buying side. Closing trades were .05 cent lower to .17 cent a pound higher.

England was reported considering several barter deals in an effort to hold its export business in cotton textiles in competition with the United States, Japan, and Italy. An Anglo-Egyptian deal was said to embrace an exchange of 350,000 bales of cotton for various manufactured commodities.

Spot cotton closed .05 to .09 cent higher with New York, 9.22 cents; New Orleans, 9.09 cents, and Houston at 8.70 cents a pound. Prices follow:

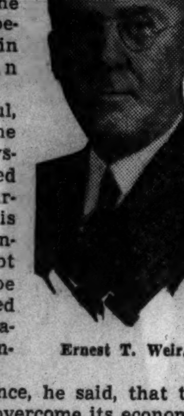
E. T. WEIR WARNS OF WAR PERIL TO HOME ECONOMY

Fears Dictatorship Would Follow Our Entry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 17.—Ernest T. Weir, one of the country's outstanding industrial leaders, tonight warned of the political and economic perils that await the country if it becomes involved in the European war.



Ernest T. Weir.

It is doubtful, he said, if the capitalistic system in the United States could survive a war. It is now straining under a vast debt that would be greatly multiplied by out participation in the conflict.

The only chance, he said, that the country has to overcome its economic troubles lies in keeping out of the struggle. Certain economic disaster would result from entry into the war, he said, and the political liberties that we now have would disappear.

Calls Rise "Cream Puff" Boom.

Weir said there is grave danger that the country may be misled by the rapid expansion now occurring in business and industry. He described it as a "cream puff" boom which is solving none of the serious economic problems of the country.

Weir spoke at the annual meeting of the American Institute of Steel Construction. He is the chairman of the National Steel corporation and president of the steel industry's powerful trade association, the American Iron and Steel Institute.

The steel executive expressed doubt that producers can long absorb the increasing cost of raw materials without raising prices of finished steel products to some degree. He predicted, however, that there will be no increases immediately.

War Would Boost Debt.

War would add billions, he said, to the federal debt under which the credit structure of the country is now straining.

The capitalistic system would be expected, he said, to support the resulting debt. If the debt proved insupportable, the system would be blamed and the way opened to substitute some other economic system.

"I don't know what that would be," he added, "but I do know that conditions that will follow war will be much less conducive to the return of individual freedom than they will be to the flowering of collectivism with its inevitable climax—dictatorship."

BRAZIL ORDERS $5,870,000 RAIL CARS, ENGINES

Other Purchases Aid American Industry.

eral buses with accommodations for thirty-seven passengers, was purchased as a result of trafic increases averaging more than 100 per cent at some major points, the company reported.

Railroad Expects Trafic Rise.

James B. Hill, president of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, told employés that on the basis of present indications the road will be called upon to move an increasing volume of freight if the war continues.

"To be prepared for any emergency," Hill said, "this railroad is putting its facilities in condition to handle a maximum business."

New York Shipbuilding corporation, in a report on operations, listed billings at $17,750,154 for the nine months ended Sept. 30. Billings on account of undelivered contracts to Sept. 30 were $19,444,944. For the six months ended June 30 billings totaled $10,027,061 and billings on account of undelivered contracts to June 30 totaled $12,735,732.

More Workers on Pay roll.

The gross value of undelivered contracts at Sept. 30, the company said, totaled $109,655,555. New contracts obtained during the first nine months of 1939 amounted to $13,997,000. The number of employés on Sept. 30 was 5,939, compared with 5,147 at the close of the preceding quarter.

The Wright Aeronautical corporation announced that "to meet current demands for military and commercial production," an additional building with 300,000 square feet of floor space will be erected at its Paterson, N. J. plant.

WARN FARMERS AGAINST GAMBLE ON WAR PRICES

The European war may leave middle western farmers worse off financially than they were when it started unless they are careful not to expand their farming operations too greatly in the hope of getting high prices for farm products. This warning to farmers was given yesterday by fourteen leaders of farm organizations in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, following a meeting of the group on Monday at the Union League club.

The consensus was that farmers should refrain from speculative plantings of crops next year.

H. P. Rusk, dean of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, said that a long war undoubtedly would bring some increase in farm prices, but that farmers' buying power likely would not increase because of higher industrial prices. E. A. Eckert, master of the Illinois State Grange, and H. J. Read of Purdue university college of agriculture also spoke. Burridge D. Butler, president of Prairie Farmer magazine, called the meeting.

BROAD PROGRAM MAPPED TO AID VALLEY TRADE

Mississippi Group Urges NLRB Revision.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 17.—A broad program both for the nation and the middle west was adopted at the 21st annual convention of the Mississippi Valley association in resolutions passed just before adjournment today. Delegates from 23 states in the area of the Mississippi and its tributaries attended the two day meeting.

Moving to exert a more effective voice as spokesman for the Mississippi river area, the delegates urged that the officers of the association extend invitations to all regional and local organizations in the valley to become affiliated with it for the common good of manufacturers, farmers, and business men in the region.

Attacks Burocracy.

The association, saying that it deplored any administrative procedure which gives to any agency of the government the power at one and the same time to act as investigator, prosecutor and judge, urged that the national labor relations act be revised to insure equity and justice for all groups.

The association protested against an amendment to the Walsh-Healey act which would reduce the minimum amount of a contract subject to its provisions from $10,000 to $2,000. It said that the present act does not give to the middle west the advantages it should have by reason of its low cost of living and lower labor costs.

Opposition was expressed to the expenditure of vast sums by the federal government to engage in the power business in competition with privately owned companies.

Price fixing by the bituminous coal division of the department of the interior was denounced. The association said that the prices proposed would deprive the Mississippi valley of the economies of water transportation of coal and would add to costs of the consuming public. Further, they would give the seaboard states an economic advantage over the middle west, the association said.

Hits Diversion Rule.

Declaring that the reduced flow of water from Lake Michigan into the Illinois river has impaired navigation and sanitation, the association advocated that the Supreme court be petitioned to modify its decree to relieve the emergency. It urged that funds be appropriated for the speedy enlargement of the Calumet-Sag canal to provide a necessary connection between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi waterway system.

Other recommendations included a proposal for joint rail-truck and waterway rates, promotion of trade with Latin America, and that congress provide funds for flood control and to combat soil erosion.

The association reiterated its opposition to the Wheeler-Lea transportation bill which would place the inland waterways under the control of the interstate commerce commission.

WHEAT AND CORN SPURT 2 CENTS ON NEW HOSTILITIES

Profit Taking Sales Check Advance.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$0.86⅝	$0.84¼	$0.64⅝
Corn	.51⅛	.49⅝	.43⅞
Oats	.35⅞	.34	.24⅝
Rye	.55½	.54⅝	.42¼
Soy beans	.85¼	.84	.68½

Advances of about 2 cents a bushel in wheat and corn futures yesterday accompanied more warlike news from Europe. Wheat sold at 86⅝ cents for the December delivery, the highest price since Sept. 25.

Profit taking checked the upturn, according to market observers, with the close on wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade at gains of 2 to 2⅛ cents. Corn was 1⅝ to 2 cents higher. Soy beans showed a firm undertone and closed 1¼ to 2 cents higher. A lake steamer cleared with 95,000 bushels of soy beans for Three Rivers, Que.

Trade Interest Grows.

A broader outside trade was reported in wheat futures. Continued dry weather in the west and southwest is attracting attention from speculators. Considerable winter wheat remains to be seeded in Nebraska, Kansas, and Oklahoma, it is reported.

Reports were current that a liberal export business had been done in Canadian cash wheat, presumably with Scandinavian countries. The quantities were not mentioned. The British government is said to have bought 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat on Monday.

Seek Vessel Space.

Increased demand is reported for ocean freight room for wheat to Europe. Neutral steamers are said to have been chartered at 27 cents a bushel from Gulf of Mexico ports to the continent, and room was taken at Atlantic ports to Europe at the equivalent of 24 cents a bushel. British steamers will take wheat from St. Lawrence river ports to Europe at equal to 11¼ cents a bushel.

Large export sales of corn were said to have been made, but confirmation was lacking.

Bulbs Are Dug Up.

Oct. 17, 1939.

GARDENERS at the Du Page county farm started last week digging and storing bulbs and tubers of outdoor flowers. Gladioli bulbs were dug first. Dahlia tubers, roots of English tuberous rooted begonias, and bulbs of Peruvian daffodils will be dug as soon as frost has killed the foliage on the plants.

The gladioli bulbs were dug and spread out in thin layers along the rows and left for two days to dry. The plants were loosened with spading forks and then lifted by hand. When the plants were dry the tops were broken off and the bulbs taken to a cool basement for storing.

The bulbs were stored in bushel baskets in an unheated basement where the temperature will be kept as close as possible to 40 degrees all winter. An open window will be adjusted as necessary to regulate the temperature, making sure that the bulbs never freeze.

Insect Pests Destroyed.

All the rough, outside skins were peeled off the bulbs and burned to destroy the eggs of thrips, tiny insects that damage gladioli plants. The tops of the plants were raked up in the garden and burned.

As further precaution, the bulbs were treated with napthalene flakes sprinkled on at the rate of one-half pound to a bushel basket of bulbs. Then the baskets were covered with paper and put in the basement.

The gardeners say thrips are difficult to control because they live over winter on many kinds of plants and attack young gladioli plants in the spring. The plants usually need spraying even when clean bulbs are used. Tartar emetic has proved the most effective spray for these insects at the farm.

Gladioli bulbs often are left in the ground over winter, especially in small beds. When this practice is followed the gardeners put a heavy mulch over the beds so the ground will not freeze. The mulch is removed after the frost is out of the ground in the spring. This gives earlier blooms than where the bulbs are dug and stored over winter and planted in the spring.

Grow Thick if Left Alone.

The bulbs are never left in the ground for more than two years in succession because the plants soon become so thick that they produce small flowers. Large gladioli blooms are especially desirable since they are used mostly as cut flowers. Replanting each year usually assures large blooms.

Another reason for not leaving the bulbs in the ground for longer than two years is that the new bulbs form each year on top of the old ones, gradually working up to the surface. The plants grow up from the tops of the new bulbs each year, and, when the bulbs are too close to the surface, it is necessary to stake the tall plants to keep them from falling over.

REP. REED ASKS FOR REPEAL OF TRADE TREATIES

Charges Pacts Threaten Home Economy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 17.—Representative Daniel A. Reed [R., N. Y.] today called upon the administration to repeal reciprocal trade treaties with countries whose depreciated currencies constitute a threat to American agriculture and industry.

Rep. Daniel A. Reed.

Reed's demands made in a house speech, came in the midst of hearings on the administration's proposed trade treaty with Argentina, which was vigorously assailed by Republican and Democratic congressmen who testified before the committee for reciprocity information.

Fears New Competition.

Reed said that Canada, aided by the tariff concessions of her trade agreement together with a depreciated currency "may well flood this country with agricultural products in sufficient volume to break our prices."

"A program which permits goods from countries which have depreciated currencies to enter the United States at duties which in many cases have been reduced 50 per cent is opposed to the best interests of American agriculture and industry," Reed continued.

"Unless the administration moves to terminate the affected treaties, the only hope of American agriculture is for congress to refuse to renew this policy when the act expires next June.

Demands Termination.

"If it were not for the fact that this special session will consider no subject other than neutrality, I would introduce a resolution calling upon the administration to exercise the right to terminate the treaties in accordance with their provisions for the protection of domestic interests."

Reed asserted that even in normal times, the agreements have proved a hardship to many American producers, and since hostilities began in Europe, new elements threaten additional hardships.

"By far the most important immediate effect of the war is the depreciation of foreign currencies in relation to the American dollar," he said.

Raises Price of Our Goods.

"Depreciation of the currency raises the price of American goods to foreign buyers in terms of their own money. Not only should this mean a decline in demand for American goods, but also a large diversion of trade from the United States."

On the Argentine treaty, Representative Frank E. Hook [D., Mich.] testified that any concession on cheese imports to this country would benefit Italy more than Argentina. He said that virtually the only kind of cheese imported from Argentina is similar to that produced in Italy, and any concession would permit large imports of Italian cheese under the most favored nation clause.

GENERAL MOTORS USED FORCE IN WEST, JURY TOLD

Ex-Official of Chevrolet Describes Policy.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 17 [Special].—A former Chevrolet executive testified in federal court here today that General Motors executives, as early as 1925, declared it a policy that all Chevrolet dealers on the Pacific coast must use the General Motors Acceptance corporation in financing time sales or lose their dealerships.

General Motors, three subsidiaries, including G. M. A. C., and 17 individuals are on trial for alleged violation of antitrust laws. The government has tried to show during the first seven days of the trial that the corporation has forced dealers to use G. M. A. C. in handling automobile customer credit.

The former Chevrolet executive is Fred N. Coats, Piedmont, Cal., who in 1925 was regional sales manager and vice president of Chevrolet Company of California.

Tells of Being Visited.

Coats declared he was visited by Richard H. Grant, then general sales manager and now vice president in charge of sales for General Motors. Grant is one of the 17 individual defendants. Coats said he, Grant and A. L. Deane of G. M. A. C. discussed how much of the dealers' time sales financing should be handled by G. M. A. C.

Coats said he and Grant thought the business should be distributed with half going to G. M. A. C. and half to any other finance company chosen by the dealer. Deane, Coats testified, demanded 100 per cent of the business for G. M. A. C.

Officers Rule on Policy.

Because the three men could not agree, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., then president of General Motors and now its chairman, and John J. Raskob, Donaldson Brown, and Fred Fisher, all then General Motors vice presidents, went to Los Angeles, where a policy of forcing all Chevrolet dealers to use G. M. A. C. exclusively was adopted, Coats testified.

Coats said the executives arrived in "a special car hooked onto one of those fast trains and we met them at the station." Coats said he did not attend the meeting but was advised of the decision by Grant.

Coats said all dealers on the coast were then informed of the decision.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Hog prices at the Chicago stock yards yesterday reached new high levels for the month as supplies continued to run comparatively small for this season. Competition was keen, with prices mostly 10 cents above the average of Monday.

Sharply lower bids which sellers resisted most of the forenoon resulted in a draggy cattle trade. The bulk sold later at reductions of 15 to 25 cents, with spots off more.

"GOOD MEN ARE HARD TO FIND"

Most employers agree on that. So, when a man is qualified by experience to do several things well he is above average and worth an interview. I can sell, handle auditing or cost record work, train salesmen, talk before groups and think on my feet. Good planner and full of ideas. Only 30 and willing to plug like sixty for a future. I have chronically good health and a personality that seems to make friends and influence people. In anything requiring the above qualifications I can be outstanding—and your business can benefit accordingly. Do I get the interview?

I Want to Hand
Somebody $2,200.00

That sounds unbelievable, but it is true. I have just finished building a modern 5 room brick house on an FHA 20-year loan in a south side suburb, 36 minutes by Illinois Central train from the loop, on a corner lot beautifully landscaped, just off a thru boulevard, which cost $9,700, small monthly payments. This home was built on one of 42 lots I own in this subdivision. Others associated with me owning a number of lots also built homes. We did this to stimulate the sale of lots. I do not want to carry this house any longer, as I am not in the real estate business, so I am willing to take a $2,200 loss—money I have paid out. Address F P 327, Tribune.

Can You Set Aside
$1.34 to $1.52 Per Week
FOR A $100 LOAN?

That's actually all you need to pay off in full a $100 cash loan, including all charges on a 20 month loan at Personal Finance Company. And we take no wage assignment.

$1.34 a week on the average is all you need to set aside for every $100 borrowed on Personal's new amazing "Special" loan plan of only 1½% per month on the actual balance owed. This plan is for persons with a steady income or salary sufficient to meet payments promptly without undue credit strain and a good credit record. You don't need co-makers, life insurance or bankable securities.

For persons without established credit and employment ratings and who wish to carry a loan larger than 8 to 12% of annual salary or income, Personal offers its "Regular" loan plan. On this plan an average of $1.52 set aside per week takes care of everything on a $100 loan—the charge is based on 3% monthly on unpaid balances of $100 and less, and 2% monthly on unpaid balances over $100.

Loans up to $300 on either plan on your personal note, or with furniture or auto. Co-maker loans are also available on "Regular" plan. Seize this opportunity to save on loan costs. Come in or telephone today.
